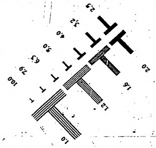
NATIONAL MICROFILM ASSOCIATION

19 Lafayette Avenue, Hingham, Massachusetts

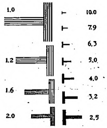


INSTRUCTIONS Resolution is expressed in terms of the lines per millimeter recorded by a particular film under specified conditions. Numerals in chart indicate the number of lines per millimeter in adjacent "T-shaped" groupings.

In microfilming, it is necessary to determine the reduction ratio and multiply the number of lines in the chart by this value to find the number of lines recorded by the film. As an aid in determining the reduction ratio, the line above is 100 millimeters in length. Measuring this line in the film image and dividing the length into 100 gives the reduction ratio. Example: the line is 20 mm. long in the film image, and 100/20 = 5.

Examine "T-shaped" line groupings in the film with microscope, and note the number adjacent to finest lines recorded sharply and distinctly. Multiply this number by the reduction factor to obtain resolving power in lines per millimeter. Example: 7.9 group of lines is clearly recorded while lines in the 10.0 group are not distinctly separated. Reduction ratio is 5, and 7.9 x 5 = 39.5 lines per millimeter recorded satisfactorily. 10.0 x 5 = 50 lines per millimeter which are not recorded satisfactorily. Under the particular conditions, maximum resolution is between 39.5 and 50 lines per millimeter.

Resolution, as measured on the film, is a test of the entire photographic system, including lens, exposure, processing, and other factors. These rarely utilize maximum resolution of the film. Vibrations during exposure, lack of critical focus, and exposures yielding very dense negatives are to be avoided.



This frame is intended as a guide in determining film quality. The resolution charts in the corners and center serve as an absolute measure of camera performance in terms of lines per millimeter.

The lines of type below will serve as a guide to the legibility of type of various sizes reproduced at the reduction ratio used on this film.

Jaycees Act on Many Projects Last Thursday

Adopt Resolutions to Support Bond Issue for Library

Action on a considerable number of items was taken when the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce met Thursday evening at the Elks club rooms. Among items obyered were assistance for the LeRoy Bruggeman family, support of the bond issue for Carnegie public library, sale of Christmas ornaments to support the nativity scene, and discussion of a used ice skate collection for needy youngsters of the community.

Of special interest in Christianson's talk was an open letter to the students of Nigeria which was written by one of the founders of the Peace Corps program. The letter was in reply to protest by students of that country to a much-publicized postal card from a Peace Corps member who had commented on primitive conditions existing in Nigeria. In essence the four-page letter stated that Americans have

First Snowfall of Season Hits Area

Some warming may be in the offing for residents of our area today and tomorrow, after a lengthy cold snap to remind us that winter is coming, that we had best get our "Long Johns" on and be prepared for the worst.

The 9 above recorded Friday morning was the coldest reading of the season so far. Other day to day readings are: Thursday, high 32 and low 20; Friday, 28 and 9; Saturday, 32 and 16; and Sunday 39 and 25. This morning's low was 17.

The forecast: not quite so cold today with decreasing cloudiness east, mostly fair west today and Tuesday. Highs today will range from 37 to 47 and the low tonight will be 28—38.

The first snow of the season started falling Thursday and a total of .30 inch of precipitation had been recorded at the airport weather station through Saturday.

MANAGER of the J. C. Penney company store in Thief River Falls is Morris Goddard, company employee for the past 10 years, who has succeeded Robert Baker in that position. He will move his wife and family to this community as soon as housing can be arranged. Baker has been transferred to a Penney store at Mason City, Ia.

"Many needy youngsters in the Thief River Falls community have been denied the fun of skating because their families can not afford to purchase skates for them. This is why we have undertaken a collection of used skates for distribution to these children," states George Hildre, chairman of the Jaycees used ice skate collection committee.

"We are appealing to the many residents of this city who have used skates which they have outgrown or no longer use," Hildre said, "to share the fun they once had with others who would receive the same enjoyment from them. Arrangements are being made to assure that only youngsters whose families could not otherwise afford the skates will receive them through this appeal."

Collection boxes will be located at the Northern State and Union State banks and Lambert's Barber shop starting today and anyone who has skates for boys or girls is encouraged to leave them at these locations. Persons who would like to contribute skates but for some reason cannot bring them downtown may call Narverud Cleaners (MU 1-3441) and leave their name and address. Jaycees will pick up the skates at these homes.

"Skating is healthful and wholesome recreation," Hildre said, "and we believe the ample opportunity for it during our long winters should not be denied any youngsters in the community. Only through whole-hearted support can we make this project a success and bring joy to the hearts of many community youngsters."

Collection in the program will take place throughout the month of November with distribution to be made in cooperation with the local Salvation Army unit, local schools and churches early in December. Others on the committee headed by Hildre include Donovan Narverud, Lambert Rinowski and Kenneth Swenson.

Seek Youths Who Cast Water-filled Balloons at Cars

Trucker Reports Missile Broke Windshield on Highway 1 Wednesday

Some youths have been indulging in a dangerous pastime on local highways, resulting in at least one broken windshield, the sheriff's office reported today.

A Land O'Lakes truck driver reported to the sheriff Wednesday that four youths in a car he met west of the city on TH 1 threw a water-filled balloon at his truck, breaking the truck windshield when it hit. Judging by other water blotches on the highway others had been thrown at also, he told the sheriff. One other person also reported being hit by a balloon thrown from a passing car.

There may have been more than one carfull of youths throwing the balloons as two different cars were described by the two persons hit by the soggy missiles.

The sheriff said balloon throwing is a very dangerous practice as the water acts as a solid when confined in a balloon and propelled at such a high velocity from a speeding car which is being met by the target vehicle at a similiar rate of speed.

The case is being thoroughly investigated, according to the sheriff.

A representative of the Grand Forks district office of the Social Security administration will be in Thief River Falls at the city Auditorium Tuesday, November 7, at 10 a. m. Individuals who have questions regarding social security or who wish to file claims may contact him on that date.

Prize Contest under Way to Judge Dairy Cattle's Production

If you are a dairy farmer who thinks he can judge a cow's production just by appearance, you are invited to take part in a contest now underway in Pennington county and throughout the state, according to Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent.

Thirteen business places in this county, including feed dealers, breeding associations, banks and creameries, are cooperating in staging the contest. Six cows are pictured on a large poster on display at the various business places, and dairy farmers are asked to place them according to production. The contest is voluntary and no purchases are required.

Awards will be made for the first, second and third best placings of the group of cattle, Stelmaschuk said. All that is required of farmers is that they list the placings on an entry blank which is displayed with the poster and deposit the blank in the attached poster compartment. Cows are to be judged according to production and not type.

Close of the contest will be November 30 with the prizes to be awarded by participating firms. "This event is being sponsored in cooperation with the extension service throughout the state," Stelmaschuk said, "to show that it is impossible to consistently judge a dairy animal's production simply by sight and no records."

Cooperating business firms in Thief River Falls include Union State Bank, Northern State Bank, Osborne-McMillan Elevator, La O'Lakes, Shetler's Hatchery and Feed company, Farmers Cooperative Elevator, Northland Produce, Thief River Falls Co-op Creamery, Peterson-Biddick and American Breeders. Also cooperating are creameries at St. Hilaire and Goodridge.

All phases of 4-H club work are considered in making the selection with a percentage basis being used to give all clubs an equal chance to win.

Soo Is Ordered to Keep Portal Train

ICC Orders Continuation of Train Another Year

The Interstate Commerce Commission denied Wednesday the Soo Line Railroad's request for permission to discontinue two trains between St. Paul and Portal, N. D.

The ICC said evidence produced at an investigation and a hearing on the proposal indicated continuance of the service "is required by the public convenience and necessity and will not unduly burden interstate commerce."

The railroad notified the commission on June 16 it planned to discontinue trains Nos. 13 and 14 on July 2. The ICC delayed the effective date at least four months with a June 19 order for an investigation and hearing.

In announcing its findings based on this inquiry, the commission said the service must be continued for at least one year, until Oct. 31, 1962.

VFW Post Wins Praise for Its New Building

Large Gathering Attends Dedication Ceremony Saturday

"You have achieved a goal that will take a long time to duplicate," stated Clifford Salisbury, judge advocate of the Minnesota Veterans of Foreign Wars, in addressing the large gathering in attendance at the dedication of the new VFW post building Saturday evening in Thief River Falls. "Even St. Cloud, which has the largest post in the state, can't hold a candle to what you have done here."

Together with the commendation, Salisbury warned post members not to be satisfied and give up their youth work and community activities. "We work for America and we're going to keep this country what it is no matter what happens," he concluded.

Jack Mattheson, national youth director for the VFW, commended the state organization, and the local post in particular, for work done in youth activities and community service. "You have been blessed with good leaders in Minnesota," he said, "and that is why you have been able to show an increase in membership each year for the past 10 years. The Minnesota department is well known in the national office, and it takes individuals to make the state and national organizations what they are."

Toastmaster for the evening was Maynard Troland with Envoy Carl Paulson of the Salvation Army giving the invocation. Greetings were extended from the post and auxiliary by Earl Gjernes and Mrs. Bernard Wold, respective commander and president of the organiza-

Langen Says Ability to Pay Is Key Issue in Aid to Education

Congressman Odin Langen issued a report Thursday on actions during the last session of Congress relative to aid to education. Speaking before the Greenbush Parent Teacher association, Langen pointed out that in spite of the complications that developed over some of the newer administration proposals, the Congress did pass legislation that extends for two years the National Defense Education Act and aid to areas impacted by Federal installations.

Langen said one of the key questions in the debate over Federal aid to education is whether state and local governments can continue to be financially able to meet school needs. He pointed out that much of the confusion in Washington centered around constitutional provisions which prevent the participation of segregated, private and parochial schools in such aids, and whether the need factor should be applied in allocating the funds.

Langen advised against being stampeded into aid programs through the scare propagandists who say American education is second rate to Russia. Langen noted that 46 million Americans are enrolled at all levels of formal education while in Russia, with a population that exceeds ours by 35 million, only 38 million students attend school.

The Congressman pointed out that the godless, world-conquering communist ideology, while concentrating on science, fails miserably in educating the masses. Langen said American educators should strive for the highest possible degree of equal opportunity for all students and the greatest possible productivity per dollar expended. "And this should be done with a minimum of government control," Langen emphasized.

Regulations for '62 Wheat Support Given

Growers who want price-support protection for their 1962 wheat crop were reminded today about the conservation requirements of the 1962 wheat stabilization program. Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, points out that wheat growers will have to take an extra step this year if they want to be eligible for price support on their 1962 crop.

In other years, he explains, it was necessary for a producer to comply with his farm wheat acreage allotment in order to qualify for loans or purchase agreements on his wheat crop. In 1962, such compliance is still required, but there is an additional requirement that an intention-to-participate form be filed and that the acreage diverted from the production of wheat be devoted to an approved conservation use. Program payments will be made to producers for conserving the diverted acreage.

According to the chairman, the 1962 wheat allotment notices sent to growers before the wheat marketing quota referendum last August reflected a 10-percent reduction below what the allotment would have been under previous legislative authority.

Under legislation governing the 1962 wheat program, this 10-percent diverted acreage figure is the minimum acreage which also must be devoted to soil-conserving uses in order to comply with program provisions. The diverted acres put to an approved conservation use must be in addition to the normal acreage devoted to conservation uses on the farm.

Chairman Knutson suggests that farmers check with the ASCS county office about approved conservation practices which may be carried out on diverted wheat acreage in complying with the 1962 wheat stabilization program.

James Prigge returned from the Iron Range Friday and was an overnight guest Thursday at the Al Prigge home at Babbitt.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Anderson of St. Vincent were Friday overnight visitors at the Rodney Twistol home. They also attended the Oswald-Kjellberg wedding Saturday evening.

Winter Shows Stock Exhibit Open to World

The board of directors of the Red River Valley Livestock association recently announced that the livestock show at the 1962 Valley Winter Shows will be open to world competition.

This action to open the livestock show is a major departure from the long-time policy followed at the annual Winter Shows. For many years only Minnesota residents of the thirteen-county region comprising the so-called "Winter Shows area" were eligible to exhibit livestock. The first step in the expansion of the livestock show was taken a year ago when the board of directors declared all Minnesota residents eligible for competition.

The primary objective in this move to invite world competition is an attempt to improve the quality of stock on exhibition and thereby raise the standards of the entire livestock show. This action will result in substantially greater recognition being accorded to the livestock show than has been the case in the past.

The Futurity Show is a separate phase of the over-all livestock program at the Red River Valley Winter Shows. It might well be termed the Junior Livestock Show in Northwestern Minnesota, and its objectives are to help and to encourage young boys and girls in their livestock programs on the farm.

The Futurity Show will remain unchanged insofar as eligibility of exhibitors is concerned. The requirements are that all livestock exhibitors in the futurity classes must be bonafide members in good standing in any one of the 4-H or F. F. A. clubs in the previously described Winter Shows as of Minnesota.

The 1962 Winter Shows will officially open at 1 p.m., February 18, and will run through Friday, February 23. The entire show will be conducted in the new Winter Shows buildings located on Highways 2 and 75 on the north side of Crookston, Minnesota. The buildings are presently under construction, but it is expected that all work will be completed by Winter Shows time.

Jaycees Acted on Many Projects at Session Thursday

forgotten that this country was built by pioneers whose living standard was primitive and that we need help to understand the problems of other countries.

By unanimous action of the group present, the local Jaycees chapter will contribute $50 from its treasury for use by the LeRoy Bruggeman family which lost its home due to fire October 30. The money will be turned over to Donald Myers, Brother-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Bruggeman, for use in purchase of items which will be needed by the family.

Also adopted by the chapter was a resolution calling for support of the Carnegie public library expansion and remodeling. The resolution stated that "the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce go on record favoring expansion and improvement of the Carnegie public library through support of the $115,000 bond issue in the Nov. 7 city election."

In connection with the local election, chapter members unanimously approved the usual "get out the vote campaign" with Al Doerr, director in charge of governmental affairs, named as chairman to organize the campaign. Jaycees will operate a car equipped with public address system Tuesday to encourage all residents of the city to cast their ballots in the city election.

Allen Torkelson, chairman of the Aviation Day promotion and fly-in breakfast at the Thief River Falls municipal airport, together with his committee, were given a vote of appreciation by the chapter for "a job well done" through good organization on extremely short notice.

Marvin Lundin, director in charge of sports activities, stated that the collection of used ice skates for needy youngsters will take place during the month of November with George Hildre as chairman of the committee. Further details of the collection are mentioned elsewhere in today's issue of the Times.

Gene Beito, second vice president of the Jaycees, was placed in charge of distribution of brochures prepared by the public library. Through board action some time ago, the Jaycees accepted a request to arrange for distribution of the brochures in the city on a house-to-house basis.

Again this year, as a result of approval given at Thursday's meeting, the chapter will conduct its sale of Christmas tree ornaments to support expansion of the nativity scene erected annually on the lawn of the Thief River Falls post office. The religious activities committee was authorized to spen an amount not in excess of $250 for the purchase of additional figures for the scene, an expansion process which has been followed from year to year.

Also included in chapter action was a vote for continuance of the chapter's safety program, sponsorship of the ice break-up contest next spring and support of the Mr. and Mrs. Jaycees bowling team in the mixed doubles league through payment of half the team's dues.

Sugar Beet Output in R.R. Valley Hits New Peak in 1961

Production Estimated at 1,448,000 Tons, up 101,000 Tons from 1960

A record in sugar beet production for the Red River Valley has been set this year, with total tonnage estimated to be at 1,448,000.

According to J. C. Tanner, general manager of the American Crystal Sugar Co. for the district, this amounts to about 101,000 tons more than last year's crop.

"Despite the dry season I think we're all surprised that we had this good a crop," he said.

The entire crop was harvested this year and the last few railway cars are still being loaded in the southern part of the Valley. In all, 102,089 truck loads were delivered directly to the sugar beet factories at East Grand Forks, Crookston and Moorhead and 18,325 railway carloads were picked up at outside points for delivery to the plants.

The East Grand Forks factory received 33,723 truck loads, with the plant purchasing 389,000 tons.

Tanner said the processing campaign is expected to last until Feb. 1 and will be the longest campaign in the local industry's history. The campaign started Sept. 18.

He stated further that the new 1962 wheat and barley programs would be officially declared open on November 9 and continue through December 1, 1961, and that both programs would again be reopened in the spring of 1962 for the purpose of affording all interested producers an opportunity to participate in the programs if they desire to do so.

Highway Patrol Will Increase Activities

An intensive drive to reduce traffic accidents was announced today by Garnet E. Hall, state highway safety director. "For the remainder of the year, the Minnesota highway patrol will intensify its enforcement program all over the state."

"Traffic fatalities are very near the 1960 level," Hall pointed out, "varying just above or just below the corresponding figure of last year's terrible toll. We feel that strong enforcement action will contribute to a reduction in accidents which lead to injuries and deaths. Highway Patrol officers will take vigorous action against those violations which are leading factors in traffic fatalities. Some of these are:

1. Exceeding safe speed or speed limits, a factor in 30 per cent of the fatal accidents in 1960.
2. Failure to grant the right of way, a factor in 13 per cent of all fatal accidents last year.
3. Driving on the wrong side of the road, a factor in 12 per cent.
4. Disregarding traffic controls, signs and signals, a factor in nine per cent.
5. Faulty equipment, including lights and brakes, four per cent.

"In 23 per cent of all fatal accidents last year, a drinking driver contributed to the accident. In only ten percent of all 1960 accidents, one or more drivers had been drinking, but in almost one out of four of the fatal accidents, and in 15 per cent of the personal injury accidents, one or more drivers was reported to have been drinking."

The highway patrol will operate its squads in 'saturation' techniques in all of the patrol districts, concentrating their activities in those areas where there is a high incidence of violations and accidents. These roving squads will be particularly guarding against violations which lead to accidents.

Hall pointed out that saturation squads have been very effective in the past and are being continued at a stepped-up pace. He said they would be operating in the west and southwestern parts of the state during the remainder of the bird hunting season and would concentrate on heavily traveled routes in the north during the deer hunting season.

"It would contribute greatly to a reduction in deadly accidents if all of our enforcement agencies would join in this concentrated effort," Hall emphasized. "Many of our fatalities occur on streets and highways not under the jurisdiction of the Highway Patrol, so we need everyone's help to make Minnesota a safer state."

Freeway Program in State to Cost $1,000,000 a Mile

Total Cost Will Reach $900 Million by 1975, Commissioner States

Expenditures on the state's 898 miles of Interstate highways will reach a total of approximately $900,000,000 by the target date in 1975, it was estimated today by Commissioner of Highways James C. Marshall. This will mean, he pointed out, an average cost of approximately $1 million per mile. The Federal Highway Act of 1956 provides that 90 percent of these costs be met by the national government.

Up to now, Minnesota has completed and opened to traffic 34.2 miles of the Federal Interstate Defense System, with 64.8 additional miles under construction. Another 89 miles are scheduled to be put under contract in fiscal 1963.

Due to Minnesota's terrain with its abundance of lakes and rivers, stream crossings, highway separations and interchanges, railway under and overpasses — known in engineering parlance as structures and to the layman as bridges — this type of construction has played an unusually large part in the state's costs and operations. To date, a total of 208 Interstate bridges have been completed or are under construction, the Commissioner disclosed. Of these, 144 are highway separations or interchanges, 28 are stream crossings and 36 are railway under or overpasses.

DHIA Records Give Increased Profit

Ralph Wayne Cites Gain In Yellow Medicine Co.

Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA) members in Yellow Medicine County, Minnesota, are making an 800 percent return on their dairy record keeping investment, according to an extension dairyman at the University of Minnesota.

Ralph W. Wayne says these dairymen are netting an additional $57 per cow per year today because of production records.

Here's the way Wayne figures it: Ten years ago the average fat production of Yellow Medicine County DHIA herds was 361 pounds. Continual testing, careful study of their dairy records and herd management based on production records helped the dairymen raise production to 451 pounds per cow by the end of the decade—a 90-pound increase.

Because it takes more feed to make more milk and fat, not all of the increase was profit. But Yellow Medicine County records show that the production increase netted herd owners $57 per cow per year above the additional feed cost—return of more than 800 percent on a $7 investment in production testing.

Lung Cancer

Dr. Joseph Berkson of the Mayo Clinic says medical statisticians may be on the wrong track in trying to link lung cancer to cigarette smoking. "I don't think we have found any connection between smoking and lung cancer," he said. "There are too many complicated inter-relationships bound up with everything."

3 Minor Traffic Mishaps in City

Icy Streets Are Held Partly Responsible

Two property damage accidents and one mishap involving a parked car were reported by city police today. Icy streets probably contributed to the two collisions reported and local drivers are urged to use great caution due to unfavorable street conditions.

The first mishap occurred at 5:15 Nov. 3 when a car driven east on Eighth st. by James L. Hoffman, Finley, N. D. was struck in the right—rear fender by a car driven north on Atlantic by Milton J. Grinde, rt. 4, who was attempting to stop at the stop sign but apparently could not. Damage to Hoffman's car was estimated at $80, there was none to Grinde's.

A car owned by James Tostrup, rt. 1, was parked in front of the arena Saturday when another car backed out of the alley near the Red Owl store into the parked car about 3 p. m., causing about $20 damage. The offending driver left the scene of the mishap.

At 10 a. m. Sunday a car driven west on Muzzy st. by Bertha Ernst, city, was struck in the left front fender by a car driven north on Kendall av. by Carl G. Wetterlund, city.

Police estimated damage to the Ernst car at $100, to Wetterlund's, at $175.

No tags were issued in any of the above cases.

Christmas Seals Go out Next Week

Proceeds Will Finance Drive on Tuberculosis

In this country and in Minnesota, about one-fifth of the population is infected with the tuberculosis germ, said Dr. Herman Kleinman, chief of the section on chronic diseases, state department of health, and president of the state Christmas Seal organization. It is from this group that 75 per cent of the new cases of the future will come, he said.

To eradicate this communicable disease is the goal of the Christmas Seal organization, which on Nov. 13 will open its 55th annual campaign for funds to fight tuberculosis and related respiratory diseases.

Approximately 1,000,000 Christmas Seal letters urging Minnesotans to buy and use the enclosed "Fight TB" seals will be delivered next week to homes throughout the state.

"When you buy these health seals, you are helping to pay for almost 300,000 tuberculin tests and 140,000 chest x-rays that search out hidden tuberculosis each year in Minnesota," said Dr. Kleinman. "You are paying also for research into better ways to detect and treat TB.

Make-it-with-wool Contest Nov. 25 at City Auditorium

District Event Slated Here; November 15 Is Deadline for Entries

There is still time to get an entry in for the Make-It-Yourself-with-Wool Contest. It is an excellent way for girls taking home economics in high school and college to model their garments, says Mrs. Milford Peterson of Crookston, district director.

The District I contest will be held at the city Auditorium in Thief River Falls, Saturday, November 25.

To date, the North Dakota State University will send five contestants; Concordia college, 1; Moorhead State College, 2; University of North Dakota 1; and Bemidji State Teachers College, 1.

These girls and others will compete in the senior division.

In the Junior division, Crookston High School will have four contestants; Fisher-12; Gary 15; Oklee 12; Sacred Heart, East Grand Forks 2; Williams 5; and others from Bemidji, Clearbrook, Hendrum, Ada, Waubun, Argyle, Warren, Roseau, Greenbush, Thief River Falls, Humbolt, and Lancaster.

The adults are busy, too, and entries have been received from Pennington and Beltrami counties.

Entries are due November 15, with the district director, Mrs G Milford Peterson, 216 So. Minnesota, Crookston.

Besides the trip to the state contest, December 7 and 8, for the junior, senior and adult winners, many prizes are available, including Pendelton skirt lengths.

August Traffic in State up Slightly from 1960 Figure

Only a slight variation of traffic in excess of the 1960 figure for the same month was recorded for August by the 26 automatic traffic recorders placed at as many locations on rural trunk highways throughout the state by the Minnesota highway traffic engineering section.

There were a few exceptions noted. The detour west of Glencoe on U. S. 212 was the cause of a sliding decrease in the traffic tally at Station 198, west of Sacred Heart Another decrease found on T. H. 53 south of Eveleth was due to construction work in the area. Apparent increases at other stations were explained by abnormally low travel in those sections in 1960.

K. Lindberg Slayer Loses in Attempt to Obtain Freedom

Federal Judge Wednesday Rules James Taylor Must Serve His Life Sentence

Federal Judge Edward J. Devitt ruled in Minneapolis Wednesday, in effect, that James P. Taylor will have to serve a life sentence for the kidnap-murder of Kenneth E. Lindberg, cashier of the Northern State bank of this city in 1955.

In a 12-page written opinion, Devitt denied Taylor's claim that he was mentally incompetent in 1956 when Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye accepted his guilty plea to murder and imposed sentence.

Taylor had admitted he robbed the Thief River Falls bank of more than $15,000 in cash and travelers checks, killed Lindberg, 42, and buried his body in a woods south of St. Cloud, Minn.

Three years after he was sentenced Taylor, 38, sought to have the sentence set aside. Nordbye denied his motion for a new trial and Taylor appealed to the circuit court at St. Louis, Mo. The circuit court ordered a competency hearing, which was held before Devitt last July.

Taylor has been serving the sentence in a government hospital-prison at Springfield, Mo.

Crookston Store Owner Is Robbed by Masked Bandit

A holdup man got away with between $150 and $200 in an armed robbery of a neighborhood grocery in Crookston late Wednesday, according to Crookston Police Chief Harry Dillabaugh.

The R & M Grocery on Spendley st. was held up at 5:50 p. m. Wednesday by a man believed to be between 20 and 30 years old, although the bandit kept his features mostly covered so the grocer, Ray Marquardt, did not get a good look.

Marquardt told police the man entered the store and announced, "This is a stickup," while holding his hand in his pocket with what looked like a gun barrel protruding. Marquardt handed over the cash, which was in small bills up to $20 denomination.

Crookston police are looking for a red and white Nash Metropolitan automobile in connection with the robbery. It is believed to be the car which went by the store several times just before the holdup and is believed to be occupied by two men.

The car carries license number 6V-2378, which plates were stolen from a car near Staples earlier, Dillabaugh said.

Rep. Langen Will Speak at Stephen Saturday Evening

A report to the people of Northwestern Minnesota on the first session of the 87th congress will be made by Rep. Odin Langen at a public meeting at Stephen Saturday, November 18. The meeting will be held at the American Legion hall at 8 p. m. His talk will be followed by a question and answer period.

This will be one of Rep. Langen's few appearances in this corner of the state during the interval between sessions of the Congress.

Residents from Marshall, Kittson, and Roseau counties are particularly invited to the meeting with others just as welcome. The evening will close with a coffee hour.

Keeping Score with "Huck" Olson

Roy and the Moose

LeRoy (Slippery) Shetler, perhaps the city's most enthusiastic and experienced big-game hunter and fisherman, returned last week from another successful moose-hunting expedition into the Lac Seul area of Ontario. The three-man party—Roy, Tony Burkol of Greenbush, and Trygve Hetland of Eau Claire, Wis.—filled their moose limit, getting three bulls.

While the shooting of the moose was the purpose of the trip, it was the experiences that occurred on the trip that provided most of the excitement.

First, Burkol, who flew into the Lac Seul base camp with his pontoon-equipped plane, failed to file a flight plan when he reported to customs at Oak Island, and he was arrested and assessed a nominal fine by the wardens at Lac Seul.

Roy and Tryg drove up to the base camp by car, and brought along Roy's big outboard boat rig. The boat was anchored in the bay, and used as a storage place for the moose. On one trip, in bringing moose quarters in from the outlying hunting camp, Burkol taxied in too close to the boat and shattered the boat's windshield.

But it was on the trip out that the troubles began to mount. With the boat and trailer ladened by the weight of three moose, Roy's car, pulling heavily on the Red Lake road, burned out a pair of generators. It was fortunate that replacements were secured at Dryden. And when they were about twenty-five miles from the Trans-Canada highway, a wheel-bearing on the trailer went out. A telephone call to Winnipeg obtained results, and another wheel was shipped out. This occasioned a delay of a day or two.

And then some anxious moments were had when it was discovered that Tryg had lost his license, and that his moose, which had been brought into a locker plant for processing, failed to carry a transportation tag. Nothing but worry and trouble.

And back here in town, Roy's wife Dorothy, becoming alarmed when the party was two days late in returning, notified the Canadian Mounted Police, and a search was started. Roy and Tryg were easily found as they were side-tracked on the Red Lake road, and they were given assistance by the "mounties".

It marks the third successive year that Roy has been moose hunting in the Ontario bush. When he made his first trip he stated that a hunter was entitled to one moose hunting trip in a lifetime. He hasn't missed a trip since, and, as he says "It gets in your blood". He'll perhaps make another trip next season.

Watch the Vikings.

The Ada Vikings, that is. The Ada football team concluded an unbeaten and untied season last week, winning the Pine-to-Prairie football conference title. And the end of Ada's athletic championship hopes are not yet in sight, for the Vikings will be a power in district and regional basketball and baseball.

That the Vikings expect to make a strong bid for the Region Eight basketball crown is indicated by the fact that Ada has scheduled a game with the defending champion Bemidji Lumberjacks. The experience to be gained by playing the well-poised Bemidji squad will prove invaluable. And of course coach Bun Furtier of the Jacks is anxious to play Ada, too, for he and his players will benefit from a game with a top rival.

All the starters from last year's Ada basketball team—forwards Jim Hennen and Herb Hasz, center Bob Drevlow, and guards Don and Dean Bowyer—are returning for this season's play. And in addition, such front-line reserves as Ed Skalsky and Dave Gerjets are available. It's a veteran squad.

A Rumor

A rumor, well-founded, is being circulated that one of the schools in the five-team Northwest football conference (a school with perhaps the smallest enrollment) expressed a desire to withdraw from the league at the meeting held last week.

The withdrawal was not expressed in a formal statement, and it is hoped that the school's athletic staff will reconsider their request. The school's head football coach stated that his squad was at a considerable disadvantage in playing such teams as Bemidji and Thief River Falls, with the Jacks and the Prowlers having "big school" ratings in enrollment.

Well, a big enrollment isn't always a guarantee of first-rate athletic teams. Team and school spirit is one of the requisites to athletic greatness, and the school requesting withdrawal has always been noted for its high-spirited teams.

Social Item

Interested spectators at Saturday afternoon's Minnesota vs. Michigan State football game in Minneapolis were Phil LeGault of Gladstone, Mich., and Bismarck, N. D. and Wally Kinghorn of North Labree Ave.

It is probable that Phil, because of his intense patriotism for Michigan in athletics, wagered and lost a bundle on the Spartans.

Plummer Seeking Fund for Football under Lights in '62

Plan for Installation of Lights Formerly Used by Lincoln High School Here

In order to play night football games so that parents of players and other adults can witness the contests, the Plummer community is attempting to raise at least $1,000 for purchase of lights. Included in the project is landscaping of the football field so that it will always be comparatively dry and playable, according to George Glum, Plummer superintendent of schools and head of the fund-raising project.

Arrangements have been made for purchase of 32 football lights and eight poles as well as other equipment from the old field at Thief River Falls. All work is to be accomplished through subscription and donation with all individuals who contribute five dollars or more to receive a complimentary pass for the five home football games in 1962.

Plans for the field include ditch drainage so that cars may be able to park next to the field in wet weather without getting stuck—something which is not possible under existing conditions. Use of lights will also eliminate the need to close school each Friday afternoon during football season because of a game, Supt. Glum said.

All of the work on the project is to be done by voluntary help. Many of the Plummer area residents, business places and organizations have already donated as much as $50 toward the project. Several others have contributed dirt for fill, time, equipment and other assistance. Other fund-raising projects planned are basketball games among several different groups during the winter.

Working in the organization are are Howard Emerson, general sales and work with the students; Russell Pahlen, landscaping; Mark Parenteau, sales in the Brooks area; Fritz Martell, southwest district; Leo Eskell, northeast district; Merle Gustafson, northwest district; Roger Howard, western district; Ernest Pederson, Plummer business section; Jesse DuChamp, city in general; and Pony Toulouse, general sales at large.

It is hoped that the money needed can be raised by spring so that work can be done next summer in preparation for the 1962 football season.

9th District Federal Reserve Bank Notes Business Trend Is up

Summer drouth conditions failed to halt the forward movement of Ninth district economy during September, the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis reported in its Monthly Review this week.

Personal income in the district continued to exceed year-earlier levels at the rate of more than 3 per cent, nearly the same as for the country as a whole, the bank said.

Employment in September in all industries except construction, mining and transportation was up, although preliminary estimates by the bank show that employment is still behind pre-recession levels.

Iron ore shipments from the Lake Superior region continued sluggishly, and employment in the mining industry remained at a low level the Federal Reserve reports.

Total district crop production was off 25 percent, and the August cash farm income figures registered a 10 percent decline from a year earlier. The effect of the drouth on farm incomes will continue to be felt for some time, the bank said.

No new surge of activity in the construction industry is expected before winter weather slows building. Home building has been in the doldrums, although the bank noted that mortgage credit generally has been available.

A survey conducted recently by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis indicates a slight increase in housing prices in the greater Minneapolis area during the first half of 1961. The average price for new homes in the area actually declined slightly in the first half of the year, from $17,300, the average price during the latter half of 1960, to $17,000. Building costs, however, have risen, and when the price of new houses is deflated by the increase in costs, the average price has risen by approximately $300 over a two and a half year period beginning in 1958.

Real estate men in the greater Minneapolis area also report a firming of prices and a rise in sales on used houses during the first half of 1961, while the Federal Housing Administration office has received more applications for mortgage insurance on used houses.

Banking in the district showed a trend toward increased liquidity during the third quarter of the year. Bank loans declined noticeably at both city and country banks, while deposits are at an all time high, the bank said.

4,890,000 Acres Owned by State

Land Is Administered by Conservation Dept.

The latest five-year inventory of state-owned land shows that there are 4,890,178 acres of state land owned or administered by the Minnesota conservation department.

A report by the department's forestry division says this figure represents a gain of nearly 140,000 acres from the inventory taken five years ago. The increase is largely from transfers of federal and county lands to state ownership and from purchase of lands for state forest and wildlife management purposes.

The total volume of all-growing timber has increased from 16 million cords in 1954 to 18 million cords.

Approximately 200,000 cords were lost annually during the past five year period. Of these losses, 66 per cent were due to insects and disease, 23 per cent to wind and about 5 per cent to being flooded out from beaver dams. Only .8 per cent of the total losses were from fire.

Acreage in need of forest development work had decreased from 420,000 acres to 354,000 acres. Natural reproduction has accounted for the bulk of the decrease in acres needing development work. Unfortunately this reproduction has not always been of the species most desired by forest product industries.

Tree planting activity has risen from 900 acres annually five years ago up to 3,500 acres annually during the last five year period.

Although this indicates that progress has been made in the planting program, forestry director E. L. Lawson says in the report that even greater progress must be made if necessary planting is to be of time.

Note Veterans Day, President Asks

Kennedy to Speak Nov. 11 at Arlington Cemetery

Americans are urged to take an active part in Veterans Day Ceremonies, November 11, "to demonstrate to the world this country's determination to maintain peace."

John S. Gleason, Jr., administrator of veterans affairs and chairman of the Veterans Day national committee, said that President Kennedy has proclaimed November 11 as a day dedicated to the cause of world peace. The president will deliver an address on Veterans Day at Arlington National Cemetery and lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

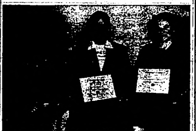
In his proclamation, Mr. Kennedy called for observances expressing "our people's desire for peace and their gratitude to our veterans who have served and sacrificed to attain it."

The President said that by taking inspiration from "our dedication to peace in the past, we can face with renewed vigor the difficult task of maintaining it in the present and in the future."

Mr. Gleason said Veterans Day is an opportunity for the entire nation to demonstrate that "one of America's greatest resources is her more than 22,000,000 former soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen."

He added that "in these troubled times, it is fitting that November 11 should be marked by thanksgiving, prayer and ceremonies to encourage peace among nations."

ELECTRIC awards at the Pennington county 4-H achievement banquet were presented to the above winners by Edwin Etterman, office manager of Red Lake Electric Cooperative. Winners were Peder Furuseth, City View 4-H club, and Nelda Lea Nelson, Smiley 4-H club. Each has carried the electricity project two years and exhibited at the county fair. Peder, gaining a blue ribbon and Nelda having a grand champion demonstration.



AWARDS for several phases of 4-H club work are included in the above photo. Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, adult leader of Deer Park 4-H club, accepted the trophy for record completion of the club this year. James Muzzy, former member of the Steiner 4-H club, and Mrs. Paul Furuseth (right), former member of the Norden 4-H club, were given alumni awards.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

A contributor to your "Public Opinion" column last Thursday suggested that the school library be open two hours an evening making it unnecessary to enlarge our public library. The man who wrote this article perhaps forgot that adults read too, and there are thousands of adult books that would not be found in a school library. The Minnesota State Dept. of Education has carefully selected 10,000 books recommended for school libraries and these are books for teen agers or younger—not adults.

Our public library is the most used asset in Thief River Falls. There are and always will be those who are opposed to books because some books raise questions in our minds and make us think. These non-readers and book burners do not like to have their preconceived ideas upset by reading a book. In the dark ages, knowledge was forbidden and our latest example of book burning was by Adolph Hitler. People are against books for different reasons—because of a desire to be a self-appointed censor, because of a sterilized mind, or because of a wish to hold back knowledge.

Our public library has encyclopedia sets that would cost $300,000 if every family in town with school children were to buy them. This town spends at least three-quarters of a million dollars a year at the municipal Liquor Store, at the Legion, V. F. W., Elks, or the Eagles. If we can spend $750,000 a year on liquor, we can afford $115,000 on expanding our best asset in Thief River Falls.

The Thursday article says the school library has a "competent librarian", (with which we agree), but because an inference is made we would like to point out that the public library has competent ones too.

Wouldn't it be better if we let just doctors practice medicine, and just English experts decide what are good books for adults and what are good books for school children. Let's not go back to the dark ages when it was considered dangerous for people to know or seek knowledge, and let's not limit the reading by adults to just those books the experts have considered proper for high school libraries.

Sincerely yours,
John X. Lynskey

"The more a man is educated, the more is it necessary, for the welfare of the State, to instruct him how to make a proper use of his talents. Education is like a double-edged sword. It may be turned to dangerous uses if it is not properly handled."

Education Week

All are in favor of education and education is a highly controversial subject, not because it is opposed, but rather because of wide differences of opinion as to how it can be improved.

In our generation we have seen the rise and fall of what was called progressive education. The rise has been generally attributed to the philosophy of Dewey, and the fall was no doubt due in part to the distortions of that philosophy by his extremist followers.

Progressive education appealed to the intellectuals who agreed that the child should be encouraged to follow his own bent. Unfortunately too often that encouragement led to a lack of restraint that resulted in a contempt for authority and produced too many youngsters who developed with no art, no skill, no religion and no friends.

The Russians' Sputnik resulted in a greatly increased interest in our schools and of course intensified the arguments over the good and the bad in our system of education. It is interesting to know that the arguments have been conducted by our leaders in the field of education who often disagree among themselves as to what are the right answers.

These arguments and the widespread interest they create have already resulted in a more sensible approach to the needs of our schools. The arguments reveal that our educators now are seriously concerned about the quality of the production of our schools and how that product compares with the product of the schools of other countries.

An impartial report on our system of education by Martin Mayer deserves the attention of all who are interested in the problem. His book, "The Schools", recently published, is the result of a study extending over a period of 30 months in which he visited more than 1,000 classrooms in schools in many countries. He is a talented writer and the book sparkles with interesting observations and common sense conclusions.

> "The higher one's view of the human potential, the more one will dislike the schools as they actually exist. To measure the schools of any nation against standards of high civilization is to do them a great injustice.
> "The fact is that education does improve, slowly, discontinuously, over long periods of time. Ways are found to teach children material that their parents could not learn — and then, surprisingly, it becomes easy to teach this once-difficult material to the children's children. The process is cumulative, and can be reversed only by great natural disaster. It builds on teaching method, on the piecemeal discovery of specific procedures which reveal the world to the child in such a way that he can successfully employ his own powers of learning.
> "The forward motion is slow, and difficult to see over so short a time-span as a generation. But there is an unimaginable gap between today's high school senior and the learned men of the seventeenth century who could not multiply or divide, or the savants of the eighteenth century who were so grossly superstitious about the human body and its ailments.
> Though he is less informed about the languages, literature and history of the Mediterranean Basin, the college entrant of today knows more about the world at large and the forces that make it than highly educated people could claim to know as recently as the mid-nineteenth century. He may even know (though there is no guarantee of this, unless he went to an unusually good school) that he is very ignorant.
> "The accomplishment is that of the schools and the teachers who work in them. It is nowhere near large enough, of course — but teachers know that. Their drive to self improvement is endless, and sometimes successful. In a sense it is unfair for communities to send them questing for excellence. Excellence cannot be produced in the high schools any more than sanctity in the theological schools.
> "In another sense, however, society must ask the impossible of teachers. 'The pupil who is never required to do what he cannot do,' John Sturart Mill once wrote, 'never does what he can do.' The statement holds true for the teacher as well as the pupil. In their effort to do their work better than they think they can, people acquire competence; and excellence is nothing more than the most precious by-product in the large-scale production of competence."

Vote "No"

Once again we urge a "no" vote on the proposed bond issue for library expansion. We oppose the proposal because we believe there is a possibility of working the library expansion proposal into a community development plan that will qualify for federal aid.

We do not like federal aid, but if it is available then we should try to get our share of the benefits, as we will be forced to pay our share of the costs. We have seen millions of dollars whasted in our large cities under a slum clearance program. Congress, in its last session, made more millions available for urban development in small cities as well as large.

We think that program shows a shameful lack of fiscal responsibility at a time when expenditures for defense must be increased. But that is the situation.

If we spend $25 for urban development, under this new program, a federal agency may make available $75, and some of the grants that already have been allowed are much crazier than our need for expanded library facilities.

We may save ourselves a substantial number of local tax dollars if the library expansion is postponed. Here in Sleepy Hollow we may some day get a civic organization and a city government that will recognize the need for community planning and a community planning commission.

Vote "No."

The Important Consideration

Encouraging reports from Washington indicate that President Kennedy is becoming concerned about his spending program. He has given assurance that not all of the millions that were appropriated will be spent. Several specific programs that were approved by Congress have already been curtailed.

It is fair to assume that such a change in policy is being adopted in recognition of the fact that our national economy is not in the best of health and more deficit spending and continuing debt increases could be disastrous.

And why such a sudden recognition of this disagreeable fact? Probably it came as a result of Treasury Secretary C. Douglas Dillon's recent visit to Europe and his call on the European directors of the International Monetary Fund, requesting more support for the American dollar.

Foreigners have the privilege of converting American dollars to gold, a privilege that is denied to Americans. There are more American dollars scattered around the world than the American government has gold, and lack of confidence in the American dollar could result in a run on our gold supply.

In recent years we have lost several billion dollars worth of gold as a result of increased foreign demand. Earlier this year the demand increased steadily, causing serious concern, but this run ended with less than a one billion dollar loss. The next run might not end, and it was help in checking such a run, if it did get started, that Mr. Dillon was seeking when he called on the directors of the International Montetary Fund.

He returned to Washington with no specific assurance of assistance but with the advice that we should take immediate steps to put our house in order. The directors had talked to him as a disturbed father might talk to a prodigal son who was leaving home. It isn't pleasant to be told by a banker that your credit is not good. Generally such appraisals are correct. If they are accepted in the right spirit they may be beneficial.

The directors who told Mr. Dillion that we should put our house in order were men who had learned about such problems from personal experience in their own countries. They are men who have good records in restoring confidence in the German mark, the French franc, the Dutch guilder and the Italian lira. They know whereof they speak and they recognize our need for the same kind of medicine that restored, or is restoring them to health.

They know that these problems are not solved by any easy formula. We pay for our folly the hard way. We learn these things by experience and learing them from the experience of others is much less painful than learning them from our own experience. That of course requires wisdom and restraint.

President Kennedy may still prove himself to be a wise leader. A change in policy such as has been indicatd in recent weeks requires a great deal of courage. It will lose for him the support of some of his old friends but it also will make for him many new friends. It is the welfare of the country that is the important consideration.

Outmoded System

(Windsor, Ontario, Star)

Canadians and Americans are proud of their decimal system of coinage, much simplar to understand and to tally than the British system. Yet on this continent we are still using the British system of measurements based according to legend, on the length of a king's arm.

King Henry I, according to the legend, set the standard measurement of the yard as the distance between the end of his nose and the end of his thumb when his arm was outstretched. A more accurate standard has since been set, but the contradictions and confusions of the so-called English system of measurement still exist.

How many city people know the length of a rod? How many outside the confines of a race track know the length of a furlough? In the even more complicated field of volume measurement, who can define the difference between a cubic yard, a cord, and a bushel?

In contrast to the prosaic and methodical British, the flighty French use the metric system, a plain and simple plan of measuring weight, distance, volume and area on a decimal base. Outside of the English-speaking world, the metric system is firmly entrenched making for ease of communication over language barriers.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce has taken the lead in asking for a study of the possibilities of Canada adopting the metric system. Replies to questionnaires now being sent out by the Chamber should add convincing weight to the argument that Canada should change over to the progressive and reasonbale metric sytem.—Windsor (Ontario Star

Makes A "Lot" of Sense

The other day I was driving by Slim Thomas' used car lot, when I noticed he'd put up a big neon sign. Trouble was, one of the letters was upside down. So I drove in. "Hey, Slim," I said, "that's a nice new sign—but one of the letters is wrong-side up!"

"Heck, I know that," laughs Slim. "Matter of fact, I had it made that way deliberate. Figured folks were bound to come in to tell me about it—and it works! I must get four or five new prospects a day."

Then he grins down at me. "By the way, Joe," he says, "I could give you a pretty good deal on that car of yours . . ."

From where I sit, "look before you leap" is especially true whenever you start to give advice. Unlike Slim, some folks may not welcome your suggestion—especially about personal tastes! Whether your neighbor takes coffee with his meals, or prefers a glass of beer—that's really his own "business." Giving folks credit for knowing their minds is a good way of keeping friendships "right-side up."

THE ANDERSEN LETTER

from

Governor Elmer L. Andersen

Minnesota Welcomes New Citizens

On Sunday, October 29, Mrs. Andersen and I had an afternoon coffee party in the Governor's reception room in the Capitol, for a group of recently naturalized citizens. It was a heart warming experience.

Nearly everyone we invited came. We told them to bring their families. They did, some with five to six children. They came from many parts of the state and represented many nationalities. But they all were alike in intense pride in their newly won citizenship and deep gratitude toward their new country.

One fine old lady started to tell of her hardships in the old country, how thankful she was for the protection of the United States, and then tears rolled down her cheeks.

How we wished everyone in Minnesota could have been with us! It is so easy to take the privileges of our citizenship and the blessings of this rich land of ours for granted. These new citizens do not. They have recent experience for comparison. They're so happy to be here and profoundly thankful for citizenship.

We were very much impressed with them. I asked many about their occupations—one was a research chemist at Minnesota Mining; a fine looking woman was translating Russian scientific journals ("to keep track of what those devils are up to") at Minneapolis Honeywell; another was the wife of a Brown County farmer, and there was a bricklayer.

We toured the Capitol, stopping in the Senate and House Chambers as well as the Supreme Court wing and I gave a brief explanation of governmental operations in Minnesota.

I told them there was a custom in many of their native lands that I wished they would encourage in Minnesota—flag flying. I urged them to get a state flag as well as an American flag and fly them both frequently. By their example they could help encourage this fine practice.

We had picked October 29 for this party because this was the closest available date to the Statue of Liberty anniversary. It was 75 years ago October 28 that this famous landmark was completed. Here again a great tradition can be revived—to take note of the anniversary of a great expression of love and friendship of the French people for us and a symbol of America as the land of hope and opportunity.

Mrs. Andersen and I were told this was the first Governor's reception for new citizens that had ever been held. We were so happy with the result that we hope it can be repeated.

RE-ELECT
E. B. Benson
ALDERMAN FIRST WARD
Resident of Thief River Falls 23 years
Loral taxpayer for 22 years
Former manager of the local J. C. Penney store for 20 years

As your Alderman I am opposed to any indiscriminate and unnecessary spending of the taxpayer's money.

I feel that taxes in our city are high and every effort should be made to curb any further increase.

Since becoming a resident of our city I have taken an active part in many worthwhile community efforts. I served six years on the Community Chest board, two years as chairman. I have also served as general P.T.A. chairman and on the Boy Scout committee.

For several years I served on the local Music & Concert association including one year as president.

As a long-time member of the local Rotary club I have also been president of that organization.

For two years I was president of the Chamber of Commerce and was recently given an honorary life membership in the Chamber.

Nine years of service were given as a trustee of Trinity Lutheran Church.

In a free society it is your civic duty and obligation to go to the polls and VOTE
Your Vote in the November 7, 1961 City Election will be appreciated

NOW IS THE HOUR—almost—when city residents will go to the polls to vote in the city election. Polls are open Tuesday from 7 a. m. to 8 p.m. with five polling places in the city. If the weather is favorable, city officials are hoping for a record turn-out of people casting their ballots.

We are constantly told that it is our privilege, our duty, our obligation, our responsibility to vote. This creates a false impression. It is YOUR privilege, YOUR duty, YOUR obligation and YOUR responsibility. And as much as anyone resents somebody else telling him what he should or shouldn't do, there is a certain amount of self-satisfaction to be derived from knowing that you had something to do with the results of a campaign.

This will be an interesting election. For all but two positions there will be competing candidates. This is good. This is an examination of community health. It provides voters with a choice and an opportunity to take sides, to discuss issues and merits of candidates. It stimulates civic interest.

Not among the least items to receive consideration will be the issue of whether or not the city should issue bonds in an amount not to exceed $115,000 for an addition and remodeling for Carnegie Public library. Interest in this phase of the election should increase the number of voters who cast their ballots.

With a number of good candidates running for election this year, I am going to predict that following the election the city will have four new officers. Two are assured—these being the city treasurer post where Mrs. Hazel C. Olson has retired and third ward alderman where Olaf Dahlen has declined reelection. The other two changes are expected among the races for aldermen. I anticipate a total vote of 2,326 ballots cast.

The library bond issue presents possibility for another prediction. It is my guess that a number of voters will not ballot on the issue. I expect about 1,800 ballots to be cast on the issue which should carry by about 200 votes. Can't wait until tomorrow night to see how far off base my predictions are.

My eldest daughter Lori, almost three, refers to everything soft and fuzzy as "kitty", the same word used by her younger sister Jeri. After watching grandpa clean one of last weekend's pheasants, she raced wide-eyed over to my wife and exclaimed, "Mommy, grandpa took the kitty off the pheasant and there's CHICKEN inside."

Thursday's snowfall was something expected if not especially appreciated. But isn't it strange that when the ground turns white the trees don't seem so bare, and the lights seem so much brighter, your house seems so much more like a home and television programs suddenly are a great deal better?

SPEAKING OF SNOW

Fluffy flakes of winter white
Fall floating faintly down.
They seem suspended in the air
But soon convert the ground
To winter's hues.

Dainty swirls of spinning flakes
Form fast and disappear
As though afraid to be observed.
It seems their presence here
Casts dismal views.

Consider things that snowfall brings—
Thoughts based on discontent
With mittens, scarves and balky cars
And winter weather spent
In overshoes.

Finance Official and Quartet Are on Lions Program

Reassembling of Former Lions Quartet Features Club Session Wednesday

The main portion of the program at the Lions club meeting Wednesday noon was provided by Donald R. Schmidt, executive secretary of the Minnesota Consumer Finance association, who described the functions and services rendered by finance companies in the small-loan field. He also presented a cartoon film dealing with the subject.

Schmidt, who was introduced by Allen Torkelson, manager of Nides Finance Co., told of the passage of the Minnesota small loan act in 1939, and amendments made 20 years later. Making loans of not more than $600, they perform a valuable service and their charges are not unreasonable, he stated.

An appreciated portion of the program included some close harmony provided by the old Lions quartet, a reunion of which was made possible by the recent return from Africa of Dr. Joseph Norquist. Other members of the group are Bryant Ulseth, Herb Dill and Wendell Olson.

Jim Parkins, Lions international counselor, reported on the organization of a new Lions club at Goodridge, details of which are given in a separate article in the Times today.

J. M. Roche, Pennington county savings bond chairman, stated that this county now ranks sixth among Minnesota counties in quota attainment, and he expressed the hope that Pennington would exceed its goal by 25 per cent by the end of the year.

State Co-op Assn. Meets in St. Paul

Gunsten Skomedal Again Named State Director

The Minnesota Association of Cooperatives wrapped up its 16th annual meeting earlier this week with a round of resolutions on major issues which had been the subject of speakers and discussion groups during the two-day event.

One resolution passed by the 400 delegates at the St. Paul meeting called for repeal of Minnesota's butterfat overrun law, which presently allows milk plants to sell more butterfat than recorded as received. The resolution asked that overrun be removed from the law as a basis for regulation of milk plants, that a new basis for regulation be established, and that the commissioner of agriculture be provided with funds for developing new accounting and control procedures in dairy law enforcement.

Gunsten Skomedal of Thief River Falls was re-elected to represent District 7 on the state board of directors.

A panel of experts, led by S. T. Coulter, head of the University Department of Dairy Industries, discussed the overrun law Monday.

Women's Bowling Assn. Adopts Its New Constitution

Thief River Falls Women's Bowling association held its regular meeting Thursday evening, October 26, in the Rex cafe basement meeting room. Eleven members and officers were present to write the constitution and by-laws of the association.

An addition to the new constitution requires a quorum of 25 members to be present to hold a meeting of the women's group. It was also concluded the executive board of the city association consist of the city association officers and the four league presidents or a duly authorized representative. Members adopted previous rules and bylaws completing the constitution.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served.

19 Awarded to Students at 'U' Agricultural College

"The Minnesota Bankers Association and bankers throughout the state are making a tremendous contribution to education in Minnesota", according to Dean Keith N. McFarland, Director of Resident Instruction at the University of Minnesota's Institute of Agriculture in St. Paul. "In providing scholarships to promising farm youth to attend the College of Agriculture, the state bankers' association and county groups in Minnesota perform a great service for agriculture and the state's economy, and we at the University appreciate their efforts in this program."

Nineteen boys are being sponsored this year by their county bankers associations in the program administered by the Minnesota Bankers Association. Selection of each county winner is made by a committee comprised of the county agent, vo-ag instructors and heads of schools in the county.

The award is competitive and usually one $400 scholarship is awarded per county.

CHAMBER L.I.F.E.

Living-Industry-Farming-Education

By Rolly Larson
Manager Chamber of Commerce

This week, being American Education Week, deserves some mention. Too often too many of us take too much for granted. We are inclined to believe that we're very independent in our own little shell and that mutual interdependence is some far-removed and remote topic of discussion.

How wrong we are for letting ourselves believe this. Almost everything we are, everything we do or enjoy, is a result of progress made through education. The factual realization that we owe what we are to the field of education should be a daily appreciation.

So it is proper that we do at least set aside one week each year for openly publicizing, explaining, and promoting our American Educational system. You will notice that a host of educational activities are being conducted in Thief River Falls this week for those reasons.

One point that should be emphasized is that to further develop this country and, furthermore, to increase the rate of development in this country, our high quality of educational training must not only be maintained but it must also be improved. The future of this nation rests on the shoulders of the young people now at hand and in the generations yet to be born.

Therefore, to perpetuate and improve upon our educational system, it is essential that those presently filling positions of leadership and laymen responsibility alike, within every field of endeavor, harbor a deep sense of appreciation for and dedication to the field of education. It is not enough to merely have devoted people within the education profession itself. Every segment of our citizenry must nurture an awareness of educational needs if this country is to meet the challenges of the times.

You and I do owe what we are to the knowledge that we have gained along the way. We are extremely interdependent with many, many facets of our environment, including the field of education. The same will hold true for those who follow us. The opportunities that they will have depends largely upon how much foresight you and I can implement now.

Thief River Falls, here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, will be a growing educational center for many years to come. Every citizen should face that fact as being a fact in order that objectively planned progress might be realized. At any rate, I hope that each of us gives this matter some thought during this American Education Week.

The Library Corner

by Eleanor Olson

New books at the library are as varied as the interests of its users. H. Allen Smith's new book "How to Write Without Knowing Nothing" may not top the 19 other volumes of literary fun and frolic that he has written in the past, but it is light, witty and good for many chuckles. It is mostly about words, their use and misuse. But also included are several lighthearted essays on writing and the trial and tribulation of a writer. Equally amusing are the histories of stories and phrases attributed to mous sources which did not originate with them at all. Phrases like Horace Greeley's "Go West, young man, go west" and Winston Churchill's "blood, sweat and tears" will probably continue to be attributed to them despite Mr. Smith's revelations.

Theodore H. White has turned top-reporting ability to a review of the last presidential campaign in "The Making of The President 1960." While White's portraits of the men involved, particularly that of Richard Nixon, will not be universally accepted, the story of the behind-the-scenes managing, card-filing, telephoning, handshaking and promising necessary to secure delegate votes in convention and the citizens' ballots in November make extremely interesting reading. Seldom has the network of influences which make up the power of political machinery been more deftly analyzed. The candidates had not only to master the many facets of America's constantly changing scene, but view and balance them with the explosive happenings of Cuba, Vietnam, Taiwan and Russia. All these events make up the story of a grueling campaign which tested the candidates as grimly as any combatants in a duel of death.

Edward D. Radin's new story of "Lizzie Borden" is an ingenious exercise which in the end proves no more than all the other earlier writings about the dastardly deed immortalized by the little rhyme "Lizzie Borden took an ax, and gave her mother 40 whacks. When she saw what she had done, she gave her father 41." Mr. Radin, a crime writer, sets out to prove that Lizzie wasn't a sour old maid, but loved her father, the neighborhood kids and called her stepmother "Mama." Mr. Radin leaves a few gaping loopholes in his defense, but the reading is no less entertaining.

"Chickamauga" by Glenn Tucker is the tale of one of the Civil War's most bloody but most indecisive battles. William S. Rosecrans commanding the Union Forces ran off to Chattanooga before the action ended, having lost his nerve; Braxton Bragg, the Confederate Commander, failed to realize his advantage and didn't follow up his victory. The casualties totaled 28,400 in dead and wounded. The only outstanding asset was the reputation gained by George H. Thomas, who won the nickname of "The Rock of Chickamauga". Eventually he was the man in command at Nashville, the battle which finished off the Confederate army in the west. Mr. Tucker is a military historian of repute, but even he has trouble making sense out of a battle where sense seemed completely lacking.

Congratulations goes to all the 4-H boys and girls who received awards at the annual 4-H banquet last Wednesday. These awards were won by lots of hard work and patience of your parents. Those who didn't receive an award also have done an excellent job as a 4-H member too. You represent the green in the 4-H flag; nature's most common color, which in turn is symbolic of youth, life and growth.

With the cold nights here you wish to have the most warmth out of the least bulk and up keep of a blanket. Research by the University of Minnesota and South Dakota college home economists shows that blankets of all-wool or of 100 percent Acrilan acrylic or Orlon acrylic fiber are more satisfactory after laundering than fiber blends.

After 10 launderings, wool was the only fiber group that increased in thickness. The all-wool blankets were also the most resilient of all the blanket types. The quality of resilience — or ability to spring back to its original position — helps retain the fluffiness of the blanket. Since all-wool retained its resilience and thickness better than the other fibers after laundering, it ranked highest in warmth qualities, followed in order by Acrilan and Orlon.

Shrinkage in washing was the main limitation found for wool as a fiber for blankets. The 100 per cent acrylic (Acrilan and Orlon) blankets did not shrink. Recently, however, wool blankets commercially treated against shrinkage during laundering have become available on the market.

Rayon blends were soft and fluffy when new but reacted poorly to laundering. The blankets containing rayon were much less expensive than blankets of the other fibers.

When washing permanent pleats, always let them drip-dry. Hang the skirt on a clip hanger and run your hand down along the pleats, draping them into place.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by visiting or writing Mr. Leo L. Haley, VA contact representative, located in Room 210 in the Grand Forks post office building.

Q—Following World War II, I filed a claim for disability resulting from a back injury incurred in service. The claim was not allowed then because no record could be found to show that I had been treated in the service for a back injury. Now, after 16 years, a record of my service hospitalization for the back injury has been found. Will my claim be paid retroactively back to the date I filed it?

A—It may be paid retroactively if the claim is allowed. The service connection would be established by the record of your treatment in the service. Your disability will have to be adjudged at least 10 per cent in order to be compensable. And it will have to be shown to exist still and to have existed during the past 16 years. If you have been hospitalized or treated by a physician for your back injury during this period, such evidence will support your claim that the disability has been continuous.

Q—Since I bought a home with a GI loan, my family has increased. I have used my GI loan rights, but is there any way I can get a supplemental GI loan for remodeling my home to provide additional living quarters?

A—You may get the loan guaranteed by the VA; if the holder of your present mortgage is willing to make the supplemental loan. Eligible veterans may get VA guaranteed supplemental loans for alterations, repairs, or improvements needed to maintain their property or to substantially improve the liveability of their home.

Q—I understand it is necessary to direct GI insurance to the proper insurance office. How many VA insurance offices still exist?

A—There are three insurance offices: the Federal Center in Denver, Colorado; the VA Center in St. Paul, Minnesota; and the VA District Office in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Q—Approximately how many widows of Confederate War veterans are still living?

A—There were approximately 1,200 Confederate widows on VA rolls in June, 1961.

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

Feeding a dairy herd in drylot works out well for Henry Wesley, a cooperator with the Steele county SCD. In speaking of his all-tillable farm and describing his feeding methods and farm soil conservation plan to Orville Risser, SCS work unit conservationist at Owatonna, Wesley says: "I gain an extra 20 acres by keeping my cows in drylot. My fields aren't trampled during wet periods and I notice an improvement in soil tilth."

Farmers planning their farmstead shelterbelt plantings for the spring of 1962 who are ordering their trees now may use some design information from Thor K. Bergh, SCS woodland conservationist at St. Cloud. Bergh says when it's necessary to deviate from Minnesota standard shelterbelts the planting should include a dense inside planting, preferably evergreens; a dense outside planting of shrubs; and higher growing trees in the middle. "These three elements should be present whether you design a 3-row or a 10-row shelterbelt;" the woodland conservationist concludes.

Diversion terraces built by Ernest Madsen on his farm near Tyler, have reduced the cost of operation of his pump drainage system. The terraces were designed at the time the pumping plant was installed and divert much of the runoff water from the area. "This not only holds down the cost of operation, but also reduced the original cost of the system," says Howard Stevermer, SCS work unit conservationist at Ivanhoe.

"Operating costs are cut but yields stay high with minimum tillage" is the report from Gordon Lottman, cooperator with the Kandiyohi County SCD. This is the fourth year he has used wheel-track planting. Gene Miller, SCS work unit conservationist at Willmar, says that heavy, wet soils make up some of Lottman's fields. Besides cutting operating costs, wheel-track planting leaves the surface rough and the soil loose. This gives rain a chance to soak in rather than wash rich topsoil away.

'U' M Economists View Outlook as to Prices of '62 Farm Products

Here's a look at the outlook for important Minnesota farm enterprises in 1962, as reported by K. E. Egertson and J. L. App, University of Minnesota extension economists.

Their summary of a series of outlook sheets titled "What's Ahead for Minnesota Farmers" appears in the current edition of Minnesota Farm Business Notes, an Agricultural Extension Service publication.

BEEF—In view of early October feeder cattle prices, look for fair to average beef cattle prices for the 1962 feeding period. Only a small increase in market supplies of feeders is expected. Matched with increased demand for beef, this should lead to higher prices for fed cattle.

HOGS—Hog production in the U. S. is increasing moderately. Farrowings should increase by 3 to 6 percent during the fall of 1961 and spring of 1962. This will mean having heavier slaughter in 1962, accompanied by somewhat lower prices than in 1962. Hog prices and profit prospects still look favorable for the first three quarters of 1962.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—With lower prices paid for feeder lambs this fall and expected higher slaughter prices in 1962, lamb feeding operations are expected to show higher labor returns in 1962.

Sheep and lamb slaughter will be lighter in 1962 because of heavy slaughter in 1961 and only a moderate increase in the 1961 lamb crop. Native sheep flock enterprises should be more profitable in 1962.

DAIRY—Because consumption will not keep up with production, the dairy industry will continue to have surpluses. Dairy product prices will be strongly influenced by support levels announced next spring.

Total U. S. milk production in 1961 will exceed last year's output of 122.9 billion pounds. Milk production per cow increases.

FEED GRAINS—Feed grain supplies are expected to decrease 3 percent in 1961—after 7 years of expansion. Corn, sorghum, oat and barley production will be below 1960 levels. Price increases will likely be limited by Commodity Credit Corporation sales of corn and sorghum stocks.

SOYBEANS—Soybean production will reach a record high in 1961. Carryover supplies, lowest in recent years, will be built up. Support price for soybeans will prevent prices from dropping to 1960 levels during the fall, but the record crop will cause soybean meal prices to decrease during 1962.

EGGS—Laying flocks in the beginning of 1962 probably will be 5 to 6 percent larger than the same period in 1961. Egg prices received by producers will be below the 1960-61 laying year but still considerably above 1959 to 1960 levels.

TURKEYS—Look for fewer turkeys and some improvement in prices in 1962.

ATTENDANCE at the annual Pennington county 4-H banquet sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce—totaled approximately 500 at the local armory Wednesday evening. This picture shows part of the crowd which included club members, junior and adult leaders. Coast-to-Coast store in Thief River Falls made 4-H calendars available to each family represented at the banquet at which Claude Ebling of the Soo Line railroad was the main speaker. The table in the left and forground of the above photo is that of the Steiner 4-H club which received the Thief River Falls Times plaque for Club of the Year.

Turkey Outstanding Bargain in November

The makings for a festive holiday dinner appear on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's list of plentiful foods for November.

The familiar team of turkey and cranberries heads the list, reports Mrs. Eleanor Loomis, extension consumer marketing specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Turkey prices are at an all-time low. This year's crop, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Service, will be 26 percent larger than a year ago. A full range of sizes—to fit small as well as large families—will be available.

Cranberries—fresh, frozen and canned—will be plentiful. The forecast is for a harvest 15 percent above average.

A good protein buy, in addition to turkey, will be pork. Supplies of pork will be slightly larger than last year because of a 7 percent increase over the spring crop.

Smart shoppers will also want to check their markets for prices on dried pea beans. Home-baked beans are a favorite main dish in many homes and can be a real budget saver, according to Mrs. Loomis.

Good quality apples of many varieties are abundant. Mrs. Loomis recommends that shoppers select the variety according to use. All-purpose apples include Prairie Spy, Haralson, McIntosh, Jonathon, Golden Delicious & Wealthy varieties. Northwestern Greenings make excellent pies. Delicious and Fireside are best for eating fresh or for salads.

One of the best vegetable buys will be potatoes, from a large crop of high-quality tubers. Cabbage is another good buy to add to the shopping list.

Good news for holiday bakers is that this year's pecan crop will be unusually large and the almond harvest is expected to be second largest on record.

Also in abundance during November, will be vegetable fats and oils for pre-holiday baking.

County Board to Open Bridge Bids Tuesday

Routine Matters Were Disposed of at Meeting This Week

Routine matters occupied the attention of the Pennington county board at its regular November session Tuesday.

The board will meet again next Tuesday, November 14, to consider bids on the projected new bridge across Red Lake River at St. Hilaire. The state is acting as agent for the county in the letting.

County Auditor C. W. Rodekuhr was authorized Tuesday to reduce by $10,000 the county levy for the retirement of court house bonds, due to the fact that that amount is expected to be received during the year from Thief River Falls liquor dispensary earnings.

Following a hearing, the board granted a petition by residents of School District 1552 in Reiner township to dissolve the district and annex it to the Goodridge school district. The change will be effective July 1, 1962.

Arrangements were made at the meeting to appraise tax-forfeited lands in the county, about 40 tracts in all, which will be offered at the forfeited tax sale Friday December 15.

The board voted a tax levy of $47,200 for school tuition for districts not maintaining high schools, and it was estimated that the tax rate for this purpose will be about 57.7 mills.

Under a new state law effective at the start of 1962, it will be necessary for the county treasurer to mail out statements of real estate taxes, and the board voted additional clerk hire for this purpose.

Culkins Reminds Farmers of Wheat & Barley Appeals

Says Evidence on Yields Should Be Filed with ASC Office by November 18

Patrick W. Culkins, manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service office, announced today that producers of wheat or barley who can produce evidence that will substantiate yields on their 1959 and 1960 crops in excess of yields established for their farms under the 1962 wheat and barley programs are urged to contact the county ASCS office before Saturday, November 18, and file an appeal for an adjustment in the yields established on their farms.

Culkins pointed out that yields presently established on all barley and wheat farms in the county determine the rate per acre that cooperators will receive for participation in either of the 1962 programs.

He stated further that evidence acceptable for consideration must be in the nature of certified statements from the warehouseman, scale tickets, warehouse receipts or notarized statements from purchasers of the commodities. Wheat or barley used for seed or feed will not be considered as acceptable evidence.

The winning sales team included Arlene Joppru, Lorne Inman, Karen Kelly and Carol Groven. Arlene Joppru led all the salesmen by selling 101 boxes, and she won the top individual prize of a transistor radio. Lois Benson placed second and Lorne Inman third.

Legion and VFW Call on Public to Observe Veterans' Day Nov. 11

Veterans Day will be officially observed in Thief River Falls as elsewhere across the nation Saturday. The following statement, in observance of the national event, has been jointly issued by Loren Borsheim, commander of the local American Legion post, and Earl Gjernes, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in this city:

"With deep pride and an equally deep sense of responsibility, American veterans will once again lead the Nation in paying tribute to its defenders, past and present, on Veterans Day, Nov. 11, 1961.

"It is the veterans' fervent prayer that there will never be additions to their ranks by virtue of a future war. To that end, they now dedicate themselves to the task of fostering a great national resolve, a unity of purpose on the part of the American people, that will serve as a deterrent to any would—be aggressor.

"On this Veterans Day we should remember the deeds of those who have made gains for us and who have preserved liberty for us. It is well that we remember and give thanks. Then we should turn back to the responsibilities which face us now and in the future, as we labor to preserve and extend these gains.

"The battle for men's minds being waged between the conflicting ideologies of godless Communism and the forces of freedom is a continuing struggle. It is our resolve to win this battle. We can do so by making clear to the Kremlin that we have no intention of surrendering our basic principles of human dignity and individual freedom in the face of any threat."

Students totaling 138 from a number of northwestern Minnesota high schools took part in the American College Testing program held Saturday at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Small Crowd Hears Story of School Survey

Less than 150 persons turned out Monday evening to hear a review of the survey of educational needs for the community at Lincoln high school. Dr. Otto E. Domian, director of the Bureau of Field Studies at the College of Education, University of Minnesota, was the main speaker.

Condensed copies of the report have been prepared and circulated to all residents of the school district for which names could be obtained. Anyone who did not receive a copy may call the superintendent's office at Lincoln high school to obtain one of the reports.

Further discussion of the report and review of the educational situation of the district will take place at a meeting of the Citizen's Advisory Committee with the school board tonight at 7:30 p. m. in the home economics room at Lincoln high school.

Dr. Domian informed those present at the Monday evening session, just as he stated at a combined noon meeting of the local Lions and Rotary clubs, that the suggestions and ideas put forth in his report were entirely those of the bureau. "They are not merely a rubber stamp approval of what somebody else wants done," he said.

He cited the community for having a wide scope of educational activity, from kindergarten through the area vocational school, and stated that the Washington elementary school is a "model" educational facility. New Lincoln and the vocational school addition are also good facilities which yet afford a long period of use, the director added.

He then went on to outline the crowded conditions which exist and the poor condition of several school buildings presently being used. He referred to Knox and Northrop elementary schools as "showing age" and old Washington, now a part of the Lincoln building, as "a fire hazard to children and buildings to which it is attached." Old Lincoln is showing traces of age and must be remodeled or torn down in the near future, he said.

Oswald-Kjellberg Vows Spoken Oct. 28; Live Here

Baskets of white gladioli and salmon colored carnations and candelabra graced the altar of the Mission Covenant church of this city for the Saturday, October 28, wedding of Miss Ardelle Evonne Oswald of this city to John P. Kjellberg, also of this city. Rev. Walter Blackwood officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Oswald of rural Thief River Falls and the groom is the son of Mrs. Mable Kjellberg of Badger.

Traditional nuptial music was played at the organ by Mrs. Reuben Lockrem of this city. Other nuptial music was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Anderson of St. Vincent, singing, "Savior Like a Shepard Lead Us," and Lowell sang, "Together With Jesus," and the "Lord's Prayer," while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was gowned in a chapel length gown of all nylon with embroidered appliques of lace accenting the skirt which swept into a chapel train. Back interest was a large bow like the dress attached at the waistline. The fitted bodice featured a Sabrina neckline enhanced with sequins and pearls and long sleeves coming to a point at the wrist. Her fingertip veil trimmed with lace was caught on a crown of pearls and sequins. White Fuji mums, autumn roses and ivy foliage made up her cascading bridal bouquet. Her pearl earrings were a gift of the groom.

Attending as matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Rodney Twistol with Mrs. Darrel Rude and Mrs. Donald Wahlbeck, both of this city, as bridesmaids. The maid of honor was attired in a street length gown of silk organza over taffeta in tangerine color while the bridesmaids wore identical dresses in moss green and beige respectively. All wore shoes matching their gowns and pill box hats with short veils and matching gloves. The matron of honor carried a cascade style bouquet of tangerine carnations with white streamers while the bridesmaids carried cascade bouquets of large yellow mums and bronze pom poms with talismen streamers.

Miss Renne Marie Finstad was flower girl for her aunt and wore a tangerine silk organza over taffeta dress with matching hat, shoes and gloves like the matron of honor. She carried a cascade bouquet of salmon and white carnations with narrow white streamers.

Attending his brother as best man was Dwight Kjellberg of Badger, with Jim Kjellberg, of New Richmond, Wisc., also a brother, and Wayne Paulson of Grygla as attendants. All were white dinner jackets and salmon color boutonnieres. Rodney Twistol and Miles Thorson of this city were ushers and wore dark suits with white carnation boutonnieres.

Both mothers wore taupe brown dresses with taupe brown and black accessories and corsages of salmon and white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors for about 250 guests. A four tiered square wedding cake, decorated in fall colors with tangerine roses and greens and topped with a miniature lighted church centered the bridal table. It was cut by Mrs. Harold Solid of Superior, Wisc., and Mrs. Darrel Larson of Grand Forks. Pouring were Mrs. Miles Thorson of this city and Mrs. Lowell Anderson of St. Vincent.

Presiding at the gift table were Mrs. Donald Nomeland, sister of groom Helen Horgen and Grace Haugen all of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Wallace Lamb of Warren had charge of the guest book. Bridal table waitresses were Diane Solid of Superior, Wisc., and Cadace Hoglo of Thief River Falls. Other waitresses were Marlys Vogle of Thief River Falls, Delores Larson and Mrs. George Steinberg of Grand Forks. Assisting in the kitchen were Mmes. Elmer Kron, Alfred Rafteseth, Victor Ranstrom, Art Swenson and Albert Hellquist of Rosewood and Mrs. Emil Mellem of this city.

For their wedding trip to Winnipeg, the bride chose a travel dress of beige with green and brown accessories. They are now at home in this city.

The bride is a 1955 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed as a bookkeeper for Land O' Lakes Cry. in this city, while the groom attended Goodridge high school and is employed by Gamble Robinson.

Out of town guests attending the wedding came from Superior, Wis., New Richmond, Wisc., Moorhead and Drayton, N. D., Grand Forks, Warren, Lake Bronson.

MR. AND MRS. John Kjellberg are making their home in this city following their October 28 marriage at the Mission Covenant church here. Rev. Walter Blackwood officiated at the 7:30 p.m. double ring candlelight ceremony.

Offers Advice to Men Called into Service

Owners of homes financed by GI mortgage loans who enter military service may be aided by the provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act, John R. Parrish, director of the Veterans Administration center in Fargo, advised today.

This act makes it possible for the courts, upon proper application, to prevent foreclosure of a loan if the property was acquired prior to entry or reentry into active military service; and if the serviceman is unable to meet his payments on his loan due to a reduction in income because of military service.

Here's Mr. Parrish's advice to those entering service who may not be able to meet the entire amount of their home loan payments because of reduced income:

1. Upon receipt of notice to report for service, go or write to the holder of your mortgage (or the person to whom you make your payments), explain the situation, and make arrangements to pay as much as you can until you are released from service. A personal visit to the holder is desirable whenever possible.

2. The law does not give you the right to stop making payments while in military service; the portion of the payment which is postponed by agreement with the holder must be paid later, so arrange to pay all you can while in service.

3. The act is a "relief act." Don't expect the holder to agree to a reduction in your payments unless you are unable to make the full payments because of military service.

4. While in service, be sure to make any payments agreed to by you and your mortgage holder, and see him immediately following discharge to make arrangements for making up the back payments.

5. Keep the holder of your mortgage (or his agent) informed of changes in your military status affecting your ability to pay.

6. It is not necessary that you see the VA about your loan (unless it is a direct home loan made to you by the VA), Mr. Parrish said. However, if you need assistance or advice, visit or write the loan guaranty officer at the VA regional office that processed your loan.

Give him your loan number; your full name and present mailing address; your rank and military service unit; the address of your property; and the name and address of your lender or its agent to whom you make your payments.

Small Gathering Hears Report on TRF School Study

eral problems in providing adequate education to youngsters of the district, Dr. Domian stated. Classes are larger than proper size for adequate teaching, rental space is needed to care for additional students, some teachers have no room to call their own and so can not use display material to help hold student interest and there is a large range in age of students currently at Lincoln and the adjoining area vocational school.

A population canvass made in connection with the survey indicates that more students will be enrolled in Thief River Falls schools in the years immediately ahead. Needs are becoming more acute each year with the influx of rural people into the city and the increase in births in the district.

"You should complete your program of educational expansion," Dr. Domian suggested. "To supplement your programs in kindergarten, handicapped and vocational school work, a junior college should be located in this city. This is the logical location and there is a need here for a junior college due to distance involved to other institutions of higher learning. You must make facilities available to take care of your youngsters who want to go to college."

Since the legislature has seen fit to provide $300 per student in state aid for junior college programs, much of the cost has now been shifted to the state, the director said. Some time ago when a junior college was discussed for this community the state aid was not available.

Included in the "wide screen view" of the educational needs outlined by Dr. Domian, were expansion of the high school and construction of an eight-classroom elementary school. The high school expansion suggested was construction of a junior high school at a location apart from the present Lincoln building at an estimated cost of $1,030,000. The elementary building would cost an estimated $430,000.

"It is important that this expansion be part of an overall plan," Dr. Domian told the group. "The first step should be the elementary and junior high school and the next step should be the establishment of the junior college program." He added that the removal of junior high school students from Lincoln to a new building would leave room for the smaller number of students which would take advantage of a junior college.

Considerable interest was expressed by the group in the junior college proposal at a question and answer session which followed the survey presentation. More discussion was held on the college prospects, in fact, that the elementary and high school facilities.

Dr. Domian also presented a more detailed review of the financial portion of the proposed expansion. He noted that the combined costs of the two proposed buildings would be an estimated $1,460,000 and is well within the bonding capacity of the district. On the basis of equal payments, Dr. Domian said, the cost of repaying a bond issue of $1,500,000 at 4 per cent over 30 years is $86,745 annually. This would require a mill levy of just less than 22 mills on the basis of present assessed valuation.

"This should not be considered as total increase in levy however," the survey director added, "since the present debt payments will be reduced by the time principal payments would fall due. While it cannot be specifically stated short of the bond prospectus, the actual increase should be little more than 15 mills. Present mill levy in Thief River Falls on no-homestead property is 263.53 mills.

"The comparison reveals that the person who now pays $100 in property tax would pay only an additional $6 per year for both the elementary and junior high schools.

"Schools today are faced with a greater task than ever before," Dr. Domian concluded. "They must educate, not only for survival, but to make survival worthwhile. This cannot be achieved by satisfaction with a narrow set of minima. Local schools must develop a wide-screen view of education in their districts."

Outcome of 1961 Top of Nation Dairy Sale Is Reviewed Tuesday

Checks for animals sold at the Third Annual Top of the Nation Dairy Sale were distributed Tuesday at a meeting of consignors and directors of the Top of the Nation Dairy association held at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls. Tentative date of the annual meeting was set at December 14.

Mention was made by Martin Carrico, association president, that the $415 average for animals sold at the sale has topped all sales reported in North and South Dakota and Manitoba to date. Consignors present among the approximately 30 persons who attended the meeting expressed satisfaction with the sale results and voted a four per cent sale percentage for support of the association, an increase of one per cent over last year.

Among business transacted was authorization of the appointment of a committee to study the employment of personnel to help arrange and conduct the sale to be held next year. The committee will review past procedure and make recommendations to association directors so that arrangements for additional help can be made on a definite basis before next year's event.

Consignors also expressed the opinion that even more rigid culling of animals consigned to the sale will be needed next year. They expected a substantial increase in the number of animals which will be consigned due to the success of the 1961 sale and noted that only the best animals should be selected to maintain the high standards of the sale.

Special guests at the meeting were William Mudge, extension dairy specialist from the University of Minnesota, and Stan Meinen, assistant 4-H club leader for the state. Also attending were Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent; Abel Anderson, Red Lake county agricultural agent and consignors and board members from Hallock, Warren, Stephen, Red Lake Falls, Angus and Crookston in addition to Thief River Falls.

Thursday evening and Friday morning the focus was on Girl Scout program and new program developments. The closing session of the conference included a talk by Miss Oleda Schrottky of the national board on "Something for the Girls".

Dwight Marciniak Driver of Car Hit by Another

About $400 in damages was inflicted on two cars on Sunday afternoon when the driver of one failed to yield the right of way as they collided at a farm entrance road on CSAH 33 about 2 miles north of Warren. No one was injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Vansickle and two children were driving south on the highway when a car driven by Dwight B. Marciniak, 18, Thief River Falls, suddenly came out of a drive-way making a right turn without stopping. The Vansickle car struck the left rear fender of the Marciniak car which resulted in about $300 damages to fender, hood and bumper on the Vansickle car and $100 damage to fender and trunk of the Marciniak car.

The Marciniak car carried three girls and three boys from the Warren, Alvarado and Thief River communities. Marciniak stated that the windows were fogged over, and the trees hampered his vision. He was issued a citation for failing to yield the right of way.

BROADWAY: Bright lights sprinkled with a lot of dim wits.

by Eleanor Olson

I have finished reading Oliver Statler's "Japanese Inn" most reluctantly. Such a book comes along so rarely that finishing it is like parting from an old friend. I had read a review of Mr. Statler's book in the Chicago Tribune book section some time ago. While the reviewer seemed impressed by the book, his review couldn't be called a "rave" notice. Since reading the book I can see why it was reviewed as it was. It would have been completely out of keeping to write a glib "rave" notice about such a "serene" book. "Japanese Inn" might better deserve the title of "shibui," a Japanese term which translates roughly as an object of inherent beauty, free of the superfluous. So "shibui" it is, for while full of detail, none is extra, all blend to perfect unity.

"Japanese Inn" describes the flow of history that has passed its door on Japan's major highway for 20 generations. Although the Inn has been burned and rebuilt several times, it is so in keeping with Japan's love of tradition that Mr. Statler had no trouble making the pilgrims, heroes, rulers and populace of the past seem as alive as the inn's present inhabitants. Faithful to the facts when they could be found and artful as an imaginative storyteller when bits of the past had to be reconstructed, Mr. Statler has interpreted motivating forces and translated Japanese ideas understandably for our western minds. "Japanese Inn" describes the princes and the commoners...maids, runners, lovers, with the same simplicity and clarity that Hiroshige and Kuniyoshi drew them in pen, brush and ink centuries ago. The average Japanese is pictured not as a creature suffering in miserable poverty but as a being full of pride, laughter and with a love of beauty which dominate whatever life he leads.

Perhaps the most facinating chapters are those describing Japan's political upheaval which transferred political control from the hereditary shogun to the emperor for a short span of years and in turn was usurped by a Military junta which trampled out the first sprouting seeds of democracy. During these years the foreign powers, which had been kept out of Japan, gained entry to her ports.

It was the military which began the hopeless war with China for political reasons and set Japan on the road to complete physical subjugation at the hands of the forigners whom they both emulated and hated. No one grieves for the military fanatics who got what they deserved but the reader does grieve for the tragic victims of their ambitions. Japanese people, unlike the Germans, had never had political rights or a choice of government. Japan, politically speaking, had hardly risen from feudal strongman rule.

The story of the peoples' sufferings during the war and the occupation as seen through the eyes and heart of Minaguchi-ya the Japanese inn, is a poignant one. The present day Inn, which clings stubbornly to the old ways of Japan, in combination with her past history, convinces the reader that wars, foreign fad and dress and outside influences of every kind will fail to rob Japan of her hospitality, her courtesy, her irrepressible sense of humor and love for life and beauty.

4-H Leaders Council Hears State Leader

Project leaders should do more of the training of members in special areas of work to assist the adult leaders of respective 4-H clubs, stated Stanley Meinen, assistant state 4-H club leader, at a meeting of the Pennington county 4-H leader's council held Monday evening.

Regular leaders are over-burdened with the teaching of project materials which is a function in addition to their organizational work, Meinen said. He also pointed out that junior leaders can do much to assist regular leaders and project leaders, particularly in aiding young members with project work.

Several major items of business were also conducted at the meeting including a safety questionnaire, radio speaking contest, selection of an awards committee and setting of a date for the December council meeting. The meeting will be held December 11 instead of December 4 due to a conflict with the regular meeting date and the annual conference to be attended by the county agricultural and home agents.

It was decided at the meeting that 4-H'ers in Pennington county clubs will complete a safety questionnaire. Details of the study of accidents which will be conducted by club members were presented to the group.

Leaders were encouraged to tell their club members to prepare for the county radio speaking contest which will be held in the latter part of January. Topic for the contest this year is "How Would You Present the United Sates to the World?" Questions to be considered in preparing the talk are: "What is the U. S.? What are its people like? What are its problems? What is the so-called American way of life? What do its people believe? What can be said about its agriculture, its economy and its government?"

To be eligible to participate in this event, club members must be between the ages of 14 and 21 on January 1, 1962. County champion will receive five dollars and reserve champion will receive two and one-half dollars for winning the event.

Selected to the awards committee for the new 4-H year were Mrs. Vernon Wold, Mrs. Julian Lendobeja, Mrs. Paul Furuseth, Ray Oen and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad. Announcement was made that the program planning committee will meet Thursday, November 16, to set up council programs for the coming year. Committee members include Howard Brandt, Mrs. Elmer Kron, Mrs. George Breznay, Margaret Hillyer, Ellen Jorde and Linda Tollefson.

A new 4-H dairy bulletin, now available to all club members enrolled in the dairy project, was reviewed at the council session by Paul Steimoschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent.

Rep. Langen Sees Sugar Rationing

Says Limiting Domestic Production Imperils U.S.

Congressman Odin Langen warned today that sugar rationing could once again become a reality in the United States. Langen, speaking before the Western Sugar Beet Growers association annual meeting in Grand Forks, said current Administration policies of meeting American sugar needs by increasing foreign imports while curtailing domestic production could seriously affect the future supply of this strategic commodity.

"What would happen in event of a worldwide conflict?" asked Langen. "Since we buy increasing amounts of sugar all over the world our supply could easily be cut off."

The Ninth District Congressman said also he's serving notice on the Secretary of Agriculture and the House Agriculture Committee chairman that sugar legislation must have early consideration in the next session of Congress.

Langen said one of the biggest failures of the Congress in the last session was the failure to enact such legislation. He blamed this failure on the inability or refusal of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Agriculture Committee chairman to recognize the importance of such legislation to American agriculture and to the security of the nation.

Sees Grasshopper Increase in 1962

Heavier Infestation Is Forecast in N.W. Area

With normal weather conditions, Minnesota's grasshopper population will continue to build up, especially in the extreme northwestern area, and grasshoppers will be an even greater problem in 1962.

So said John Lofgren, extension entomologist at the University of Minnesota, at a meeting Tuesday of the Crop Quality Council extension conference.

Lofgren said this year's grasshopper infestations were scattered and localized; spot damage was generally more severe than in 1960. Hardest-hit areas were Kittson County in the northwest and Wilkin, Otter Tail and parts of Wadena and Hubbard counties in west central Minnesota.

Hay and forage crops suffered greatest damage; lesser damage occurred in soybeans and corn. Some fields of small grain adjacent to soil bank land suffered 'hopper damage, but a good share of that damage was drought-related, the entomologist said.

A late-season survey of 'hoppers showed 30 percent of the threatening and severe counts located in conservation reserves; 70 percent were in cropland. Greatest counts were found in fields of alfalfa and alfalfa-grass mixtures, according to Lofgren.

Rotary and Lions Hear Discussion of School Survey

Dr. Otto E. Domian, director of the Bureau of Field Studies and Surveys of the college of education, University of Minnesota, discussed the school survey recently completed in Thief River Falls at a joint meeting of the Lions and Rotary clubs Monday noon in the Elks club rooms.

J. M. Roche, Rotary program chairman for November, arranged the event, with M. R. Hankerson, superintendent of schools, introducing the speaker. Also introduced was Robert V. Shuff, research assistant, who also worked on the local educational needs survey. The context of Dr. Domian's report is included in another story in today's issue of the Times.

40 FFA Members Given Trip by FU

Approximately 40 boys from the Future Farmers of America chapter at Lincoln high school will make a Farmers Union-sponsored trip to visit the Grain Exchange and other points of agricultural interest in the Twin Cities Thursday and Friday, November 16 and 17, according to Peter Probasco, local FFA advisor.

175 Attend Credit Union Banquet in City Last Night

State Senator Louis Murray of East Grand Forks Guest Speaker

Approximately 175 persons from nine credit unions in the North Red River Valley Credit Union attended the Credit Day dinner held Wednesday evening in the Eagles Hall in Thief River Falls. Three Thief River Falls credit unions were represented as well as unions in Crookston, Climax, Sherack, Oslo, Brooks, and Bemidji.

Sen. Louis Murray, East Grand Forks, was guest speaker at the dinner and outlined legislative procedure and problems. He stated that a special session on congressional re-districting is expected and that he believed it should be called for that purpose alone.

The Polk county legislator also said he did not believe that legislators would get together to agree on anything in advance of a special session, then said that there should be some prior agreement so that the proper bill can be presented when the legislature convenes. He also called for organization of all rural legislators to form a bloc which could compete with organized metropolitan voting.

Morris Owen of Thief River Falls served as toastmaster at the dinner with Mayor Orin Green welcoming the group to the city. Response was given by George Keller, Climax, president of the North Red River Valley group. Rev. Pryor of St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city gave the invocation.

Other legislators in attendance at the meeting were Rep. L. J. Lee, Bagley; Rep. Harveydale Maruska, Angus; and Sen. Roy Wiseth, Goodridge.

Goodridge Bit and Bridle Club Plans Future Projects

Jumping and pole weaving practice for riders in the Bit and Bridle club of the Goodridge area was provided at the monthly meeting held Sunday at the N. J. Brunelle home near Goodridge. Michael Scott was host for the meeting at which tentative plans were made for a sleigh ride or hay ride which will be held about November 25.

Donnie Hanson and Scott were named co-chairmen of the committee to make arrangements for the hay ride and it was decided by the club that each member may invite a guest to the event.

Linda Swanson, Fred Hanson and Karol Sevre were named to make arrangements for a Christmas party. Sixteen members attended the meeting.

Warren VFW Post Forfeits License for Sale of Beer

Because of alleged infractions of the law, beer licenses at the Warren VFW Club, located in McCrea Township just outside the city limits, were revoked by action of the Marshall county board of Commissioners in session Tuesday.

Commissioners ordered Sheriff Oscar C. Erickson to pick up the licenses and the sheriff picked up the licenses Tuesday night.

Now that the basketball season is coming up, may I suggest having the basketball fans accompany the band in the National Anthem?

We are proud of our great nation so lets fill the gymnasium with song before our first game this season.

himself, explain research and development ranging from the mining and refining of radioactive ores to the construction of nuclear reactors to provide electric power.

The nuclear reactor display shows how atomic fuel can be used to produce heat to convert water into steam. The steam then activates a turbine and generator to produce electricity. Such power reactors are already in use in the Nautilus and Seawolf submarines and others not yet completed.

Use of radio active elements in agriculture for tracing fertilizer use, studying plant growth and nutrition, developing new types of plants and killing bacteria to prevent spoilage in foodstuffs will also be shown. The medical field also makes extensive use of radioactive materials and radiation.

Under Jaycees sponsorship, the unit will appear in 25 Minnesota communities. Residents of this area are encouraged to visit the display while it is in Thief River Falls, Ziegler said.

Cummings Warns of Street Hockey Danger to Youths

Police Chief Elton Cummings issued a warning today that cars have the right-of-way over youths playing "street hockey" and that boys engaged in the game must get completely clear of the street when cars come along.

Cummings said one youth so engaged was brushed by a car earlier this week but sustained no serious injuries. Preferably the game should not be played in the streets at all, he stated. In some instances cars have been stopped and traffic held up by boys who refuse to yield the street right-of-way to cars.

The warning concerning street hockey accompanied the annual warning concerning the dangerous practice of skating on the thin, new river ice. (Story elsewhere.)

Mercury Hits 11 Mark Wednesday

Somewhat Warmer Is Forecast for Friday

Only slight day-to-day temperature variations and partly cloudy skies, with a few odd snowflakes thrown in, made up the weather picture since Monday. The small amount of snow which fell early Tuesday was hardly worth noting.

Northwest Minnesota residents may expect somewhat warmer temperatures today and Friday, while the mercury may climb as high as 65 in our neighboring state of North Dakota. If the forecast holds true deer hunters may have to wish for a fresh snowfall when season opens Saturday, as the light cover now on the ground may disappear by then.

Temperatures this week were as follows: Monday, high 33, low 17; Tuesday, 38 and 18 and Wednesday, 32 and 11. The low this morning was 17.

Newfolden Band to Give Concert Friday Evening

The Newfolden high school band, under the direction of Dennis Borman, will present a "Pop Concert" at 8 p. m., Friday, November 10, in the school auditorium. This will be the final program presented in the school during American Education Week. The concert will consist of light march and popular music. There will be no admission charge, and it is expected that a large crowd will take advantage of an enjoyable evening of music.

DAIRYMEN
What KIND of Holsteins Do You Like?
On Oct. 12, nine "springing" Holstein heifers calving in Nov. and Dec. arrived in Thief River Falls from Southern Minnesota. On Oct. 13 five local dairymen had purchased them for their herds. The dairymen included Albert Koop, Frank Wold, Maynard Mehrkens, Wallace Relerson and Calvin Harmoning (Red Lake Falls).
On Oct. 27 eight more "springers" were sold to Calvin Harmoning and his neighbor, Lawrence Kees.
In the total group sold, four were first generation artificial breeding, 11 were second generation, one third and one fourth—all sired by Proved Sires in artificial breeding. Fourteen were calfhood vaccinated and all had passed a clean test for Bangs and TB within 30 days. Four animals had offical D.H.I.A. records on their dams. They were all of excellent type with straight top lines and sharp shoulders.
Because the demand for this kind of cattle far exceeds the supply, it further proved one thing to me:
GOOD DAIRYMEN want and appreciate GOOD CATTLE!

2,000 Area Hunters Seek Deer on Saturday

County Auditor Charles Rodekuhr has provided the eleven licensing agencies in the county with 2,100 big game licenses, and it is expected that when the sale ends, according to state law, at the close of the first day of the season, Saturday, November 11, there will be very few licenses remaining unsold. The law states that "No license to take deer with firearms may be issued after the first day of the regular rifle season November 11, 1961."

The deer hunting season will open at sunrise on Saturday. (And in this area, the sun will rise at 7:15 a. m.). Last season there were 2000 big game licenses issued in the county, and with the optimistic reports that have been circulated, this number will be increased this season. In addition, there will be heavy influx of out-of-county hunters who will invade the area in quest of deer.

As in previous years, the state has been divided into a number of zones, with restrictions covering the particular zones. In this area, the zones that will affect the hunters are number one, two, three, and four.

Zone number one, which will be open for one day, November 11, and will be limited to shotgun with slug or bow and arrow, is that part of the state lying west of highway 75 and to the state boundary. Zone number two, enclosing the area from highway 59 to highway 75, will be open from November 11 to November 13, inclusive, for legal firearms or bow and arrow. Zone three, which is that area lying south of Highway No. 1 from Thief River Falls to county aid road 27, and south to highway 92 to highway 71, and east of highway 59 from Detroit Lakes to Thief River Falls. This zone will be open from November 11 to November 15, inclusive, to legal firearms or bow and arrow.

Zone number four, which is the largest in the state, is that area north and east of Thief River Falls with Highway 59 (the new highway) as the western boundary, and Highway 1 to state aid road 27, and south to Highway 92 and Highway 71 and the southwestern boundary. In this area the season will be open from November 11 to November 19, inclusive, to legal firearms or bow and arrow.

As a safety measure, the law this season states that hunters may wear clothing of "blaze orange" color. The provision states that "It is unlawful to hunt, trap, or assist therein, in open deer territory, during the deer season, unless the visible portion of the cap and outer coat be of BRIGHT RED OR BLAZE ORANGE, color or covered therewith."

The Lake Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge (Mud Lake) will be open for the entire nine-day season, and this area will, as has been the custom in past years, attract a great number of hunters. Except for an area, about two miles square, adjacent to the refuge headquarters, the refuge will be open to deer hunting. With the concentration of hunters that will be gathered there, especially the opening weekend, extreme care and caution is recommended.

Good luck, hunters, but come back alive.

Crookston Votes for New Charter

Crookston Times Editor Elected to Mayor's Post

A record breaking vote in a Crookston municipal election, landslide ratification of the new city charter, a new mayor, the defeat of a write-in candidate by a slim margin and the upset of two incumbent aldermen marked voting Tuesday.

The highest number of votes ever cast in a municipal election in Crookston's history neared the 2,500 mark. Unofficial figures indicated 2,450 voters marched to the polls. This compares with 2,005 cast in 1959.

H. V. (Hi) Sommer, editor of the Crookston Times, was chosen as Crookston's new mayor and Frank Sullivan and Lloyd Hughes, alderman incumbents of the Third and Fifth Wards, were replaced by Randall L. Barnes and R. E. Knutson.

Other successful candidates were Municipal Judge John R. Kelly over write-in candidate Joseph T. Noah; Dale Halos, seventh ward; Jake Kohler, first ward. George Theroux, alderman at large; Arthur Lufkin and Ralph Melbye, justices of the peace; and E. R. (Hutch) Melbye, constable.

Roughly 80 per cent of the voters of Crookston gave their unqualified approval of the new city charter. The final unofficial count was 1,955 in favor and 446 opposing.

The ratification of the charter abolishes the offices of alderman at large and both constable positions.

DEER HUNTERS will have ample room to move around in quest of the wily Whitetail at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge this year. With the exception of a small portion of the refuge around the headquarters building, the remainder of the refuge will be open for huntning November 11 through 19. Entrance to the refuge may be gained from State Aid Highway 7, from the north gate at the old secondary headquarters road and from the main gates on the west side, according to Herb Dill, refuge manager. Portions of certain roads have been closed due to construction work. Refuge gates will open at 6 a.m. and all cars must be out of the refuge by dark. Travel by motor vehicle will be restricted to designated areas and no driving will be permitted in the fields by hunters. Hunters must comply with all state regulations pertaining to deer hunting but will not be required to report to checkng stations. Further information may be received at refuge headquarters where additional maps are available.

PLUMMER SOLDIER WINS AT BOWLING IN GERMANY

AS-I Bruce E. Erickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Erickson, Route 1, Plummer, recently received a trophy for winning first place in the 22nd Ordnance Company's bowling league in Munich, Germany.

Erickson, a supply clerk in the company, arrived overseas in Nov. 1960. He is a 1959 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls.

Tongue in Cheek

The New York Times' sports section gave prominent attention and coverage of the Minnesota vs. Michigan State football game of last Saturday, and had a writer covering the game.

While the commentary on the play of the Gophers was very fair and stated that the Minnesota squad was the better all-round club on Saturday, the writer was specific in enumerating the "foreigners" that played outstanding games for coach Murray Warmath's club.

In mentioning Sandy Stephens' end-zone interception of a pass in the game's final moments, the comment stated "This defensive coup capped a brilliant day for Minnesota's gifted senior quarterback from Uniontown, Pa."

A later paragraph started like this: "Another talented Pennsylvanian, Bill Munsey, also from Uniontown, scored both Minnesota touchdowns." And about Judge Dickson the comment was "Dickson's red-dogging on pass plays particularly stymied Michigan State. Minnesota's big fullback from Clairtown, Pa., made life miserable for Pete Smith, the Spartan quarterback."

And in assessing the value of Stephen's accurate forward passing, the comment was that he. Stephens, "had a brilliant receiver in Tom Hall. This rangy end from Wilmington, Del., caught three passes from 56 yards."

The New York Times apparently gained a measure of satisfaction out of the fact that these four players are from the East. Well, if they think that the Gophers have a great number of "outsiders" on the squad, they should scan the Iowa Hawkeyes' roster.

An Interesting Gimmick

The newly-organized eight-team American Basketball league, with Abe Saperstein of Harlem Globetrotter fame as the guiding genius, has come up with an interesting gimmick for the fans. Believeing that the fans are interested in long-range basket-shooting, and that a field goal from a long distance out on the court is comparable to a home run in baseball, the league rules provide for a zone twenty-five feet from the basket, and a field goal scored from this zone is worth three points.

Judging by the statistics of the first couple of weeks of play in the league, there haven't been too many three-point field goals scored.

Deer Hunter's Breakfast

For the seventh successive season the members of Troop 59 of the Boy Scouts will be conducting their "Deer Hunter's Breakfast" in the parlors of the Zion Lutheran church on north Main avenue on Saturday morning.

The boys will be serving breakfasts from 2 a. m. to 8 a. m. The breakfasts, at one dollar per hunter, will have pancakes, eggs, sausages on the menu. And in addition, for this one dollar charges, the hunter's Thermos bottle will be filled with hot coffee.

Come Back Alive

The 1961 deer hunting season opens on Saturday morning, November 11, and from the publicity that this area has received relative to vast herds of deer that are available, the hunting pressure will perhaps be the greatest ever.

Few Cases in City Court on Monday

Two Men Forfeit Bonds for Failure to Appear

Monday's session of municipal court saw another small group of offenders forfeit bonds for nonappearance or draw fines on pleading guilty before Judge Stanley N. Mortenson.

The lone highway patrol case concerned John C. Kruse, St. Hilaire, who pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $17.50.

There were two cases brought by the sheriff, Bert K. Johnson, Goodridge, pleaded guilty ot permitting an unlicensed 14-year-old drive a car and was fined $25, of which Donald W. Larson, Roseau, forfeited $15 bond on a speeding charge.

All other cases were brought by city police. Wayne H. Page, Brooks, pleaded guilty to making an improper U turn and was fined $15. Lester F. Taggert, city, pleaded guilty to failure to yield the right-of-way and was fined $25, of which $10 was suspended. Taggert's case was unusual in that there was no accident involved as a result of his failure to yield, as is true in most cases.

Robert J. Wald, rt. 1, St. Hilaire, forfeited $25 bond on a speeding charge and an additional $25 bond on a charge of having an open bottle of intoxicants in a motor vehicle.

RRV Livestock Assn. to Provide Barn for Winter Shows Cattle

The Red River Valley Livestock Association met last Friday, November 3, and through their Board of Directors and Advisory Board unanimously voted to underwrite the financing of the cattle barn to be built directly west of the present Winter Shows arena now under construction.

This will be a fully insulated, 8-foot side wall, pole building with mechanical ventilation. There will be 13-foot doors on the end walls so trucks can drive in for unloading from either end. The building, as voted, is 60 feet wide and 180 feet long. It will be located 134 feet directly west of the Winter Shows arena and will be connected to the arena by a covered concourse.

William Strickler, president of the livestock association, said this means the purebred livestock breeders in the Red River Valley will be able to have the entire livestock show in the New Winter Shows facilities.

When asked the question as to what this means for the Red River Valley Winter Shows, President Younquist had this to say: "This means that the entire Red River Valley Winter Shows can be held in the new facilities next February and the livestock show will not have to be cut, but can expand somewhat in numbers." President Youngquist paid high compliment to the purebred livestock breeders of the Red River Valley for their farsighted action. This insures that the relocated Red River Valley Winter Shows will be off to a good start in the new facilities.

The Red River Valley Livestock Association, which was organized in 1914 and incorporated in 1918, has been one of the parent organizations of the Red River Valley Winter Shows since that time.

This association is stepping up its effort to promote the livestock industry in the entire Red River Basin including the North Dakota side of the river.

If the Winter Shows Board of Managers accepts this building from the Livestock Association at their meeting on November 7, the contractor is prepared to move in the latter part of this week. Construction completion is called for by January 15, 1962.

Minnesota Safety Council Warns of Jay-walking Peril

Says 117 Pedestrians Were Killed and 2,046 Injured During 1960

During 1960, 117 Minnesota pedestrians were killed and 2,046 were injured in 1,992 accidents. Jaywalking accounted for 48 of these deaths, while 35 others occurred at intersections. Responsibility for these fatalities are pretty evenly distributed between driver and pedestrian. Motorists must remember that pedestrians have the right of way when crossing at an intersection, whether or not the crossway is marked.

Adults are doing a very poor job of instructing the young child in safe methods of crossing the street, according to the Minnesota Safety Council. Most of the child-pedestrians 14 years of age and younger were killed and injured while crossing a street in midblock. The score is nearly 3 to 1—253 hurt or killed at an intersection compared to 642 accidents in mid-street crossings.

After the age of 15, there is a sharp reversal of statistics. Most teenagers and adults were hit at the intersection—618. Only 270 were injured or killed while jaywalking. This could indicate either that the adult jaywalker is better at dodging traffic, or that the child is more frequently a violator. Motorists must always be on the watch for children. It is useless to predict their actions—just be alert for what they actually do.

Eleven pedestrians were killed in November, 1960 compared to 12 for the same month of 1959. Fifty-eight persons died in 6,577 accidents last November. The preceding year listed 66 deaths in 6,728 crashes. There were 10 death-free days in November 1960. The deadliest day of the week was Friday with 19 deaths. Tuesdays totaled 2 fatalities.

Paula Prentiss, Brigid Bazlen, Steve McQueen and Jim Hutton cart off Jack Weston, a sailor who has imbibed too freely, in this scene from the MGM comedy, "The Honeymoon Machine." The plot revolves around U. S. Navy personnel stationed in Venice, who use an electric computer in an attempt to break the bank in a local gambling casino. The movie starts Sunday at the Falls Theatre.

Fitzsimons Talks to Marshall 4-H Clubs at Banquet

Annual Achievement Dinner Held Saturday Night at Warren School

Learning to live with people is the most important contribution 4-H gives to its members, is what state Rep. Richard Fitzsimons, adult leader of the Argyle Hustlers, told the adult and junior leaders and award winners at the Marshall county 4-H achievement banquet held in their honor November 4, at the Warren school community room.

Fitzsimons was the main speaker and spoke on the "Values of 4—H". He has served 4—H as an adult leader for 17 years and been a member for 6 years, all in the Argyle Hustlers club.

In pointing out that "learning one of the most important things in life — how to understand your neighbor," Fitzsimons said 4—H is leaving its imprint in trying to overcome the worlds problems, fear and jealousy. These are the same problems the world has always had.

"Anytime we take part we are building a better boy and a better girl", he continued, "how to understand your neighbor. The sooner you learn to do it the happier you will be and who doesn't want to be happy? We can't be happy if we can't learn to live with people."

Over 5,000 Geese on Lac Qui Parle

Department of Conservation game officials reported today the wild goose flock at Lac Qui Parle lake in western Minnesota has reached its largest size since a wildlife project to attract the birds began in the fall of 1958.

On Oct. 30, there were between 5,000 and 6,000 geese using the project area, the report said. The large birds are concentrated largely on Rosemoen Island, the heart of the goose management area, in lower Lac Qui Parle Lake.

Pheasant Hunters Luck Indifferent

4,679 Hunters Averaged Less Than Two Birds Each

The 4,679 pheasant hunters checked by conservation department game personnel over the opening week end had taken a total of 7,364 pheasants, the department reported today.

Hunters in Wilkin, Ottertail, Lac Qui Parle, Steven, Yellow Medicine, Big Stone and Chippewa counties had the best success while those trying their luck in the south central part of the pheasant range found getting their birds more difficult.

Hunting success varied with the percentage of picked corn in the different areas of the pheasant range. Reason for this, according to game experts, is that corn harvesting tends to concentrate the birds in the unharvested areas making them more easily brought to bag.

Opening week end hunting success this year was slightly better than in 1960 according to game officials.

Did You Give Enough?

The United Fund is dragging and unless greater interest is shown by the good people of our community, and more and larger contributions are made, the 1961 effort will fall far short of its objectives. We like the United Fund way of raising money for deserving organizations. We like the idea of putting "all of the begs in one askit."

The weakness of the one-drive approach is that too many people, in making their contributions, do not give due consideration to the fact that their contribution must be divided among a group of organizations. The one-dollar contribution that must be split among ten organizations means that the average contribution to each organization is only ten cents.

Giving five dollars or ten dollars or more at one time is not always convenient. The United Fund recognizes that fact and encourages contributors to make pledges, spreading their contributions out over a period of months, up to a year.

If you have not yet contributed, or if, upon further consideration you decide that you should have given more, use the pledge plan. The organizations that will benefit from your gift, have been carefully checked as to need. They deserve your support.

A Good Service

Dr. Joseph Norquist was a welcome visitor to our community after three years of service as a medical missionary in Africa. We enjoyed very much our brief visit with him.

Dr. Norquist is providing the kind of service that the backward countries are most in need of. His special skill is greatly appreciated by the natives we are sure. Church missions, with their hospitals and schools, have performed not only a great humanitarian service thruout the world but they are laying a foundation for the kind of understanding and respect that is so essential to peaceful relations.

We would be happier with our peace corps activity if it provided more doctors and dentists and nurses and teachers and engineers for the backward areas. That is what the Russians are doing and their program is getting them good results.

In his book "Inside Russia Today," John Gunther states:

> "The Soviet Union graduates every year four times more doctors of medicine than does the United States."

Those are the young people who become the missionaries of Communism, and they are a much more effective army of occupation than a military force.

Some people are very anxious to have the government spend money for education. Maybe a few millions tossed around to increase the output of our professional schools for foreign service might be justified. As a long term program of world development we might be justified in paying competent students to go to school and prepare themselves for special services, providing they would agree to spend a number of years in that service in a foreign country.

Our professional schools complain that they would not have the needed facilities to provide for increased enrollment. That is not true of course. The schools are not using their present facilities anywhere near their actual capacity.

The University of Minnesota, for instance, is not graduating any more doctors of medicine now than it did thirty years ago and the facilities have been greatly expanded since then. The fact that they could do a lot better if they wanted to is proven by the record. During the war years the number of graduates was greatly increased to meet the urgent need.

Well, we are at war again, and, once again, the need is very urgent. The record, unfortunately, supports the suspicion that the production of our professional schools is purposely curtailed in the interests of those who have been admitted to practice and who will be more prosperous if they have less competition. There are times when we wonder if the University of Minnesota is really being operated in the best interests of the people of Minnesota.

Fortunately in all fields there are a few dedicated people, and so it was nice to have a visit with Dr. Norquist again. He will soon be back in Africa, performing a service from which all of us will benefit.

Canada Benefits

Last week's Financial Post, published in Toronto, Canada, reported a "spending splurge" on that country's iron ore front. It stated:

> "Decisions worth $265 milioln rocked Canada's big iron ore cradle, the Quebeck-Labrador trough, into the news this week."

The announcement states that several iron ore processing and pelleting plants will be built, and the list of the names of steel companies that are participating in the program includes several American companies that already have interests in Minnesota.

We have no authority to say that some of these millions might have been used for expanded operations here in Minnesota. We do know that the industry has stated that it would like to expand in Minnesota but wants reasonable assurance that the Minnesota plants and operations will be taxed fairly. The industry is not asking for special favors. It asks only that the taxes imposed on it by the state and local governments be no more onerous than those imposed on other industries.

The reason for their request is clear. Their tax experience in Minnesota has not been good. Changed conditions now enable them to get along without Minnesota ore, and unless they are given assurance that the people of Minnesota want them to build more plants here and will not discrimate against them by unfair taxation, there probably will be no further development of Minnesota's iron range.

There are some who still hope that a taconite amendment, giving such assurance, can be presented at the next election. We are satisfied that that would be a mistake. The question has now become a partisan issue and, under the circumstances, it would be impossible to secure favorable action.

The public has been mislead by a group of politicians who in effect have told the industry that Minnesota does not need it.

The only solution for the problem now is a clear presentation of the facts. The water have been muddied by misrepresentation, and the prejudices that have been created can be overcome only by a complete explanation of the background of this problem and the whys and the wherefores of the industry's present position.

With that information we are satisfied that the people of Minnesota would respond in the right way. We want industries and we want payrolls. Our general tax structure is not favorable to industrial development. The steel industry however is not asking for exemption from taxes that are imposed on other industries. All that they ask is that they be not discriminated against.

Supply and Demand

The Wall Street Journal reports a big increase in the number of motels that are being built in all parts of the country, and that along with this rise there is a record rate of bankruptcies among motel operators. This appears to be a strange coincidence, or is it?

Our interest in the problem is purely academic. We are sure that the motel operators, and the creditors of those who do run into financial difficulties, will somehow solve it. We are not suggesting that Congress appropriate money to help distressed motel owners.

Our guess is that the law of supply and demand still works if its given half a chance. It is much more effective when there is free competition and less regulation, and each operator must make his decisions, individually, or by group action.

Here at the Times we know from experience apprroximately how big a demand there will be for our product, and week after week we come fairly close to printing an adequate supply of papers with comparatively little waste. Occassionally our supply is not sufficient to meet the demand but usally we have a small surplus that has little or no value.

We have no interest in the problems of motel operators, and our own supply and demand problem is that of trying to increase the demand for what we are able to produce.

In this agricultural community, however, we all have a common interest in the supply and demand problem of agriculture. Too much crop can be just as bad as too little, for instance—this year—turkeys.

Each segment of agriculture needs production control, and such controls should be directed by responsible agencies that in turn are controlled by the producers collectively. We have several segments that have maintained fairly good records in handling their own production controls, keeping supply and demand in reasonably good balance. What some segments of agriculture have done others can do.

Finland Next?

Nikita has backed away from some of his demands in Berlin and the United Nations is not going to be guided by a Troika. But just as one tension is relaxed he creates another. The argument presumably now shifts back to Finland, under pressure again for a mutual assistance pact. This is a disturbing gesture to the already nervous populations of the Scandinavian countries. And that presumably is the purpose of the proposal.

Khruschev's call for a Soviet-Finnish conference may have been prompted in part by displeasure with the visit of the President of Finland to our country, and the friendly relationship that exists between our country and Finland, made evident by this visit. Certainly it was a threat to the neutrality that the Finns have so steadfastly maintained.

In recent years Finland has become less dependent on Russian trade which has dropped to only about 14 per cent of the country's total foreign trade. Britain and West Germany are now Helsinki's best customers and suppliers. Maybe that fact is irritating the Russians.

When Khruschchev creates a problem there is a purpose behind it, and maybe Finland is put under pressure at this time to divert attention from something else. The Moscow madman is unpredictable.

AT FIRST LIGHT

Teen-agers have a crush on the new Princess telephone!

What youngster wouldn't like a pretty Princess for her very own?

It's dainty in size, and charmingly styled. It comes in five colors, too. And the halo-like dial light becomes a bedroom night light at the flick of a switch.

It's so inexpensive that many teen-agers pay the charges themselves for their own Princess extension service.

Galaxie and Falcon

Some cars have new names... this name will have a new car!

The name is familiar—the Ford Fairlane 500. The car itself is totally new—so new you'll see nothing else like it this year. It is one of Ford's milestone designs—and will be as influential in its way as the first mass-produced car (a Ford Model T), the first popular station wagon (a Ford Wagon), the first four-passenger luxury car (a Ford Thunderbird), the world's most successful compact (a Ford Falcon).

Right between Galaxie and Falcon in size and in price, the 1962 Ford Fairlane 500 is just the right car for just about everybody: you have never been able to buy anything so right before.

Big in room, ride and performance, it is still priced under most compacts. It nurses a nickel as though it never expected to see another. It moves like a rabbit on roller skates.

New unitized body a foot shorter outside . . . full-size inside

Ford engineers have changed the proportions of the automobile: a completely new unitized body gives you more room inside with less bulk outside. A foot shorter than previous Fairlanes, the new Fairlane 500 is pleasantly parkable, delightfully driveable, easily garageable. At the same time it packs into its neat and nifty 197 inches as much passenger room as you had in some of the biggest Fords ever built.

Twice-a-year maintenance

Service is reduced to a minimum—30,000 miles on many items, twice a year on the rest. You go 30,000 miles between major lubrications, 6,000 miles between oil changes and minor lubrications. You don't have to touch the engine coolant-antifreeze for two years—or 30,000 miles—at a time. Brakes adjust themselves.

All-new economy Eight from world's V-8 leader

The hand that honed the Thunderbird—and sped the Falcon to all-time Economy Run honors—turned to a new problem here, the world's first economy V-8. Made possible by new Ford foundry methods, the new Challenger V-8 is as strong as iron—and a lot lighter than iron's ever been before. As lively as you'd like . . . thriftier than you'd expect a V-8 to be . . . it's a natural powerplant for America's first eat-your-cake-and-have-it car.

For those who want even greater thrift, there's a new Fairlane Six. Its economy would be gratifying in a smaller car. In a car this size it's a downright delight.

Preview America's newest car now

As part of Preview Run U.S.A., new Fairlane 500's are riding the nation's highways and main streets right now. Watch for them. See what thousands have already seen—and raved about. Take a turn at the wheel—and perhaps do a little raving yourself.

We think you'll agree: this all-new Ford is just right for just about everybody. No matter how many new cars you've looked at, you haven't seen anything like this one. It will be at your Ford Dealer's next week. If you miss it now, be sure to see it then.

JUST RIGHT FOR JUST ABOUT EVERYBODY!
FORD FAIRLANE 500
ONLY THE NAME'S THE SAME!

State Gets 320 Acres for Ft. Snelling Park

In a ceremony in front of the old round tower, 320 acres of land in historic Ft. Snelling were transferred to the state of Minnesota from federal ownership on Monday, Oct. 30.

The deed to the land was presented to Governor Andersen by J. W. Harrop, chief of the real property division of the general services administration.

Present also at the ceremony were Minnesota Commissioner of Conservation Clarence Prout and Tom Savage, president of the Ft. Snelling state park association.

The association has worked for years gaining public and government support for the preservation of the old Fort site as an historic monument and for the development of adjacent lands along the bluffs and river banks for outdoor recreational use.

With the Fort site as a nucleus, the state and the association will now move to acquire the additional lands in federal and private ownership for state park purposes.

Following the presentation of the deed, the director of state parks, U. W. Hella, said that the state now has the invaluable and unique opportunity of reserving for public use a true wilderness and scenic area near the center of its largest urban and metropolitan complex.

He pointed out that included in the 320 acres now acquired is 110 acre spring fed Gun Club lake, the surrounding shore area and lands along both the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers.

Hella said the last legislature was to be commended for declaring the Ft. Snelling area a state park.

"Without this," he said, "the government would never have agreed to turning over the entire 320 acres, which they valued at $400,000, to the state."

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by visiting or writing Mr. Leo L. Haley, VA contact representative, located in Room 210 in the Grand Forks post office building.

Q — As an orphan of a deceased serviceman, is it necessary that I be 18 and have finished high school to become eligible for schooling under the War Orphans Educational Assistance Act?

A — Specialized vocational training in a below—college—level school may be taken if you have quit school, are above the compulsory school age, and the VA finds it would be to your advantage to begin your vocational education before reaching age 18.

Q — What is the patient turnover in all VA hospitals in one year?

A — During fiscal year 1961, which ended June 30, 1961, a total of 537,022 veterans were admitted to VA's 170 hospitals, and 540,068 were discharged during the same period.

Q — I would like to sell my GI—loan house. How do I get clear of liability for the loan?

A — If the purchaser takes over your loan, ask the VA regional office that has your loan records for a release from liability. If the purchaser refinances the loan and pays you, you would have to pay off the loan to be clear of liability.

Q — As a war veteran's widow I have been told that I may be eligible for a pension but not all widows are. How is eligibility determined?

A — For eligibility for a VA pension, a widow must have lived continuously with the veteran from the time of marriage until the veteran's death, except where there was a separation due to the misconduct of, or procured by, the veteran without fault on the part of his wife.

Pedestrians Need Special Attention, Says Police Chief

Additional Hazards Are Caused by Icy Streets in City, Cummings States

Snow and cold weather have caused additional need for awareness while walking and driving, according to Elton Cummings, Thief River Falls chief of police. Downtown areas are slippery, making sudden stops impossible, and drivers are warned to use reduced speeds and be alert for pedestrians who are bundled up against the winter cold.

Parents are especially reminded to warn their children of the danger involved with thin ice on the river in the city. It will be some time until the ice is safe and the center of the channel is particularly dangerous.

Chief Cummings also noted that pedestrian deaths in Minnesota totaled 117 in 1960. Another 2,046 persons were injured while walking.

"The pedestrian cannot always count on being granted right—of—way by the motorist," the chief said. "If the walker is violating the law by jaywalking or crossing against a red light, he is taking a gamble that the driver will see him and stop in time. Many pedestrians lose this bet."

The chief also reminded drivers that pedestrians always have the right—of—way at an intersection, even when there are no designated cross walks. He also urged caution on rural roads and highways where walkers might be encountered.

"The twilight and night hours are dangerous for both the pedestrian and motorist," he said. "Pedestrians can see the headlights of a car but the driver cannot always see the person on foot. Wearing white at night is a safety measure that may save a pedestrian's life."

15,000 Visitors at Polk History Museum in 1961

Nearly 15,000 persons toured the Polk County Historical society's Holte Memorial Pioneer Museum in Crookston since its grand opening on April 15, 1961. They viewed the over 3,000 relics, items, pictures, antiques, books, newspapers, etc., effectively telling the story of Polk county and the Valley's rich pioneer heritage in over 30 displays

General supervisors of the Museum's program during the season were Henrietta Holte, curator, and Don Myrold, society president.

The Museum is closed for the winter. It tentatively will reopen next May for its 1962 season. Group and school tours tentatively will be scheduled from May 15th to June 1, 1962.

WILDLIFE in Minnesota
by Jim Kimball

Our three game warden pilots, Bob Hodge, Billy Morris and John Parker, have done a good job of proving that an airplane equipped with two—way radio is an extremely effective law enforcement tool. Flying day and night and maintaining radio communication with wardens on the ground, they have brought many poachers to the point of explaining their nefarious activities to the judge.

One of the many services rendered by these warden pilots is that of locating lost hunters. No one knows how many false alarms they take part in, but they actually help locate about 25 lost people a year. Now, we should like to give you a few suggestions which may prevent your getting lost or make you easier to find if you do get lost.

No hunter should take off into the woods without a compass, but a compass alone is not enough. One time I literally ran down and caught a lost hunter who had a compass. His only trouble was he didn't have any idea which way he ought to go.

Anyone going into the woods should have a compass, a map, matches and the knowledge of where he started from and which way he was going.

If you do get yourself lost, remember it has happened to better woodsmen than you, so don't get excited but sit down and try to think it out. Probably the worse thing that can happen to you is that you will spend a chilly night in the woods. Find yourself an opening in the forest and build a fire. If you have friends and relatives who care enough to report that you are lost, shortly after daybreak you will hear an airplane. This will be one of our warden pilots looking for you so make your fire smoke good. When he comes over, don't just wave. Everybody waves, and he has no idea which are lost and which are just friendly Lie flat on your back and wave a white or red handkerchief. Once he spots you he either will lead you out, or lead a rescue crew in.

Many lost people start off at a rapid pace in any direction. Soon they get warm and discard clothing. This is a serious mistake. You are going to need that clothing before morning.

Sometimes when the woods are wet it is difficult to start a fire. One sixteen—year—old boy had more presence of mind than most of us — he used a dry dollar bill from his billfold. If all you have happens to be a twenty—dollar bill, the decision will be a little more difficult.

Then there was the case of the man who had had a heart attack but insisted on going deer hunting anyway. His friends took him out and sat him on a stump, telling him to stay there. When they came back he was nowhere to be found. In fact, he was not found until the next day in the home of a widow friend who lived nearby — heart still running fine. Even our warden pilots have trouble finding this kind of "lost soul".

Son David, being—tired—of my quacking, borrowed my duck call. Applying his trumpet playing technique, learned in the high school band, he was soon giving out with a pretty good version of the Muskrat Ramble. However, we were not hunting muskrats, so I took the call back. Before long the tune playing technique intrigued me and I was squawking out a pretty bad version of our National Anthem. Then came David's voice from the next blind — "Pa, mark west, a flock of American Eagles coming in."

According to the New Outlook for the Blind, published by the American Foundation for the Blind, there were an estimated 75,000 blind people in the United States in 1921. Today it is estimated there are 355,000.

PESSIMIST: A person who would commit suicide if he could do it without killing himself.

RUNWAY WATER, normally a hazard because it slows aircraft on takeoff, may be put to advantage. Some airports are considering using a trough of water at the end of runways to eliminate overshoot accidents on landing.

RICH
HARVEST

These are the products of man's labor—and God's. From the moment the seedlings were placed in the warm earth, they have been under constant care.

First came the rain and the sun—and then the ceaseless work of fertilizing, cultivating, and spraying. Last, came harvest time, when the proud growers gathered the rewards of their labor.

Only by such diligence can we hope for a truly bountiful crop. God has given the refreshing rain and warm sunshine, but He expects us to do our part.

And so it is with the care and cultivation of our spiritual lives. Man is endowed with many talents and qualities, but unless he tends and nurtures these gifts, they will not increase and grow.

Harvest time in the life of every person is at maturity, when men are at the peak of their usefulness and wisdom. By attending the services of the Church and by studying the Scriptures, we will realize greater happiness and contentment here on earth—and will be preparing ourselves for the RICH HARVEST of a life hereafter.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

BULLETIN:

6 tips that can help you get more warmth from your heating oil dollars

Your Shell Heating Oil supplier recommends these 6 ways to reduce heating costs and have a more comfortable home:

1. Keep your oil burner clean. Today's Shell Heating Oil contains special additive FOA-5X.® It helps keep critical burner parts free from clogging—assures better firing.

2. Guard against tank rust. Shell Sonitor® anti-rust treatment helps protect your storage tank for one full year, at no extra cost.

3. Check your thermostat location. If your thermostat is in a stairwell, on an outside wall or near an outside entrance—it may cause your burner to operate more often than necessary.

4. Shut off radiators or registers in rooms that aren't in regular use.

5. When fireplaces are not in use, make sure dampers are securely shut.

6. Keep attic ventilators closed during the heating season.

State Tax Levy Hits New Peak at 15.51 Mills

Total Rate for City of T. R. Falls is Not Yet Available

Many Minnesotans next year will pay the highest property taxes for state purposes in history, State Auditor Stafford King announced Thursday.

Total 1961 state mill rate—to be collected in 1962—will be 15.51 mills.

The 1960 rate—which is for taxes paid this year—is 13.85 mills.

Anticipated revenue increase from the raised rate is $2,026,585.

This will bring the total state property tax intake next year to $25,860,181, compared with $23,833,596 this year.

The total tax rate on Thief River Falls property will not be available until the budgets and levies for the city of Thief River Falls and the local school district have been adopted. The overall figure is expected to be substantially higher than the rates in effect this year.

The lower levy of 6.39 mills on homestead property will apply to property in all 87 counties.

Homestead property is property on which the first $4,000 of taxable valuation is exempt from property tax. It is property occupied by the owner as of May 1, 1961.

Chief reason for the increase in the total mill rate is the teachers' retirement fund, which will rise from 6.45 to 8.60 mills to meet higher demands on it by the legislature.

Cities of the first class don't have to pay this levy because they have their own retirement plans for teachers.

King's certificate of the state mill rate was mailed to county auditors Thursday, six days before the Nov. 15 deadline.

The mill rates for all state purposes are based on 13 specific taxes levied by the legislature.

This is the status of the five other categories of taxes beside the teachers' retirement fund:

State building, 5.46 mills, down .45 from 1960; St. Lawrence seaway property construction, .21 mills down .04; soldiers' relief (.10 mills) rural credit efficiency (.93) and school aid (.21), all the same as 1960.

The previous record high state mill rate was 14.32 mills in 1959.

Fair Association to Meet Thursday

Checking campaign material in the above photo taken at a meeting of county officers Friday are Judge Herman A. Kjos, chapter president; Mrs. Clifford Bjorkman, secretary; and Kenneth Taylor (standing) Northwest Region consultant for the state association, who has his office in the Pennington county courthouse in this city. A gradaute of Mankato State college with majors in physical education and health, Taylor was youth director of the Albert Lea YMCA prior to accepting a position with the state organization. Plan Meeting Here to Set up Experimental Aircraft Assn. Unit

A meeting of area aviation enthusiasts will be held in Thief River Falls in the near future to attempt to organize an area chapter of the Experimental Aircraft association, it was announced today.

The tentative date of the meeting is Nov. 30 at 8:30 p. m. A definite announcement concerning the date will be made later. The meeting will probably be held in the Thief River Falls airport administration building.

The Experimental Aircraft assn. is an educational organization which seeks to promote and stimulate private aviation at the grass roots level and cooperates with other organizations of a similar nature, such as the Antique Aircraft assn. and the Soaring Society of American and others. Headquarters of EAA is in Milwaukee, Wis.

While many members of EAA build their own airplanes, either from plans bought from other designers or designed by themselves, members are not expected or asked to build such aircraft as a prerequisite of EAA membership. Membership is composed of men—and women—from all walks of life, many of whom are not even pilots. Youths under 18 are given junior memberships and EAA has aroused a great deal of interest in aviation in the high school set across the nation. There are nearly 200 chapters in the U. S. and Canada.

Meetings are of an educational nature, mostly about topics related to aircraft design, construction, performance and flight safety. Membership in an EAA chapter should prove invaluable to would-be engineers in the aeronautical field, or future career pilots.

The proposed meeting in Thief River Falls is being co-sponsored by Kenneth Halliday, Fosston, and V. M. Draper, Thief River Falls. Between Halliday, Draper and Dale Stark, rt. 1, Thief River Falls, there are five homebuilt planes completed, or under construction in this area.

Anyone interested in joining EAA or desiring further information is urged to contact Halliday, Draper or Stark prior to the proposed meeting, which will be open to the public. High school youths are especially urged to attend, as well as scouts, former CAP members, etc.

It is hoped a good northwest Minnesota—northeast North Dakota chapter can be formed. At present, plans for the proposed chapter include a proposal to hold monthly meetings at a different location each month for the convenience of members in the various localities.

Man Arrested for Stealing Deer Here

Trophy of Minneapolis Man Recovered by Police

An alleged deer thief is in custody in the city jail today following some quick work by local police after a Minneapolis hunter reported his deer taken from his parked car late Saturday.

Wayne Anderson, Minneapolis, reported at 11:20 p.m. Saturday someone had taken his deer which had been tied on the rear of his car, which was parked on E. Third st. between LaBree and Horace avenues, between 10:30 and 11 p.m.

Some quick work by police soon resulted in the apprehension of John Taylor, a local resident, who had the deer in his possession. His car had been seen near the hunter's parked car by police shortly before the theft was reported, with the result that the police got their man and Anderson got his deer for the second time the same day.

Book Week Being Observed in City

Library Tours and Window Displays Are Featured

"Hurray for Books" is the theme of National Book Week which is being observed throughout the nation this week. Several observances have been arranged locally to join in the national activity.

Tours of Carnegie Public library will be held for classes in Thief River Falls elementary schools throughout the week with story telling for the first three grades to be conducted by Miss Bertha Hastad. Pupils in the upper three elementary grades will be given an insight into the way in which the library operates.

Three window displays in the downtown Thief River Falls area have also been arranged. The display on travel at First Federal Savins and Loan association has been arranged by Mrs. George Mostue. Mrs. Harold C. Olson has arranged displays on Peter Rabbit and other works of Beatrice Potter at Union State bank and fossils, stones and archaeology at Northern State bank. Mrs. Lloyd Bennes and Mrs. J. W. Ewing have charge of the library display.

BOOK WEEK is being observed throughout the nation this week with special attention being called to the fun and value of reading for enjoyment and education As a point of inerest in the Book Week observance, a bulletin board display has been arranged by Miss Julith Wold (above) in her fourth grade classroom at Washington elementary school. Covering the entire back wall of the room, the display features a theme of "Making Friends Around the World." A large world map centers the exhibit with cords leading from various countries to books concerning the country and its people. Souvenirs from the countries, some contributed by class members and others by teachers in the school, add interest to the display.

Heavy Signup for ASC Wheat & Barley Plan

All Signers Asking Advance Payments, Says P. W. Culkins

Patrick W. Culkins, manager of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, announced today that the first day of sign-up for the new 1962 wheat and barley programs on November 9 proved to be exceptionally heavy at the county ASCS office. He said that all those producers signing up were requesting advance payments which is permissible under the 1962 program.

Culkins said that in his opinion the chief reason for participants requesting advance payment is due to the fact that income from 1961 crops is below the expense involved in the production of crops because of drought conditions experienced over the greater part of the county during 1961.

He also stated that there are 13 days left in which producers can sign up this fall, and suggested that interested producers contact the county office by telephone or by mail if at all possible prior to the time of their visit to the county office. He pointed out that this would afford the county office an opportunity to arrange a more even flow of traffic throughout the remainder of the fall sign-up period.

Kenneth Ewing of Crookston is staying at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellingson, while doing deer hunting.

Sugar Beet Growers in Session in G. Forks Adopt RRV Proposal

Leaders of sugar beet grower and development associations from Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota and Montana, meeting at the Ducotah Hotel in Grand Forks, North Dakota, Wednesday, November 8, agreed in substance to support the proposal presented by the Red River Valley Sugarbeet Growers association. This proposal would:

(1) Increase the quota of the beet sugar industry by slightly more than one million tons over the next five years. (Quota under this plan would increase from 2,724,000 tons in 1962 to 3,737,000 tons in 1967). This plan actually represents an increase in beet quota of over 1,600,000 tons when compared with the present basic quota of slightly more than 2,100,000 tons.

(2) Allow for expansion and growth of the industry through availability (as determined by increase in quota) over the next five years.

(3) Extension of the Sugar Act until December 31, 1967.

(4) Elimination of all foreign whites with exception of those covered by treaties of the United States.

(5) Suggest a new approach to the setting of the consumptive estimate made by the Secretary of Agriculture along more realistic lines.

(6) Allocation of Puerto Rican deficits to other areas. Allocation of Hawaii deficits to domestic beets. (This allocation figured in new quota).

(7) Allocation of growth factor to domestic areas—75 percent beets, 25 percent to mainland cane. (This allocation figured in new quota). The texas delegation, although indicating support for this proposal, indicated prior committment to support legislation to be proposed by Congressman Poague of Texas.

Harry Oen represented the Tri-County association. The meeting was also attended by Vern Erickson of the Soo Line. Congressman Odin Langen was one of the speakers.

Mrs. Paul Engelstad, Mrs. Mons Engelstad, Gina Gunerson of this city and Mrs. Senny Engelstad of Moorhead visited at the Axel Engelstad home Friday evening.

Council Is Nearly Thru in Studying Budget for 1962

Initial review of budget requests for the various city departments in 1962 was completed Thursday evening at an adjourned meeting of the Thief River Falls city council. Current indications are that the total budget will be very close to that of last year and perhaps slightly under last year's figure.

Further budget review, following completion of request revision, will take place at the regular meeting of the council Tuesday, November 21 at 8 p. m. There are about 25 city departments included in the budget in addition to a number of funds for which set amounts of money must be appropriated.

Fire Chief Clears up Confusion as to Magazine Drives

Says Firemen's Campaign Has No Connection with Telephone Solicitors

Roy Langevin, cihef of the Thief River Falls fire department, reports that considerable confusion has resulted from a competing magazine sale firm which has moved into Thief River Falls simultaneously with the annual department magazine campaign.

In an advertisement published elsewhere in today's Times, Chief Langevin explains that the competing firm makes contact by telephone to sell subscriptions while the firm representing the fire department makes direct contact with the city residents. A number of people have called the department to see if the company making telephone contact represented the department.

The department sponsors only bonded representatives of the publisher with credentials signed by the officers and members of the fire department. Proceeds from the magazine sale sponsored by the department will be used for acquiring additional sickroom equipment for free home use by any resident who is sick, disabled or bedfast.

Chief Langevin wishes to make it clear that the company making telephone calls is not sponsored by the department.

Langen Speaks at Stephen Saturday

Representative Odin Langen of Kennedy will report to the people of northwestern Minnesota on the results of the first session of the 87th congress at a public meeting at Stephen Saturday at 8 p. m. Representing the 9th congressional district of Minnesota since 1958, Congressman Langen will answer questions from the audience following his talk at the American Legion hall in Stephen.

Lee Selnes of Alvarado will act as chairman of the meeting with local arrangements being handled by a committee headed by Curtis Lundeen.

This will be one of the few appearances Rep. Langen will be able to make in northwestern Minnesota between sessions and those attending the meeting are asked to come with questions in mind to give the congressman an idea of which problems the people of his district are most concerned with. Lunch will be served following the meeting.

Social Security Man Here Tuesday

A representative of the Grand Forks district office of the Social Security administration will be in Thief River Falls at the city Auditorium Tuesday, November 14, at 10 a. m. to 12 noon. Individuals who have questions regarding social security or who wish to file claims may contact him on that date.

Auto License Sale to Start on Wednesday

Marjorie Hanson to Sell 1962 Plates at 101 East Second st.

The new three year motor vehicle license plates will go on sale Wednesday, November 15, it was announced this week by Marjorie Hanson, deputy motor vehicle registrar for the Thief River Falls area. The local office is located at 101 East Second St.

According to the law passed in the 1961 legislature the 1962 passenger car plates will be used three years, or through 1964, and truck and trailer plates will be used two years.

Secretary of State Joseph Donovan announced as in prior years, the state has mailed to each registered vehicle owner an application card which will contain all the pertinent information concerning his vehicle. However, this does not solve the problem of an owner who during the past year purchased a different car and for some reason has not yet received his green 1961 registration card.

In some cases there may be a file letter from the motor vehicle department concerning an irregularity in the transfer or registration and the owner has not yet completed the requirements. If so, said Mrs. Hanson, now is the time to get all correspondence cleared up so the state will be able to mail the 1962 application.

If the 1961 registration card has been lost, the owner should apply at once for a duplicate. The fee for this as established by law is 25 cents plus the service fee and notary fee of each notary required.

"Dig out that 1961 registration card now", Mrs. Hanson urges, "and put it in a convenient place so when the IBM application card arrives about November 15th, bring both to the deputy's office for issuance of plates."

Proposed Turkey Marketing Orders Topic Here Friday

Meeting in Legion Club Sponsored by Extension Service & Turkey Growers

A series of meetings to discuss the proposed marketing orders for turkeys and turkey hatching eggs has been announced by Robert W. Berg, extension poultry specialist at the University of Minnesota.

Sponsored jointly by the University of Minnesota's Agricultural Extension Service, the Minnesota Turkey Growers Association and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, one of the meetings will be held Friday, Nov. 17 at the American Legion club in Thief River Falls.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. with a formal presentation by University of Minnesota, USDA and industry representatives. Afternoon sessions will be devoted to question and answer sessions.

Proposed marketing orders for turkeys and turkey hatching eggs have been recommended by the National Turkey Advisory Committee and submitted to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman for review.

Included in the proposals are provisions for market research and development, regulation of turkey grade, size and quality at the handler level, prohibition of unfair trade practices and effective supply management.

Secretary Freeman can issue marketing orders only after public hearings, approval of a workable plan for market stabilization and approval by a two-thirds majority of producers voting in a referendum.

If approved, this will become the first national marketing order for an agricultural commodity.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

by Laura Duerst

PENNINGTON COUNTY HOME AGENT

We hear so much about fall out but are we doing anything about it? Remember grandma's pantry, its shelves ladened with food ready for any emergency, winter storm or company? Today, when we are vulnerable as always to the ravages of nature as well as the possible attack by nuclear weapon, we should become wise and likewise prepare for emergencies with the modern equivalent of grandma's pantry.

You should have a two-week food supply in your home shelter area and a three-day survival kit in the family car. To estimate how much food you should buy for your families' two-week home for storage, multiply the number of people in your house by the following amounts. These amounts are for one person for two weeks. If the children are young, the amounts can be decreased by one-fourth.

MILK: Powdered nonfat dry, 2 pkgs.; evaporated, 4 (14½-oz.) cans.

JUICES: Tomato, 2 (1-qt. 14 oz.) cans; Orange, 2 (1-qt. 14 oz.) cans; Grapefruit, 2 (1-qt. 14 oz.) cans.

FRUITS: Peaches, 2 (1-lb.-14-oz.) cans; Pears, 2 (1-lb. 14-oz.) cans; Dried prunes or apricots, 2 lbs.

VEGETABLES: Tomatoes, 4 (16-oz.) cans; Peas, 4 (16-17 oz.) cans; Corns, 2 (12-16½-oz.) cans; Green beans, 2 (15½-oz.) cans.

SOUPS: Assorted, 8 (10¼-oz.) cans.

MEATS ? MEAT SUBSTITUTES Beef Stew 2 (1-lb. can Salmon, 2 (1-lb.) cans or Tuna, 4 (6-7-oz.) cans, Spaghetti and meat balls, 2 (15½-oz.) cans; Baked beans, 2 (1-lb.) cans; Cheese, 2 jars; peanut butter, 2 jars.

CEREALS: Ready-to-eat, 14 (individual serving pkgs.).

CRACKERS-COOKIES: 2 boxes.

BEVERAGES: Instant coffee, 2 (2-oz.) jars or instant tea, 2 (1-oz.) jars or instant cocoa, 2 (1-lb.) pkgs.

SOFT DRINKS: 24 bottles.

Here are other essential supplies: Water in jugs or bottles, salt, sugar, Matches, fuel, cooking utensils, can opener, tableware and utensils, paper supplies, old newspapers.

Portable radio, flashlight, candles and holders, first-aid kit, pail, blankets, garbage container.

The Bible or other family religious requirements.

Optional supplies: Candy, gum, tobacco.

Grade Principals Asn. Organizing Advisory Groups

The Minnesota Elementary Principals' association announces the development of education advisory committees that will direct their attention and study toward cirriculum areas of importance in the elementary schools. Interested members of the principals' association will be asked to give leadership to their fellow principals by doing research and study, collecting information, and presenting the results to their associates.

The results of the committees' efforts will be used in cooperation with the state department of education for the development of improved curriculum guides, as well as being made available to individual members for utilization at the "grass roots" level.

Robert Corry, principal of Folwell school, Rochester, has been appointed chairman of the health committee, and Herbert Hartshorn, director of elementary education, Edina, chairman of the social studies committee. Further appointments will be made in the near future.

Senior Class at Plummer Offers Comedy Nov. 20th

Cast Busily Rehearsing for Presentation of 3-act Play, 'Dear Diary'

Rehearsals are continuing at Plummer high school for the presentation of "Dear Diary", a three-act comedy, to be presented by the senior class on Monday, November 20, at 8 p. m. in the school auditoirum. Mrs. Paul Anderson is director of the production.

Included in the cast are Carol Cardinal, Mrs. Maxwell; Richard Vigstol, Mr. Maxwell; Margie Gallant, Connie; Sharon Milligan, Betty Lou; Orvis Lunke, Wilbur; Larry Myhre, Hercules; Arlean Torkelson, Bernadine; Don Fox, Marvin; Diane Wilkens, Aunt Mary; Marlys Meyer, Miss Murray; Clyde Pederson, J. C. Mallory; Myrna Malwitz, Molly; and Gloria Halle, Miss Lewis.

The play centers around the events which occur in the Maxwell household when Mr. Maxwell happens to browse through a make-believe diary kept by his imaginative daughter Betty Lou. Betty Lou has always been the pride of the Maxwell household and was the reason that Mrs. Maxwell has been asked to speak on "Understanding the Effervescent Adolescent" at the P. T. A. meeting.

The household is really in an uproar when Mr. Maxwell finds in Betty Lou's diary that his daughter Connie is about to elope with her boy friend Marvin, that Wilbur and his pal Hercules have fallen in with a treacherous gang headed by some ruthless individual named Conrad, and that Betty Lou is forsaking herself to save Wilbur.

Centennial Year of 'Battle Hymn' Observed Nov. 19

The stirring words written by Julia Ward Howe into the song "Battle Hymn of the Republic" in the early morning hours of November 19, 1861, will ring again through the nation this month as schools, churches and other organizations turn their attention to the centennial of the event.

Highlighting the observances will be a program to be sponsored by the District of Columbia Civil War Centennial Commission at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. D., at 3 p. m. November 18. Special invitations already have gone out to President Kennedy, prominent Government officials, and others.

Bruce Catton, author, historian, and chairman of the New York Civil War Centennial Commission, will be the principal speaker.

1,003 Registered at Schools' Open House Wednesday

Increased parent participation was noted last Wednesday at the open house held in the three Thief River Falls elementary schools as a feature of the observance of American Education Week.

Arnt Aune, director of the area vocational school who served as chairman of the observance, reported that a total of 1,003 persons was registered, there being duplications in some instances where visitors had children in more than one classroom.

Of the total, 428 were registered at Knox school, 325 at Washington and 250 at Northrop.

Don Bruggeman Herd Has Top Average for October

Orville Peters supervisor of the Pennington county Dairy Herd Improvement assn. lists the following herds as the top ten in the association for October:

	Avg. Milk	Avg. B-fat.
Don Bruggeman	1152	39.5
Paul Morkassel	919	38.9
Myron Carlson	993	36.8
Art Stenberg	1033	35.6
Martin Hanson	897	34.1
Clyde Christensen	1003	32.5
Dale Svendsgaard	852	31.3
Moldy Morrison	789	26.3
Maynard Mehrkens	725	25.5
John Burtness	705	23.8

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butter fat produced is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month.

If too many dry cows are included in the herd then the average for that month may be low even though the cows which are milking produce a lot of milk.

The DHIA section of the association is now full with the signing up of the Orlando Cherwestad & Son herd in Deer Park. This brings the association to full strength with 24 herds on regular DHIA test.

Farmers who want to get their herd on test can still get into the Owner-Sampler section. The new electronic method provides as much information under owner-sampler testing as DHIA but the O-S herds can not use their information for advertising purposes.

The information gained is excellent and farmers are urged to contact Orville Peters at Thief River Falls or the extension office about getting O-S service.

David St. Michel Named RLF Mayor

Only 200 Voter Cast in Quiet Election Tuesday

Red Lake Falls' biennial election came off Tuesday with no surprises as expected and little interest was shown by voters since the turnout was light—around 200, says the Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Elected mayor was the only candidate, David St. Michel, who will succeed Ralph Petterson whose term of office ends December 31. Aldermen-at-large Clem Johanneck and Arthur Guillemette were re-elected as was alden Huot of the 1st Ward.

Two new aldermen were voted in—Robert L. Baker of the 2nd Ward and Ed Etterman of the 3rd Ward. Mrs. Alice Baker was elected treasurer without opposition and Lawrence Fournier was reelected assessor.

Justice of the peace V. M. Healy who had filed for the job, was re-elected and Lawrence Phillion, current 3rd ward alderman, received 10 write-in votes for the second justice position.

Park board commissioners elected were Gordon Steinert for a four-year term with 5 write-in votes; Gregg Poullot and George W. Christie tied for a two-year term with 3 votes each and Robert Dodds received 8 votes for a one-year term.

A new design eight-cent regular postage stamp, portraying General John J. Pershing, will go on sale at the Thief River Falls postoffice next Saturday, November 18, Postmaster R. J. Dryden announced today. The stamp is printed in khaki color.

POWER MOWERS injured some 75,000 persons this past summer, and rotary models did most of the damage. About three of every four accidents resulted from contact with blades—the rest from flying objects.

Fewer Workers in State Last Month

Non-farm Employment Down 6,400 in October

Minnesota's nonfarm employment declined seasonally to a level of 980,300 workers in October, or 6,400 workers below the September level. Compared to a year ago, employment was down 2,200 workers as the over-the-year deficit continued to narrow.

The largest seasonal losses were registered in canning (-7,000), and construction (-1,000). The drop in canning employment was due to the close of the vegetable pack season. The onset of cold weather was the main cause for the decrease in construction employment.

Partially offsetting the drop in employment, gains were recorded in the sugar refining industry, (1,400) in department stores (1,100) services (2,300), and government (2,900). The department store increases reflected the usual year end sales buildup. The gains in service and government were due mainly to the fall opening of colleges and the University.

Legion Junior Aux Group Plans Busy Session Saturday

American Legion Junior Auxiliary members in Thief River Falls will meet at the local club rooms Saturday afternoon to make Christmas candles, corsages and centerpieces, according to Mrs. N. H. Kortuem and Mrs. LeRoy Nabben, advisors.

Items made will be offered for sale to members of the Legion Auxiliary and proceeds from the sale will be turned over to veterans hospitals in the state for use in their gift shops. The hospitals will use the money to purchase items for the gift shop, an area where hospitalized veterans may select gifts for their families at Christmas time.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Times:

When I wrote your paper to suggest that the Lincoln High School Library be kept open evenings to relieve the congestion at the city library I did not believe it possible that anyone would infer that I wanted to go back to the Middle Ages, burn books or even censor them. I would not even burn the "Tropic of Cancer" although I do NOT believe it belongs on a library shelf. As to the "sterile mind" this could be easily settled by comparing the books on my critics shelf with mine. The letter also stated that "by inference" the employees at the city library were not competent. This is not true. No reference was made to the library in any way. I have always found the staff at the city library cooperative, competent and courteous.

We have two athletic fields each used a few hours a year. Both are owned by the same people. With our tax rate over 200 mills, with no prospect of any reduction, we should realize that one of them is a luxury we can ill afford.

Let us use the facilities we have to the greatest possible extent. If, when this is done, and we still need more room, let us consider enlarging the library.

MAKING SURE that infectious bovine rhinotracheitis, or "Red Nose," does not cause loss among their 450 head of feeder stock, is C. E. Stoissel (right), co-owner with F. Seed of the Fairhills Farm, Farmington, Minn. . . . A relatively new disease of the respiratory tract, "Red Nose" has spread eastward from the feed lot regions of Colorado and is being reported with increasing frequency among Minnesota feeder and dairy herds. The fatality rate is not high but it causes severe drop in milk production, loss of weight in feeders, and frequent abortion. . . . Prevention is the best procedure. Veterinarian Wesley D. Anderson (left), of Rosemount, Minn., employs the new live virus vaccine which has proven effective against the disease and was used to immunize the entire Fairhills herd. As in all outbreaks of animal diseases, prompt action is essential before the disease spreads beyond control.

Selling Minnesota Food Products

When you read this I will be in New York City on a trade trip for our state. I will have one meeting with the top officials of New York headquartered firms with plants in Minnesota. Another will be with security analysts, another with concerns I believe should have plants in Minnesota—and a final one with the editors of 30 food magazines. Here I will be selling Minnesota as the source for quality food products.

At the food luncheon we'll have a display of Minnesota food products and also the Thanksgiving dinner pack I am sending to all the other Governors which contains Minnesota turkey - potatoes - butter - peans - corn - biscuits - pumpkin pie - and all the rest for a complete dinner. This is all an effort to identify the name "Minnesota" with fine food.

In our state much has been done to develop crop varieties that yield heavy and resist desease. We have done much to improve the breeding, raising and health of livestock. We have laws to insure sanitation and good quality. I believe we need to do more to promote and sell the fine products we produce.

If I were to ask you what state you think of when I say potato you would undoubtedly say "Idaho." This is because of promotion. Minnesota has potatoes of the finest quality for baking, cooking, or processing.

What if I say "cheese"—you'd be apt to say "Wisconsin". Minnesota ranks fifth among all the states in cheese production but Wisconsin sells ten times as much as we do.

I am hopeful that the next legislature will recognize the value that would come to our state by investing in promotion of Minnesota quality food products. Meanwhile with the tools at hand I will sell and promote.

In your own shopping look for "Minnesota" on the label, in the brand name, firm name, or firm address—this is your assurance of fine food quality.

The squad will meet the ever-powerful Crookston Ag School squad at Crookston on Wednesday evening, November 29. In last season's matches against the Aggies, the Prowlers dropped a pair of decisions, 31 to 21 and 30 to 23.

Al Shaff will be in his first season here as coach of the Prowler grapplers, succeeding Chuck DeCorsey. Shaff, who will be assisted by Dale Folger, who will tutor the 'B' squad wrestlers, has eight lettermen returning for this season's campaign. Goodridge Woman Hurt in Accident on T. H. 1 Sunday

Mrs. Pearl Dahle, Goodridge, was hospitalized last night after a one-car mishap about six miles east of the city on TH1, the sheriff's office reported today.

Mrs. Dahle was shaken up and sustained torn muscles when she pulled off into the ditch to avoid an oncoming car in her lane about midnight. The car did not roll over nor was it seriously damaged but she was badly shaken and suffered slight injuries in the mishap.

She was brought to the hospital here by Mr. and Mrs. James Wells, Goodridge, according to Eugene Presteggard, deputy sheriff.

Peace Corps Test Set Nov. 28-29

Postmaster Ernest Swanson of Goodridge announced today that the entrance test for the Peace Corps will be given on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 28 and 29. Within a few days information showing the place and time for the examination in this area will be posted on the bulletin board of the post office.

SUCCESS on the deer trails this weekend came bountifully for the above hunters whose three bucks field dressed at more than 600 pounds. Left to right are George Hale, former manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company here; Dr. Ed Nelson and Dr. Herb Achenbach, local dentists. The trio hunted the Agassiz National Wildlife refuge east of Holt and bagged the trophy at the left Saturday. On Sunday they picked up the remainder of their limit, the buck at the right tipping the scales at 231 pounds field dressed. The refuge was flooded with hunters Saturday with most parties having at least fair success. A number of deer were also taken Sunday but fewer hunters were in the woods on a chilly, windy day to get the deer moving.

Deer Hunting

With the hunting conditions (lack of snow, warm weather and light winds on Saturday, and brisk winds and poor visibility on Sunday) providing the deer with the odds over the hunters, the opening weekend of the venison season was rated as fair. There were enough deer shot during the first two days, though, to indicate that the herd in this area is of considerable size.

As has been the custom the past number of years, the Lake Agassiz Wildlife Refuge proved to be the mecca for the hunters on opening day. There was a great concentration of hunters, particularly in the southeast corner of the refuge, and the reports were that the shooting was a bit below that of last year. Hunters who secured strategic spots in the refuge, toward the Kelly ridge and Webster tower, had better luck, and were successful in filling their tags.

But while the getting of the deer is of importance, there is another factor that makes deer hunting an attraction. And that is the companionship and friendships that are encouraged by the experiences of camp life. Several of the deer hunting parties that move into the "big woods" from here have been in operation for many, many years. For instance, the Carl Wennberg, Herb Jung, Carl Kretzschmar, Al Stenberg, George Erickson and Otis Wold group, who have their trailer-camp several miles south of Williams, have been together since the mid-1930's. In the earlier days they had their camp along the Bankton trail. This camp is perhaps the best-organized, for they have Herb and Carl as chefs, Al and Otis as dishwashers, and Carl and George as engineers.

Another old-time deer hunting party is the Skomedal-Rupprecht Silver Creek gang. This group, and the party varies from a dozen to twenty hunters during the season, moves into the Rapid river country like a logging camp, putting up a pair of huge tents, and having their own electric light plant. It's quite a task for head chef Al Christofferson to plan a menu for these boys, but he sets a fine table.

Getting down into the smaller and more intimate parties, there is the three-man group of Al Berge, Art Rambeck, and Helmer Ole Ness, who have their camp in the vicinity of the Bankton trail. And the Orlando Bishop, Web Mayes, and Vern Thompson group, who have hunted the Oaks' camp and Norris camp areas for many years.

Having visited several of these camps during the past years, there is one thing of which I am certain, and that is that the boys aren't starving.

With the Bowlers

The pin-setting machines at Carl Onkka's Family Bowl lanes surely had a workout last week as a pair of teams, the Elaine's and the Schenley's, posted team totals in the high 2700's.

On Tuesday night, in Business league competition, the Elaine's racked the maples for a 2781 total, setting a season record for a three-game series. In amassing that total, pilot Shorty Perkins had a 160, a 135, and a 160; second Gary Vettelson chalked up a 191, a 190, and a 162; Stan Cockrell scored a 177, a 203, and a 204; Jesse DuChamp, who marked up a 652-pin total, had games of 216-204-232; and anchor Wally DuChamp came up with a 197, a 171, and a 177.

That three-game total was in danger of being broken on Friday night when the Schenley's, with an exhibition of consistent scoring, having games of 917, 912, and 951, rolled up a total of 2780 pins. Just one pin shy of the record.

For the Schenley's, pilot Harold Johnson bowled a 206, a 189, and 194, for a 589; Chuck Krause had games of 143, 178, and 200, for a 521; Truman Hemmestvedt, the "mayor" of Kratka, had games of 153, 202, and 191, for a 546; Emil Dostal had games of 235, 169, and 182, for a 586; and anchor Marv Washnesky had games of 180, 174, and 178, for a 532.

A Story

Jerome (Tony) Poole, the Prowler baseball and hockey player who was the victim of an odd accident when he fractured bones in both wrists while doing weight-lifting exercises, has been released from the local hospital. It is expected that Tony, if he continues to make a normal recovery, will be ready to join coach Gene Sack's hockey squad some time in January.

A story is being circulated about Tony, and is being credited to his dad Elmer. It seems that Elmer was greatly concerned about the injury to Tony's wrists, and he asked the doctor if Tony would be able to play the piano after he recovered from the injury. The doctor gave assurance that Tony would. "Well," said Elmer, "I'm glad of that as Tony couldn't play the piano before he was injured." This sounds like Elmer.

Mercury Rises to 54 Mark Saturday

Snowfall Lacking for Opening of Deer Season

Deer hunters were forced to find their game sans their greatest ally, snow, when the season opened Saturday on a pleasant day reminiscent of late September. It was the second day in November the mercury climbed as high as 54 above.

Temperatures have been comparatively mild since Thursday and there has been no precipitation. Day-to-day temperatures were: Thursday, high 37 and low 12, Friday, 49 and 25; Saturday, 54 and 36 and Sunday, 48 and 28. The low this morning was 21.

The forecast is for mostly cloudy skies today with cold temperatures, generally fair and colder tonight. Partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures are predicted for Tuesday.

High temperatures today will be in the thirties and the lows tonight will range from 12 to 20.

Charges Against Robert Sauve, Driver, Pending

Three Thief River Falls residents were involved in a one-car mishap just north of Oklee Sunday, with injuries resulting to two of the persons.

Robert Sauve was the driver of a car which struck an abutment of the Hill river bridge a glancing blow then caromed off into the ditch on the left side of the bridge, strewing its occupants along its path as it went.

One occupant, Rodney Klein, sustained a serious jaw injury and was sent to a Moorhead hospital for treatment. Another passenger, James Breznay sustained fractures and is hospitalized here, according to Red Lake county Sheriff Gerald Hinze.

At least one charge will be issued against Sauve, that of driving after license revocation, and perhaps others, according to Hinze.

Butter Surplus Is Again Building up

Dept. of Agriculture Has 160 Million Pounds on Hand

A new surplus of butter is building up in government hands.

The Agriculture department reported Friday in Washington it had stocks totaling 160 million pounds on Oct. 31 compared with 16 million a year earlier. This increase reflects a sharp increase in government purchase of dairy products under price support programs.

Purchases of surplus butter between April 1 and Oct. 31 totaled 251 million pounds, compared with 82 million in the like period last year.

Behind this increase is an upturn in milk production unaccompanied by a similar increase in consumption of milk and other dairy products.

Between April 1 and Oct. 31, the department donated 66 million pounds of butter to the school lunch program, charitable institutions and needy persons.

Pilot Sugar Beet Project for Youth Called Successful

Employment Service Says 468 Youngsters Earned Money Thinning Beets

Some 468 Minnesota teenage boys and girls proved this past summer that they could do what many skeptics said couldn't be done—they went out into the sugar beet fields of the state, did a very acceptable job of thinning and hoeing and in the process earned themselves over 20 thousand dollars.

Frank T. Starkey, commissioner of the state's employment security department, stated that the youth of Minnesota have demonstrated when properly organized, trained and supervised, they are willing to work and will stick to a job even when the going gets tough.

In a report released recently, Starkey said that the 14 to 17 year old youths (267 boys, 201 girls) were organized into twenty-seven crews which worked for thirty-six sugar beet growers, for whom they either hoed or thinned a total of almost two thousand acres of beets in the six week season. Crews were organized through the state employment service offices at Albert Lea, Austin, Crookston, Fairmont, Hopkins, Marshall, Moorhead, Willmar and Thief River Falls.

The young workers were paid on a piece-rate basis, with the average earnings for the group coming to 72 cents an hour. On better fields, a few of the youths made as high as two dollars an hour. In addition to the earnings of the youngsters, $3,461.31 was made by the "straw bosses", teachers, retired farmers, housewives and college students who supervised and worked with the crews in the fields.

Starkey said that a vote of thanks is due the sugar beet growers who "pioneered" in letting the youths try their hands at this kind of work.

Research Aids in Ample Food Supply

USDA Adds That It Helps Cut Cost-price Squeeze

Developing improved varieties of crops not only helps reduce the cost-price squeeze for farmers but also protects the nation's food supply against the onslaught of new plant diseases.

This is brought out by E. R. Ausemus, professor of agronomy and research agronomist for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, stationed on the St. Paul Campus of the University of Minnesota.

One of the main objectives of crops research by university agricultural experiment stations and USDA is to develop varieties that will yield highest returns per unit of production. This in turn helps stabilize production and reduces the cost-price squeeze for farmers, Ausemus points out in an article in the fall issue of Minnesota Farm and Home Science, quarterly publication of the University of Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station.

Plant scientists are constantly at work developing new varieties of crops which have resistance to different types of diseases.

In order to protect themselves against losses from plant diseases, Minnesota farmers have changed wheat and barley varieties often, according to Ausemus.

Marquis occupied about 50 per cent of the wheat acreage in Minnesota during the 1919-1930 period.

In 1939, Thatcher, a stem rust-resistant variety, was grown on 71 percent of the acreage in the state. But Thatcher, because of its susceptibility to leaf rust, dropped to 15 percent of the acreage in 1944 and was replaced by Rival, Regent and Mida. These varieties originally were resistant to leaf rust but became susceptible.

By 1954, Lee, another leaf rust-resistant variety, occupied 66 percent of the acreage. Then, following the epidemic of Race 15B of stem rust, Selkirk replaced Lee and in 1959 occupied 91 percent of the acreage in Minnesota.

A similar story could be told for barley.

16,213 Confined in Institutions in State Sept. 30

Welfare Commissioner Morris Hursh announced Wednesday 16,213 persons were residents of state institutions under his department's jurisdiction on Sept. 30.

This was an increase of 498 persons over the previous month. The Faribault School for the Deaf and Blind reopened in September and many mentally deficient and epileptic patients returned from summer vacations, thus accounting for the increase.

The mental hospital population totaled 9,508 at the end of September. This total included 9,247 mentally ill and 261 inebriates. A drop of 50 population of mental patients was reported during September.

Insects are used to destroy certain weeds by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Imported beetles cleared a half million acres of weeds in California and the Northwest.

Iron Mining and Taxes

"Iron Mining and Taxes in Minnesota" is the title of a timely report issued by the Bureau of Economic Studies of Macalaster College. In an introductory statement President Harvey M. Rice says:

"Macalaster College is doubly proud to present this bulletin relating to the impact of state and local government policy on the iron mining industry in Minnesota. First it is a timely study of an important problem facing the people of Minnesota, and especially those communities in the northern half of the state. A major purpose we feel of higher education in general, and liberal arts education in particular, is to bring to bear time-tested discipline and knowledge on current problems, and to enlighten and extend to people beyond the classroom the benefits of intellectual pursuit. We feel this bulletin is a small, but significant contribution toward this ongoing and larger objective of Macalaster."

Associate Professor Harold I. Lunde, Assistant Director of the Bureau of Economic Studies, adds this note:

"Discussion of such a controversial subject as taxes and iron mining in Minnesota is almost certain to arouse disagreement in the minds of some readers. However, the author's methods and purposes in researching have been as careful and as objective as possible. Controversial issues have not been avoided. Reliance has been placed on facts to support the conclusions. Where judgments or opinions are expressed, they are those of the author and not the College."

We are satisfied that the report is the result of a thorough study of all phases of the problem by competent men, in the best interests of the state of Minnesota. We believe it merits the respectful consideration of all who are concerned about what is best for the future of our state.

The report is much too long for detailed coverage in this column, but the summary and four concluding recommendations follow:

"Minnesota's mining industry is beset by a number of problems. The competition between steel and other nonsteel products is forcing steel producers to use every means possible to cut costs. The use of high-grade iron ores that increase the efficiency of the blast furnace and reduce coke and limestone requirements is one way of cutting costs.

"Since 1950, increasing quantities of high-grade foreign ores have been imported by steel producers in the United States. These ores are sold at prices which have reduced the market value of Minnesota's natural iron ores. To meet the competition, Minnesota ores must be sold at a discount from published Lake Erie prices. All this is inescapable because steel producers must procure that iron ore which will permit them to produce pig iron at the lowest possible cost.

"Taxes, the largest single cost of iron mining in Minnesota, have been increasing steadily. Taxes are one of the costs over which the mining companies have no control. They are costs which the mining companies cannot reduce by improvements in productive efficiency.

"The costs of local governments and education on the iron range are much higher than in other areas of the state. The low 'full and true' values applied to non-mineral property force mining companies to pay disproportionately high property taxes. Iron ore reserves, which are gradually being depleted, still bear about 70 per cent of the property tax burden in the iron mining communities of Minnesota. Because of past experience, and the uncertainties of future tax burdens in Minnesota, the mining industry has been building most of its low-grade iron concertators in areas outside the state.

"The economic well-being of communities on the iron range depends on the willingness of people there and elsewhere in Minnesota to create a favorable 'climate' for investment in iron mining.

E"ncouragement for both taconite investment and natural iron production would provide much needed employment on the iron range. This should be pursued. The adoption of the following measures would be a good beginning toward creating a healthier mining economy in Minnesota:

"1. Equalization of non-mineral property values on the iron range with those of the rest of the state.

"2. Sincere efforts should be made by iron range communities to reduce costs and improve local government efficiency — especially education.

"3. The occupation tax rate should be reduced. Reappraisal should be made of the occupation tax law to adjust it to the changing conditions of the mining industry — especially in the case of taconite.

"4. The royalty tax should be eliminated because it is in effect a tax on a legitimate expense of business.

"These proposals, if implemented fully, would help to improve the ability of Minnesota's mining industry to compete with high-grade iron ores from elswhere. Such proposals put to practice would create a more favorable climate for the business of mining and would certainly allay some of the fears of people considering investment in iron mining in Minnesota. The economic future of Minnesota's mining areas depends on the stimulation of the mining industry, particularly the taconite and semi-taconite industries."

This report on Iron Mining and Taxes in Minnesota is the third of a series of publications on American Capitalism by Macalaster College, and others are in the making. The school is to be commended for its contributions in this field which too often is looked upon as the private domain of the politician. Our government can be successful only to the extent that our people are informed. Too much of the information we get on the problems of government is handed down to us by the politicians and politicians are inclined to tell us what they think we would like to hear rather than what we should hear.

There Must Be Controls

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Nehru apparently were not able to reach complete agreement on a nuclear test ban. At the close of their sessions the two leaders issued a statement in which they spoke of the "urgent need" for a test ban treaty "with necessary provision for inspection and control." But the statement said that Kennedy is unwilling to accept another uncontrolled moratorium on nuclear tests. Nehru has called for an immediate moratorium, hopeful that inspection controls could be agreed upon later.

President Kennedy's position in effect tells the world that he no longer has confidence in a Khrushchev promise, and in this position he no doubt will have the support of most Americans and American allies.

Nehru Scolded Us

Prime Minister Nehru of India scolded us Americans gently for believing that all other nations want to be like ours. We like this man of peace who visited our country last week and we are willing to believe that he is sincere in not wanting India to be like America. It would be helpful however if he would be a little more specific in informing us in what ways he wanted his country to be different.

As we understand it he wants our financial help to industrialize his nation. He wants better living conditions for his people. He wants the people of India to remain self-governing. He wants his people to have opportunities for education.

These are the things that we, and several generations of our ancestors, have worked for. We have made more progress than some of the backward countries mainly because we have worked harder and longer to earn these good things. And we are contribuing, we think generously, to encourage other countries to put forth greater effort in their struggle to do as we have done. When they come to us for help they indicate that that is what they hope to accomplish. What's wrong with that?

We dare say that as the years pass, unless we destroy ourselves, Americans and Indians will have many more things in common. They may even follow our example and get their cows off the streets and back into pastures. We like Nehru and wish his people well. We are sure that is the sentiment of most Americans.

Too Many Potatoes

Recently a high government official scolded the potato growers for growing too many potatoes. He told them:

"Growers cannot expect the government to come to their rescue, year after year, when they plant potatoes without consideration of the market potential. Growers have spent unnecessary dollars in production costs on over 100,000 surplus acres of full crop potatoes and, in so doing, have threatened the prime source of their income — their commercial market price structure. A diversion program can only help to a limited extent in promoting the orderly marketing of the crop."

Can you guess who the nasty Republican was who talked so sensibly? Why it was none other than our own Orville, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman.

Of course he is right. Growers cannot expect the government to come to their rescue, year after year, when they grow any crop "without consideration of the market potential," except for one reason and that is because the politicians have promised the farmers that the government would come to their rescue. We would have liked Orville Freeman if he had talked a few years ago as he did in this instance.

There was justification for government price stabilization for farm products following the war, to assist in the adjustment back to peacetime market needs. But that should have been a short program with the government gradually withdrawing its supports and turning the problem of production controls over to the producers for their own management. And that process should be started now.

The Practical Nurse

(St. Paul Pioneer Press)

Minnesotans are reminded, by the presence in St. Paul of delegates to the annual convention of the National Federation of Licensed Practical Nurses, that the LPN rapidly is assuming a more important role on the nation's medical scene.

This is, indeed, reflected in the theme of the convention, "New Frontiers in Practical Nursing." The delegates will discuss not only new job opportunities and responsibilities given the practical nurse recent years but also talk about ways to improve care and nursing standards. Getting special consideration will be the field of geriatric nursing — care of the aged.

Weeds in a shelterbelt can be a problem. Erling Anderson tried chemical weed control on part of the newly—planted windbreak on his Yellow Medicine county farm, now wishes he had sprayed the entire planting. County Agent David S. Johnson says Atrazine gave best results in Anderson's demonstration.

Because his 250—head of sheep needed water, Frank Shaller built a stock watering pit shortly after the Morrison Soil Conservation District was organized. Shaller has a woven wire fence around his pit and a well-graveled, gently sloping ramp for his sheep to get to the water. The pit furnishes all of the needed water for the flock and helps distribute their grazing more evenly over the farm. Technical service for Shaller's pit was furnished by the SCS; ACP shared construction costs.

A one—mile—long three—row windbreak which breaks the prevailing wind boosted wheat yields for Peter Grant, who farms a section of Marshall county land near Stephen. Because of the dry season, Grant's 1961 wheat yield averaged only 10 bushels per acre. Wheat planted in the leeward area of the trees yielded about 18 to 20 bushels. Frederick L. Heck, Marshall county soil conservation agent says Grant's trees, 1 row each of American elm, cottonwood & caragana, were planted in 1953 and are now about 20 feet high. Cottonwoods did best, caragana did well and the elms grew, but slowly. Game Warden Felix Kiet of Warren was instrumental in starting windbreak and shelterbelt plantings in the county.

The advantage of wildlife on their farms is well known by Murray county farmers. In cooperation with the Murray Soil and Water Conservation District and the Minnesota Department of Conservation, 22 separate areas have been sold to the Department for development of wildlife habitat. That's according to John Mall, CS Work Unit Conservationist at Slayton.

Bigger profits and better living are the main reasons Gene Scheevel has followed a farm planning program since 1943. Scheevel started farming in 1930 on a rundown eroded Fillmore county farm southwest of Preston. In 1938 his best field was an 18-acre area operated as five separate tracts at harvest time because of uncrossable ditches and gullies that divided the field. County Agent Milton Hoberg says field terraces, contour strip cropping, grassed waterways, reforestation and pasture renovation have helped make the Scheevel farm one of the best in the community today.

For beef or bees— A watering pit for stock on the Melvin H. Johnson farm near Littlefork provided water for a nearby bee yard during the drought period this past summer. Bee benefactor Johnson, chairman of the Koochiching Soil Conservation District board of supervisors, received financial assistance through ACP and technical assistance with his pit layout from Merle E. Rundell and Dennis Bush of the SCS at International Falls.

Buy a farm in the morning — Develop a conservation plan in the afternoon. . . This spring Myles Skluzacek, New Prague, closed the deal for purchasing an adjoining 101-acre farm one morning, called that afternoon on SCS Work Unit Conservationist Aldis Johnson to help plan needed conservation practices and a way to work the new acreage into his present plan. "Without soil and water conservation farming is a losing battle," says Skluzacek. A cooperator with the Rice Soil and Water Conservation District since 1956, the New Prague farmer is an active member of the Sand Creek Watershed steering committee.

Renovation of steeper slopes in his pasture did a lot to improve grazing on Vernon Gerdin's Isanti county farm. County Agent Erven Skaar says Gerdin makes good use of grassed waterways in his soil conservation program.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by visiting or writing Leo L. Haley, VA contact representative located in Room 210 in the Grand Forks postoffice building.

Q — I know of an employee of a Federal nonmilitary agency who became ill overseas and was rushed back to the U. S. and into a VA hospital. He is not a veteran. How can he receive VA care?

A — As a beneficiary of the Federal agency, on request of this agency to the VA. About 0.3 percent of the VA hospital patient load is made up of nonveterans for whom the VA receives reimbursement. Included are military personnel on active duty and Federal employees injured or disabled in the course of their employment.

Q — Will the VA accept a court order declaring presumptive death after a seven year unexplained absence of a veteran?

A — Not usually. However, the specific facts should be presented to the nearest VA office for an individual ruling.

Q — Is Confederate service the same as Union service for the purpose of VA benefits for dependents?

A — Yes, widows and helpless children of Confederate veterans have been eligible for pension payments since July 1, 1958.

Q — My foster son was killed in service recently. We raised him since he was a baby. Am I entitled to benefits? I have no income.

A — Yes, get in touch immediately with your nearest VA office.

"YOU DON'T SAY"

② HOW MUCH DOES IT COST TO MODERNIZE?

① A recent study shows that over a 20-year period a family can save almost half its housing budget by owning a home—an impressive amount for any family to save. You'll be surprised at how easily you can get started on the way to home ownership. Visit our mortgage department and get all the details soon.

AGE NO HANDICAP TO MINNESOTANS

A large portion of the community of Osakis helped a distinguished local couple celebrate a most unusual occasion: the 70th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Byland, respectively 91 and 89. She was born near Osakis, Mr. Byland came there with his parents from Indiana when a lad of 12. . . Mrs. Bertha Brisbane went swimming in Clear Lake, at the edge of Waseca, on her 80th birthday; because the local newspaper photographer missed this unusual event, the obliging great-grandmother swam again the following Monday—and had her picture in the paper. She's been an addict of the exercise for 35 years. . . Levi B. Pease, retired University professor, has been riding in automobiles for 64 of his sprightly 89 years, and has been driving his own cars since his first Locomobile steamer in 1908, when he regularly stopped midway between Minneapolis and Anoka—open country in those days, to "fill 'er up"—not with gasoline, but with water. Mr. Pease' first ride was with the late James Ford Bell in a Locomobile steamer, 1897 model.

Some 400,000 sightseers a year visit the famous Ware collection of glass flowers in Harvard's Botanical Museum in Cambridge, Mass. They were made by Leopold and Rudolph Blaschka in Germany between 1887 and 1936.

Subcontracts Let on RRV Shows Building

Approval was given to the awarding of several sub-contracts in connection with the new Winter Shows Arena now under construction at a special meeting of the Red River Valley Winter Shows board of managers held Tuesday, November 7, at the Northwest School and Experiment Station, Crookston. The successful bidders were:

C. E. Sanders Plumbing & Heating Company, Crookston: Water and sewer extension, $6,447; inside plumbing, $9,891; heating and ventilating, $18,987.

Thrall & Tupa Electric Company, Grand Forks, N. D., electrical, $21,385.

W. A. Webber, Crookston: Site preparation, excavation of dirt per cubic yard, $20; pit run gravel per cubic yard compacted $1.24, clay fill per cubic yard compacted, $.65.

The board established the policy for rental of exhibit space for the 1962 show. Regular booth space (approximately 8 feet deep) will rent for $12 per front foot. Priority for available booth space will be based on three factors: (1), the extent of support to the building fund; (2), a history of being with the show; (3), the order of receipt of applications. December 10 will be the deadline for applications for space with first or second priority considerations. Approximately 1200 lineal feet of space will be provided of 8 or 14 foot depth for industry serving agriculture.

In other action the Board accepted with reluctance the resignation of board member Frank W. Forbes, St. Paul, district supervisor of county agents, who has accepted a new position. No action was taken to replace him on the board.

At the close of the meeting the Board members made an inspection of the facilities under construction. It was noted that erection of steel by the Behlen Manufacturing Company is more than halfway complete.

Vets in Hospitals Dine on Pheasant

5,800 Birds Are Donated by Minnesota Hunters

More than 5,800 pheasants were donated by Minnesota hunters for the 21st Annual Pheasant Dinners for Hospitalized Veterans, Nov. 2.

The annual dinners for Minnesota war veterans were originated in 1941 by Ed Shave, Minneapolis Tribune outdoor writer, now retired. That year, 700 hospitalized veterans in 14 hospitals enjoyed the dinners.

The program, still directed by Ed Shave, is sponsored by the Minneapolis Tribune with the cooperation of Minnesota American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts, sportsmen, and civic and conservation clubs.

Minnesota state game wardens in the pheasant area of the state directed collection of the birds. Pheasants were picked up by Star and Tribune trucks in "collecting towns" and delivered to the National Food Stores commissary in Hopkins, Minn., where they were cleaned on a volunteer basis by National Food Employees from Minneapolis, St. Paul and suburban stores. The dressed birds were then distributed to the hospitals.

Dinners were served at veterans hospitals in Minneapolis, St. Cloud, Minn., and Fargo, N. D.; the Minnesota Soldiers Home, Minneapolis; Minnesota state hospitals at St. Peter, Rochester, Fergus Falls, Anoka, Hastings, Moose Lake, Willmar and Cambridge; and at the Glen Lake sanatorium near Minneapolis and the Nopeming sanatorium near Duluth, Minn.

50 STATE EXECUTIVES TRY MINNESOTA FARE

One of the nation's fifty chief state executives will naturally be expected to feast on Minnesota fare at Thanksgiving time November 23—our own Governor Andersen. The other 49, including Alaska and Hawaii, will have the same grand opportunity. An idea sparked by the Governor himself and enthusiastically implemented by Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee, State Department of Business Development, and other interested agencies will take to each of these distinguished gentlemen a generous assortment of Minnesota products: boned pre-stuffed turkey, two kinds of potatoes, corn, peas, rutabaga, biscuit mix, creamery churned butter, honey, crust and filler for pumpkin pie, cheddar cheese, apples, and beet sugar. Fare indeed for championship footballers, important public officials, and all hungry comers.

of Rhyme & Reason

IT'S ALL OVER—including the shouting. I refer to the city election for 1961 which is now past history. The attack of the library board and Friends of the Library toward an expansion was met with a fusilade of "No" ballots and so defeated. This was, needless to say, a severe disappointment to proponents of the issue who exerted as much effort as possible in the short time permitted them to state their case.

Also needless to say, my prediction of the referendum results was a casualty in the ballot box battle. By some other quirk of fate, however, my other guesses as to election results hit right on the nose at 100 per cent accurate.

There are those who say the library issue was ill-timed due to a late introduction of the situation. There are those who say the problem of educational facilities helped defeat the issue. There are those who say first things should come first and the library doesn't seem like a logical first. There are those who are convinced the library does not need expansion. There are those who say we should wait and see if we need something else more than the library. And there are those who emphatically believe that an overall plan of needs is a necessity before anything be done.

It would seem that the latter is the most sensible and workable solution. Certainly there should be a plan before there is action. It will be interesting in 1962, with three new members on our city council, to see what is done toward organizing a planning commission. Uniformity of purpose is naturally the most orderly and direct way to community progress. Time will tell if this uniformity can be achieved.

Now I've heard everything. When one of the enthusiastic riders of the Bit and Bridle horse club of Goodridge called in a story on the club meeting recently, she mentioned the distance traveled on horseback by two members who attended. It seems that Karol Sevre and Fred Hanson guided their steeds on what was a 16-mile round trip ride.

But the chuckle comes when it is noted that they made the trip without the benefit, or shall I say the discomfort, of saddles. It seems that riding bareback is much cozier on a cold, windy day. And there are also rumors, apparently based on fact, that club president Bob Prestebak brings his horse to within a mile of the meeting place by car and trailer and then makes the ride in from there while his wife drives the car to the farm yard.

"Excuses, excuses," cried the committee chairman who could find no one who had time to do committee work. "This is as bad as the two inebriated gentlemen gazing at a street light and arguing whether it was the moon or the sun. They asked a third gentleman who reeled into view for his opinion and he had his excuse for not getting involved. 'I dunno,' he mused, 'I don't live around here.'"

Then there is the philosopher who asserts that women's minds are cleaner than men's because they are changed more often.

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP

Don't feel low if you suffer a blow
That injures your ego and pride.
Join in with the rest; get your chin off your chest
And you'll soon be caught up in the tide.

Don't mind about stings of diversified things
That make your ideas seem dumb.
With a glint in your eye put your chin to the sky
And cheer up with whistle or hum.

So what if the aim of your project goes lame
And the whole silly thought goes to pot.
Remember beneath this swift kick in the teeth
Lies the valued experience got.

The tilt of the chin tells the mettle of men
Who will give every challenge a whack.
Of course, it is true, it's much harder to do—
While you're laying there flat on your back.

State and Local Tax Bill in State $328 Per Capita

Minnesota Citizens Pay 14 Pct. above N.S. Average Taxpayers Assn. Reports

Minnesota state and local government expenditures amounted to $328.98 per capita last year, 14 per cent above the $288.24 national average, the Minnesota Taxpayers Association reported last week.

Harold T. Miller, association research director, said education accounted for the largest state bite, $122.24 per capita against $104 for the nation as a whole. He added that the figures were based on 1960 federal census statistics.

The educational expenditures placed Minnesota 14th among the states in that category. Schools cost 37 cents out of every tax dollar.

Other per capita breakdowns showed $65.73 going for highways, $29.05 for public welfare, $25.74 for public health and hospitals, and $11.64 for police and fire departments.

Miller said that, while the state was above average in expenditure of tax monies, per capita income was listed at $2,054 against an average $2,223, putting Minnesota in 27th place.

The association said this disparity called for careful screening of all proposals for added government spending and pointed up the need for encouraging business and industrial developments that could create more jobs within the state.

Better Coverage on Crop Insurance

Federal Corp. Announces More Liberal Plan for '62

Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has announced that 1962-crop policies will provide farmer-policyholders increased all-risk coverage at generally lower premiums.

Corn and soybean producers will be guaranteed more bushels per acre and can qualify for larger indemnities under the recently expanded program designed to provide farmers with self-protection against the perils of their business.

The 1962 bushel-per-acre guarantees will average 14 percent higher for corn and 6 percent higher for soybeans. Meanwhile, in most counties, premiums are reduced an average of 5 percent for corn and 8 percent for soybeans.

More attractive rates and coverages, other officials add, are but part of a broad program which already has taken big steps toward making crop insurance better reflect the risks of present-day farming.

One significant step is the introduction of a production guaranteed plan which permits a farmer to, in effect, write his own policy. That is, he can select the dollar rate on which his indemnity will be based in event of a crop loss and pay a premium which is set accordingly. A loss occurs when his crop falls below the guaranteed yield and quality.

Initiated in most counties this year, officials say the new plan—coupled with increased coverage and reduced premiums—is again being offered on 1962 crops.

Keep Slow Traffic Off Freeways, Plea

AAA Would Bar Bicycles and Horse-drawn Vehicles

In the interest of safety and efficiency, all traffic that can move at little better than a snail's pace must be prohibited from using our modern new freeways, a spokesman for the Minnesota AAA declared today.

E. Ray Cory, president of the motoring organization, said that we must "exclude from freeways, particularly in urban areas, all types of traffic which impede or interfere with freeway travel and effectiveness."

The AAA official listed the following as types of traffic which do not belong in the high-speed traffic lanes of freeways: pedestrians, bicycles, motor scooters, animal-drawn and other non-highway vehicles and processions such as funerals.

At the recent AAA national meeting in Seattle the organization adopted a policy statement calling for amendment to the Uniform Vehicle Code to prohibit such undesirable uses of freeways.

In addition to the editor and assistant editors, other students on the staff are Norma Filipi, Angus; Georgia Ovsak, Euclid; and Ralph Tandberg, Newfolden.

Aquatennial Queen to Visit S. America

Pam Albinson to Make Journey in March, 1962

President "Duke" Johnson and Commodore Robert Gisselbeck today announced final plans for the traditional overseas trip of the Minneapolis Aquatennial Queen of the Lakes. Queen Pam Albinson and a group of Upper Midwest residents will make a three-week tour through several South American countries this spring. Arch Pease, President of the Minnesota Newspaper Association, and his wife will act as the official escorts to the Queen for the entire trip.

The main purpose of the visit is to participate in the activities of the famous "Carnival" festival in Rio de Janerio. Leaving on Friday, March 2, the party will travel to New York and will arrive the following day in world-famous Brazilia, capitol of Brazil, to visit the Chamber of Deputies, the Center, the Cathedral and the President's Palace.

Queen Pam will be feted as visiting royalty during the group's six-day stay in Rio. With other members of the party, she will stay at the famous Copacabana Palace Hotel and will attend the colorful Caraval Ball on Sunday, March 4. She will bring official greetings from the people in the State of Minnesota and will present an official invitation to a Brazilian troup to appear in Minneapolis during the 1962 Aquatennial.

Rotary Hears Story of L. B. Hartz Stores

Company President Tells of Growth of Sales to $8.6 Million

Patterns of growth in the wholesale grocery business were outlined by L. B. Hartz, head of L. B. Hartz Wholesale, Inc., in Thief River Falls, at the noon dinner meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club Monday. The program was part of a series of Rotary sessions under the general theme of "Know Your Community."

From a modest start with a general store in Roseau in 1925, Hartz branched out with ownership of general stores in Warroad, Ross, Badger, Greenbush and McIntosh. The seventh store he started was in Thief River Falls in 1931 which was then the only store in the group which handled groceries exclusively.

With a view toward further expansion in the grocery business, Hartz liquidated other departments in his general merchandise stores and used the proceeds to get a start in the wholesale business in Thief River Falls in 1932. His first warehouse was in the former Trinity church building which was located where Forkenbrock Motor company now stands.

It took until 1939 for the L. B. Hartz firm to first reach the million dollar mark in total sales. Since that time the volume of sales has spiraled steadily upward. In 1951 the total hit $3,697,000, and in 1961 it had climbed to $8,634,500.

From 55 to 65 employees were hired in 1951 with salaries totaling about $170,000. In 1961 the employee total had climbed to 85 and 95 while salaries in aggregate increased to $460,000.

Hartz told the group that it was significant to note that the operating margin on wholesale foods was very small in comparison with ordinary retailing. In the year past a salary increase to compensate for the cost of living trend upward could not be offset by the firm since food prices actually dropped during the period. The difference between profit after taxes in 1951 and 1960 was reflected

L. B. HARTZ head of the wholesale grocery firm which operates under his name in Thief River Falls, conducted members of the Rotary club on a tour of his warehouse and offices Monday. The tour followed a talk at the club meeting when Mr. Hartz told the group his wholesale business had grown from zero in 1932 to $8,634,500 in 1961 volume. Hartz is pictured at left in the above photo pointing out warehouse procedure to Rotarians (left to right) Wallace Tunberg, Vern Erickson, Kenneth Onken, Gene Beito, Howard Hoel, Rev. Henry Friedman, Douglas Kemmer, James Smillie and Lloyd Bennes. A number of other club members also made the tour.

Big Volume of Cases Handled in Municipal Court Here This Week

After several weeks of abbreviated municipal court sessions things livened up this week, with several cases being brought Monday by all law enforcement agencies in the city. Judge Stanley N. Mortenson presided.

Three cases were brought by Game Warden Carl Sundstrom. Eldon L. Hanson, Minneapolis, and Clarence Hanson, rt. 1, Plummer each pleaded guilty to transporting an uncased gun in a motor vehicle and were each fined $25.

John Alex Taylor, city, pleaded guilty to transporting a deer without accompaniment of the licensee and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, suspended. Trial on a petit larceny charge against Taylor was set for Nov. 27.

There were numerous highway patrol cases. Harvey R. Klipping, Red Lake Falls pleaded guilty to failure to heed a school bus stop sign and was fined $20. Allen S. Anderson, Minneapolis, pleaded guilty to a speeding charge and was fined $15.

William C. Reed, city, pleaded guilty to failure to heed a stop sign and was fined $25, of which $10 was suspended. Henry O. Gregerson, Badger, pleaded guilty to failure to heed a school patrol flag and was fined $20, of which $10 was suspended.

Arthur E. Holmstrom, St. Paul, and Kenneth J. Jarcho, Minneapolis, each forfeited $17.50 bond for non-appearance to face speeding charges.

Only one offender tagged by city police appeared in court. Floyd C. Bakke, Newfolden, forfeited $25 bond for having an open bottle of intoxicants in a car. Larry Dimmen, city, pleaded guilty to drinking by a minor and was fined $15; pleaded guilty to possession of beer by a minor and was fined $15, and for driving after license was suspended, $50. His license plates and title card were also impounded.

Three cases against two persons were brought to a special session

Jaycees Repeat Request for Used Children's Skates

Campaign for Skates for Needy Youngsters Will Continue Thru November

Residents of Thief River Falls have again been urged by the Thief River Falls Jaycee chapter to assist in a program to provide used ice skates for needy youngsters in the community. The Jaycees are sponsoring the project in cooperation with the Salvation Army, local school and churches.

Collection points have been arranged at Northern State and Union State banks and at Lambert's Barber shop. Skates for boys and girls may be left at any of the three points or persons wishing to make a contribution of used skates may call Narverud Cleaners at MU 1-3441 to have the skates picked up by Jaycee committee members.

The campaign will continue thruout the month of November with distribution of skates collected to be made prior to Christmas. George Hildre, committee chairman, urges all residents to dig into their basements and attics in quest of skates no longer used by anyone in the family.

"Skates are an item which no one ever seems to throw away," Hildre said. "By giving these skates which are no longer used to a boy or girl who could not otherwise obtain them, the contributor can feel that he or she has done something very worthwhile. I know the feeling of satisfaction at having helped someone less fortunate will be well worth the time it takes to find the skates and deposit them downtown or call for them to be picked up by the committee."

Salvation Army Harvest Festival Next Wednesday

Lt. William Goodman, officer in charge of the Bemidji Salvation Army area, will be guest speaker at a special harvest festival service to be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Salvation Army citadel in Thief River Falls. A pot-luck supper will also be served by members of the Ladies Home League, according to Envoy Carl Paulson.

Dairy Feeding and Testing Topic of Dr. C. Cole Tuesday

'U' M. Dairy Authority to Speak at 1:30 p.m. in Basement of Auditorium

Dairy feeding, testing and management will be topics discussed by Professor Clarence L. Cole, head of the dairy department at the University of Minnesota, at a meeting of area dairymen to be held Tuesday, November 21, at 1:30 p. m. in the basement assembly room of the municipal Auditorium in Thief River Falls.

All these topics are especially important to make a successful dairy operation, states Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agent. Dairymen spend most of their money for milk production on feed costs, making this an important topic to all dairy farmers.

Dairy testing of various kinds helps in the development of herds which will make money for the farmer. Dr. Cole will provide information on testing of herds thru dairy herd improvement association, owner-sampler and weight-a-day programs and tell how to get the most benefit from the records received from these tests.

In addition, important management practices which pay dividends on dairy farms will also be discussed. The session will be open for all interested dairy farmers and all dairy farmers in the area are encouraged to attend. Members of D. H. I. A. groups are especially invited, Stelmaschuk said.

Same Schedule of Fees as Last Year in Effect, Deputy Registrar Says

Mrs. Marjorie Hanson, local deputy registrar of motor vehicles, reported today that she had received information from the secretary of state's office that 1962 renewal IBM cards for automobiles, trucks and trailers are being mailed for about 1,700,000 registered vehicles.

The public should have found these cards in their mail boxes by November 14, although owners of recently transferred vehicles may have some delay in receiving theirs. Owners of mobile homes will receive a somewhat different type of notice with an application form and instructions for renewing.

Procedure for renewal will be substantially the same for 1961 and there is no change from the tax schedule of previous years. Mobile home owners will find a slight increase as is reflected by the average mill rate of the entire state.

Users of commercial trucks who are engaged in seasonal work, such as road construction, etc., who anticipate reducing gross weight at reregistration, will be required to furnish a weight ticket showing the unloaded weight of the vehicle. Therefore, Mrs. Hanson urges, be sure to run that unloaded vehicle over the scales before tying it up for the winter. The Central Office has warned that they will not allow reduced gross weight on these vehicles without a weight ticket to substantiate a minimum reduced weight.

Also, commercial truckers electing partial payment applications are reminded of certain laws pertaining to the partial payment plan which were passed by the 1961 legislature. For detailed information regarding partial payment plan, those affected may contact Mrs. Hanson.

Mental Health Topic of Area Meeting Here

Crookston Center Personnel Tell of Mounting Case Load

Carrying of the mental health education program into communities of the eight counties it serves has resulted in a large increase in case load for the Northwest Mental Health Center at Crookston. Changes in the program were discussed at the monthly board meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Assistance given by professional personnel from the center has permitted more individual conferences and resulted in more referrals to the Crookston center. Public welfare agencies, clergy and school counselors have assisted in the program with the result being that October had the largest case load of any month in the history of the center, officials reported.

At 7:30 p. m. an educational meeting was held in the basement meeting room of the courthouse here to which clergy, county commissioners, school counselors, probate judges, school superintendents, police, sheriffs and medical staff members were invited. Special guest at the two sessions was Dr. Herbert Dorken, director of community mental health services of the Minnesota department of public welfare.

The evening session was one of a series to be held throughout the eight-county district to acquaint public officials with services offered by the center. Trained personnel will be available for work within communities in the area rather than having all examination and consultation done at the center itself.

At present the staff is about one-half complete at Crookston. Recruitment is being conducted to secure a psychiatrist and possibly one other psychologist. Under the fee schedule of the center, there is no charge for anyone referred by a court, welfare department, school or social agency. Patients referred by ministers for examination and evaluation only and then directly referred back to the minister are not charged a fee for such services.

Basically, however, the fee schedule is the same as that employed in all of the other mental health centers in the state. It is one per cent of the previous year's paid federal income tax per hour. For example, if a person paid $100 in federal income tax last year, the fee would be one dollar per hour up to a maximum of $1,000. It is also a policy to charge no less than 50 cents per hour.

Attending the meeting in addition to Dr. Dorken were Charles Larson psychiatric social workr; Dr. Ralph Hinton, program director and psychologist; and Virgil Brown community consultant in mental health, all on the staff of the Northwest Mental Health Center.

$120,253 Low Bid on Erecting New St. Hilaire Bridge

Following consideration of the unusually large number of twelve bids on construction of the projected new bridge across Red Lake river a short distance north of St. Hilaire, the Pennington county board Tuesday recommended to James C. Marshall, state highway commissioner, acceptance of the low bid of $120,253.60 submitted by the Sornsin Construction Co of Fargo.

The low bid was approximately $25,000 below engineers' estimates. Other proposals ranged as high as $161,878.40. Carl Larson district highway engineer of Bemidji, was present for the opening.

It is hoped that a preliminary start on construction work can be made during the winter months.

The new span will be located directly east of the junction of State Aid Road 3 and Highway 32, which is several hundred feet north of the narrow bridge which it will replace.

Fair Society to Elect 3 Members of Board Tonight

The annual meeting of the Pennington County Agricultural society, sponsor of the county fair, will be held tonight, Thursday, at 8 o'clock in the assembly room in the basement of the city Auditorium, Albert Koop, the president, announced today. School Budget Rises $66,800 for Next Year

Third of $1,500,255 Total to Be Raised Thru Local Taxes

The 1962 budget for the Thief River Falls school system was approved by the board of education at an adjourned meeting held last night. The budget reflects the smallest tax levy increase since consolidation of the district in 1955 although the overall mill rate will be the highest in the history of the local school system.

Overall budget approved by the board totals $1,500,255 in comparison with $1,433,447 budgeted for 1961. Funds to be raised locally total $512,361 in comparison with $494,860 estimated in the budget for 1961. Actual expenditures by the district last year totaled $1,382,346 and funds raised by local taxes totaled $475,292. The proposed budget for 1962 calls for a cash balance on July 1 of $52,269.

Based on the variations of property last year, the mill levy increase would be 4.64 mills. Anticipated increase in property valuations would drop the mill levy below the previous low increase of 4.61 mills in 1956. Using the 4.64 mill figure as a basis for calculation, the school rate on non-agricultural property would be 134 mills for 1962.

Increases in mill levy for school operation have increased each year since the 1955 consolidation. These increases included 5.96 mills in 1955, 4.61 mills in 1956, 23.67 mills in 1957, 9.46 mills in 1958, 10 mills in 1959 and 12 mills in 1960. Each year indicates the taxes for the respective year payable in the following year. For example, the 12 mill increase for 1960 is for taxes payable in 1961.

In other action taken by the board, Supt. Hankerson was instructed to contact four architectural firms and request that they meet with the board at the regular meeting December 11. All are firms which designed buildings which the board has viewed and considered to be good facilities.

The firms to be contacted include Haarstick, Lundgren and Associates of St. Paul which designed schools at Forest Lake and Hibbing; Foss and Company of Fargo which built the Pennington county courthouse and several buildings in Bemidji; Jyring and Whiteman of Hibbing which designed Bemidji buildings; and Mertang and Associates of Duluth which built a school recently in Grand Rapids. Board members will continue visiting schools to obtain ideas for design and utility.

David Kalinoski Run over by Auto, Gravely Injured

Youth, 15, Falls Beneath Wheels of Car Wednesday While Riding on Fender

David Lee Kalinoski, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Kalinoski of this city, is hospitalized with multiple injuries after being run over by a car while hunting raccoons with two young companions Wednesday evening. His condition has been described as serious by Dr. S. E. Pollman, attending physician.

According to the report, Kalinoski was a passenger in a car driven by Richard D. Johnson, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Johnson of rt. 3. Ronald D. Lindberg, son of Mrs. Kenneth Lindberg, was also a passenger in the car. The youths were hunting raccoons when the accident occurred about 8 miles east and one-half mile south of Thief River Falls on CAR 85.

The report stated that the boys had stopped the car and Kalinoski had shot at a raccoon and missed. He then stated he wanted to ride on the fender of the vehicle. As the car moved down the road he lost his balance and fell underneath the vehicle with the wheels passing over his chest.

Injuries consist of several broken ribs, crushed chest, mild concussion and multiple contusion and abrasions, Dr. Pollman said. The case is still under investigation by the Pennington county sheriff's department.

"EXCLUSIVE, BUT NOT EXPENSIVE!"

by Eleanor Olson

John Gunther's new book, "Inside Europe Now" begins logically enough by contrasting the present continent with the Europe of twenty-five years ago when Mr. Gunther's first analysis appeared. One of the biggest changes is the projection of Soviet power.

Politically speaking, Gunther feels socialism is in retreat with most conservative parties becoming more liberal with the adoption of welfare practices once considered socialistic. The gulf between the classes has narrowed until the "big money" people are not aristocracy, but industrialists.

Mr. Gunther includes personality sketches of amazing octogenarian Adenauer, Macmillan and Khrushchev whom he describes as a proud peasant who wears "chips on his shoulder as big as epaulettes." Here is a wealth of material amassed to bring the picture of "Europe now" into sharper focus for the reader.

"Kidnap" by George Waller is more than just the "cops robbers" court-room recounting of the abduction of the Lindbergh baby. As it happened, the kidnapping was "front-page news" for more than four years in the early thirties. It is in fact an excellent study of the human race, of individual human behavior and of the determination of society as a whole that such crimes should be prevented in the future. The resultant Lindbergh law is now a very positive discouragant to any prospective baby-snatcher. Mr. Waller has spent a quarter of a century on research and three additional years assembling this absorbing story of an inexorable force moving slowly toward a minor goal of retribution and a major one of justice.

In addition to these two books you will find these other new arrivals on the current fiction and non-fiction shelves.

Rotarians Hear Story of Growth of Hartz Stores

in a decrease of nearly 25 per cent.

Almost a complete revolution has been seen in the wholesale food business since he began with his first warehouse, Hartz told the group Monday. While large wholesale firms at that time operated with large staffs of buyers, the Hartz business now operates with only two men doing the purchasing.

With the increase in company-owned chain stores and voluntary chains, such as the Hartz operation, the "hit-and-miss" wholesale firms gradually fell by the wayside. Presently the Hartz company serves approximately 255 stores in Minnesota and North Dakota in an area that reaches approximately 300 miles north and south and 500 miles east and west.

The firm has 22 semi-trailer trucks operating out of Thief River Falls and handles about 7,500 items of merchandise. Accounting is done with the use of electronic equipment so that a perpetual inventory is kept through the use of a card file. Each item is coded and each case of each item is given a card. The cards are pulled when orders are received to keep the file up to date. While it previously took one man a full week to take a physical inventory, four men in the accounting department can now take inventory from the card file in just over two hours. Inventory is taken weekly and ordering is done on a weekly basis.

Warehouse space became a problem with the increased volume until expansion was completed about one and one-half years ago. At that time an addition 212 x 322 feet was built to the 100 x 322 warehouse west of Arnold avenue. Borth buildings have 20-foot ceilings with an 80-foot mezzanine floor above the loading docks for additional storage.

Also included in the operational facilities are a 110 x'50-ft. garage and the building east of Arnold avenue which is used for offices, accounting, produce and frozen food departments. The expansion permitted wider space for movement of merchandise, enabling the firm to give better and faster service to the stores it serves.

Thief River Falls gives the wholesale firm a central location for the area it serves. Its operation here has proved to be a valuable asset to the community. Club members were conducted on a tour of the accounting office, general office and warehouse following adjournment of the meeting at the Elks club rooms.

Another Deer Is Stolen Here from Hunters Tuesday

Eagle Bend Man Admits Theft, but Animal Has Not Yet Been Retrieved

Not being able to bag a deer has been the problem of a number of hunters this season. Getting one and not being able to keep it has been the problem of at least several others. Such was the case of a missing whitetail handled jointly Tuesday by the local police department and game warden Carl Sundstrom.

According to the report, Jack Peterson and Donald Stadum of St. Cloud shot a four-point buck which they tied to their car and left on Horace avenue just east of the Veterans of Foreign Wars club rooms Tuesday. Someone called the club about 6 p. m. and stated that they had seen another person taking a deer from the car. Investigation of the report showed that the deer had disappeared.

Police and warden Sundstrom were notified and a search was started for the missing animal. Apprehension was made of Lemuel James Larson, 22 Eagle Bend, who admitted after questioning that he had taken the deer from the car.

The story does not end there, however, since the deer could not be found. Larson claims the animal slipped from the back of his car several times. Another person reported seeing it slide from the car on Main av. N. between Fred and Darrell's Mobil and Noper's Motel. Larson stated that when he noticed it was gone he drove around the block but the animal had disappeared. The animal was found Wednesday in the area of KTRF radio station north of the city. Police theorized it had been taken the second time and then dropped off in the KTRF area.

Warden Sundstrom charged Larson with transporting a deer not by common carrier and not accompanied by licensee. City police charged him with theft of the deer.

Snow Flurries Are Forecast in Area

No Precipitation Has Occurred Past Two Weeks

It appears that end is in sight for the extended fall season in this area. Light snow and snow flurries are predicted for this area of the state with heavy snow expected to result in an accumulation of four inches or more by tonight in the southern portion of the state.

Only two days since the first of November have had high temperatures below the freezing mark but only one day had a low reading above the magic mark of 32 degrees. High temperatures today are expected in the 28 to 35 degree range with lows tonight predicted to be 15 to 20 degrees.

High and low temperatures for the past several days include 33 and 19 Monday, 43 and 26 Tuesday, 40 and 29 Wednesday and a low reading last night was recorded at 27 degrees. There has been no precipitation since November 4 when the area experienced the final flurries of its first snowfall.

Argyle Man Hurt in 1-car Mishap Near Newfolden

Eugene Jorgenson, 26, Argyle, received painful injuries and about $300 in damages was done to his car when the car veered off old T. H. 59 about ½ mile east of Newfolden about 3:30 a. m. Sunday.

Jorgenson was headed west and stated that he apparently fell asleep resulting in his losing control of the car which came to a stop at a cross-road. The damage was done to the front end and windshield of the 1958 model car.

The mishap was discovered about 5 a. m. when Jorgenson was taken to Northwestern Hospital for treatment of injuries and observation. The injuries included several fractured ribs, bruises and lacerations. An investigation was made by the Sheriff's department.

Plenty of Problems

Coach Jack Junker called the roll of his 1961-62 Prowler basketball squad on Monday afternoon, and a number of promising candidates were on the roster. The Prowler coach, though, will have a number of problems to solve before the blue-and-gold will gain the rating of last season's district champions.

Gone from the squad are the starters of last season—Eddie Lietzow, Ron Hanson, Don Ulferts, Gary Anderson, and Harvey Ebbighausen—and with the loss of these boys, including the six-foot eight-inch Hanson, has gone much of the height and ranginess that made last season's club one of the best in the state.

It is evident that this season's squad will have to rely on speed and ball-control tactics, and coach Junker does have a number of boys available for this style of play. With such boys as Paul Klungness and Wayne Bjerken, the Prowlers will have breakaway speed that was missing in last year's first string. Lack of experience, though, will be a factor, especially during the early part of the schedule. And the Prowlers open the season on Friday, Dec. 1, against the all-veteran Ada Vikings. Last year the Prowlers trounced the Vikings, 70 to 47, in a game played at Ada.

In this game, the locals sped away to a 19 to 4 lead at the end of the first period, and a 32 to 13 advantage at the half. Ada will be anxious to reverse that decision.

Of great help to the Prowler prospects this season is the return to competition of guard Wayne Bjerken. Bjerken, a letterman in his sophomore year, was ineligible last season. Wayne is a splendid play-making guard, being a spectacular dribbler, and is possessed of lightning-fast reflexes as a forecourt defensive player. Wayne undoubtedly would have been a valuable asset for last season's district champions, and it's probable that his presence on the squad would have given the Prowlers the edge over the Bemidji Lumberjacks. It's fine to see Wayne back on the court this season, and he appears to be a "hungry" ball player.

Errata

We have been crediting Roy Pederson with being a member of the Gunder's Bums team of the Tuesday night Business bowling league, and with holding a healthy average. This should be Richard (Dick) Peterson, whose average at present is at 168-pins.

The only bowler of note in the Pederson family is Roy's sister Roberta, who is a member of the S & L team in the women's Nite Hawk league.

Bob's Big Deer

The conversation in the vicinity of Main avenue and seventh street is largely centered on the big deer that Bob Carlson and his young son Roddy brought in on Sunday. When the two began dragging it out of the swamp off ditch 200 the deer was estimated at 230 pounds, and when they reached the grade, after a drag of more than two hours, they estimated the weight at about 280 pounds. It was a 250-pound buck, and that is bragging size.

This is the first year in several the Bob has missed hunting with the Harlan Huseth-Mouse-Efteland V. F. W. camp northeast of Grygla. But as it was to be the first season for young Roddy, Bob decided that it was advisable to make the hunting trip a father-and-son two-some.

Bob and Roddy made their hunting perches in a pair of trees, to better observe the deer area, and they hadn't been on watch for more than fifteen minutes when the big buck hove into view. One shot and Bob had filled his tag. That was the easiest part of the hunt. Bob and Roddy began dragging the deer (and all hunters have complained that the deer dragged heavily this year) at eleven o'clock, and it wasn't until just a bit before three o'clock in the afternoon that they reached the road.

"No need to yell it pole to pole; Just say 'Don't tell it to a soul'."

Warden C. Sundstrom Asks Deer Hunters to Report on Game Killed

With the 1961 deer season nearing its end, Carl Sundstrom, local game warden, has issued several reminders to those yet hunting and those who have been successful in filling their tags. Success has been generally fair, Sundstrom stated, with nearly all hunters at least having had shooting during the season to date.

Overall success ratio will depend much on the weather, the warden added. Absence of tracking snow has hampered general success to date. If snow falls prior to the final day of the season Sunday, chances are that the overall deer harvest will be very good.

Sundstrom reported that the area north and east of Plummer was especially productive this year. The 12-member party which included Florian Kritz of Thief River Falls hunted the Agassiz wildlife refuge and had taken nine deer by 2 p. m. on opening day. Large deer were not uncommon this season. Warden Owen Josephson of Red Lake Falls shot a buck which completely dressed out at 219 pounds.

Hunters who have filled their licenses or are through hunting for the season are urged to send in their success report cards, the warden added. The sooner this is done the quicker a success ratio can be tabulated by the conservation department.

Hunters who have already taken their deer may assist others in the party to secure their animals, Sundstrom said. It has been the policy of the warden service to permit this although it is not specifically stated in the law. It is not permitted, however, to have members of one party join another party for this purpose. The policy applies only to those parties which opened the season as a unit.

Persons who have had their venison processed commercially may keep it as long as they like in storage and need not keep their tags, the warden said. When a hunter processes his own venison, however, he must report to the warden in his area the place where the meat is stored, number of packages or approximate weight of the animal. This can be done by letter, card or telephone call.

Sundstrom again reminded hunters yet in the field that yellow is not a legal color to wear while hunting. Blaze orange or bright red are the only acceptable colors. Several hunters have been warned about the illegal use of yellow clothing and in each case the hunters had been told by clothing salesmen that the color was legal, the warden said.

Bemidji Hunter Death Victim as Rifle Discharges

A Bemidji man became the sixth person in the state to be accidentally killed while deer hunting.

Gordon E. Bergstrom, 25, died from a chest wound received when his rifle discharged as he climbed over a log in a wooded area 10 miles northwest of Walker, Minn. He was the depot agent at Laporte, Minn.

Hubbard and Cass county sheriff's officers found his body Tuesday after his parents reported him missing at 10 p. m. Monday.

Man Is Injured in Crash Near Gully

Selmer Malvig of Gully Has Fractured Shoulder

A two-car collision near Gully late Wednesday afternoon resulted in injuries to one driver and extensive damage to the two cars involved, the highway patrol reported today.

The mishap occurred at the intersection of TH 92 and the road leading into Gully about 4:20 p. m., according to the investigating highway patrolman.

A car driven by Selmer Malvig, Gully, was going south across 92 when it was struck broadside by a westbound car dirven by Elmer Jorgenson, Clearbrook.

Malvig suffered a fractured shoulder and other lesser injuries, while Jorgenson escaped with cuts and bruises. Both cars were extensively damaged.

No tags have been issued but charges are pending, the patrol said.

Warden Planes Deter Game Law Violations

The use of the aircraft in patrolling for game law violators has boosted the number of arrests by Minnesota game wardens at least 35 per cent, according to F. W. Johnson, chief game warden.

As an example of how airplanes are used to apprehend game law violators, Johnson told how deer shiners are pinpointed from the air and placed under arrest by wardens on the ground.

Pointing out that a light on the ground can be seen from the air for several miles, Johnson explained that with the two way radio, contact is made with wardens in vehicles on the ground who are then guided right to the point where the light was seen.

Use of the aircraft in locating persons lost in the woods, rushing medical assistance to remote areas and in taking sick or injured persons out of inaccessible locations to places where they can receive aid are some of the many other tasks which have been performed through the years by warden aircraft, he said.

Much of the flying done by wardens is at low altitudes and often during the hours of dark, said Johnson. For this reason it is extremely important that the airplane function properly.

"With funds allocated recently by the L. A. C. we will be able to replace two of our aircraft which are several years old and have many hours on them," he said.

The new airplanes are expected to be delivered around the end of the month. The two aircraft presently in service will be traded in on the new ones, Johnson said.

Social Security Open to Men at 62

Requirements Have Been Eased, G. Forks Office Says

The age at which men can apply for social security payments has been changed to 62, according to Walter D. Kistler, manager of the Grand Forks social security office.

Until now, men had to be at least 65 before they could make application for payment unless they were disabled. For several years women have been able to claim their social security payments at a reduced amount when they were 62. Men now have the same opportunity.

Kistler stated that a man's payment at 62 would be reduced because he would be getting paid three years earlier. By reducing the amount of payments at age 62, he will get about the same total payments as he would by waiting until 65. A claim must be made before any payments can begin.

Information about payments for men at 62 is available at the social security office.

Timber Is Sold by State for $88,000 in N.W. Counties

Auction sales of state owned timber in three northern Minnesota counties last week produced an income to the state of over $88,000, the conservation department's forestry division announced today.

Sales were held on October 24, 25, 26 in Beltrami, Lake of the Woods and Koochiching counties. Over 16,000 cords of wood and 645,000 Christmas trees were purchased by bidders.

Proceeds from the sale of state owned timber are deposited in various state trust funds. One of the principal of these is the school turst fund which is invested by the state with the proceeds then used to help operate the state's public school system.

3 Deer 'Shiners' Fined $500 Each

Three deer shiners in the Hibbing area were apprehended by a Department of Conservation game warden recently and found that the local courts take a very dim view of violations of the game and fish laws.

Although they had failed to bag a deer, evidence presented convinced the district Court Judge that they were attempting to take deer illegally.

Aide to Secy. Freeman to Give Principal Address at Session December 2

Stanley Andrews, special assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Orville M. Freeman, will be the principal speaker at a statewide meeting sponsored by the State Young Farmer development committee to be held at the high school auditorium at Fergus Falls beginning at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, December 2nd.

This meeting has been arranged for the purpose of formulating an action program to study the social and economic problems of young men becoming established in farming. Minnesota has many young men who are interested in farming as a career. Ways, and means of assisting these young men in becoming established farmers on adequate business units is of vital importance to every rural community in the state.

The state committee, headed by Art Gjervold, Moorhead farmer, and Leo Maattala, Moorhead vocational agriculture instructor as co-chairmen, report that Andrews has had a long career as a farmer, author and agriculture official. At the present time he is accompanying Freeman on a round-the-world journey seeking to develop additional world markets for agricultural products.

Dr. Milo J. Peterson, professor and chairman of the agricultural education department of the University of Minnesota, will review the work of the State Young Farmer development committee and discuss the various problems involved. Fred Sorenson, agricultural coordinator of the area vocational school at Thief River Falls, and Rollie Lake, vocational agriculture instructor at Fergus Falls, will review the work and accomplishments of local young farmer development committees in their respective communities.

The committee extends a special invitation to school officials, community industrial development groups, civic organizations, farm organizations, state and federal agricultural agencies and to interested farmers.

Public Opinion

Editor Times:

I was rather shocked with your last Editorial suggesting each segment of Agriculture needs production controls.

Especially so coming from anyone with an interest at stake here in Northern Minnesota, an area with a tremendous potential in Agriculture but an area that has been scarcely developed comparitively so with the rest of the nation.

Soil and Water Conservation Districts have just begun to take a hold here in this area while in Iowa, for instance, has been 100 per cent organized and working for many years.

Many farmers in this area have just begun clearing the wooded areas on their farms and have a lot yet left to do.

Now let's look at production controls, Federal or otherwise, to start with it would be to gear supply with demand to establish what Congress (in the case of a Federal program) considers a FAIR PRICE to the Producer.

Each producer under production control would receive a quota, and now I would like to quote Dr. Willard W. Cochrane, Economic Advisor to Secretary Freeman, "The third step is the allocation of the quota to individual producers. This might be done by giving each producer the same proportionate share of the national quota as his production for, say the last three years, bears to total production. This quota would represent the maximum amount of any specific commodity the producer could market in a particular year."

While the producer in this area has been forced to use much of his capital in recent years to develop new land, the producer from older developed areas has been able to apply this same capital toward greater production per acre.

Also you are well aware of the tremendous amount of Soil Bank lands in this area compared to the rest of the nation, the only base period for these lands would be several years ago when the average production per acre was much lower than has been recently, and even though the quota no doubt would be attached to the producer rather than his land or unit, he would not have a quota to cover any new land he opened while his farm was in the soil bank unless he were able to buy, rent, or borrow one.

As you mentioned you thought each segment should have production controls, I would assume you would mean the sheep industry as well, I would like to say here the sheep enterprise offers more opportunity for Northern Minnesota than any other industry and here you may check the records of North West Minnesota Farm Management Service, although I'm not trying to now sell you sheep. I would like to see it still possible for you to get into the business or any other without having to first have a quota in your hand, once under our FREE ENTERPRISE SYSTEM you would like to take the chance.

"Trees and rivers and the rest of our great natural resources are of little use to us unless we have the knowledge and skills to put them to work to serve purposes people want them for at prices people are prepared to pay."

Common Markets

President Kennedy indicated at his press conference last week that he strongly favors a lowering of trade barriers and the forming of Common Market groups of nations such as that now getting under way in Europe. In answer to a request for his opinion as to whether our country needs a "major change in trade policy, a major liberalization," he answered:

> "We have to begin to realize how important the Common Market is going to be to the economy of the United States. One-third of our trade generally is in Western Europe.
> "If the United States should be denied that market, we will either find a flight of capital from this country to construct factories within that wall, or we will find ourselves in serious economic trouble.

He recognized the fact that foreign trade must be a two-way street and that if we are to sell our goods in other countries we must permit other countries to sell their goods here. He cited Japan as an example of one country with which we have very favorable trade relations. He said:

> "Our merchandise exports to Japan greatly exceed the imports that we received from them in the first six months of this year. Our merchandise trade surplus with Japan totaled $428,000,000."

In answering the trade-policy question later, he reiterated this and added:

> "We cannot just sell and never buy, and, if all those who recognize the benefit to the United States workers and industry—almost $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 surplus—which we have every year—will speak as loudly as those who are hurt, we can get an adjustment of the public interest."

This question of trade barriers probably will be a red hot issue in the next Congress. Present trade agreements are nearing expiration and there no doubt will be strong pressure for both higher and lower tariffs. Party lines probably will not be closely followed on this question and there will be opposition within the President's own party to the position he has taken.

But the President is right. We cannot afford to isolate ourselves behind trade barriers. We must trade with other countries. That means we must buy as well as sell. That means, too, that we must remain competitive. And the way to remain competitive cannot be by government subsidies to special groups and industries.

Some of the adjustments we will have to make will not be pleasant but they will be the consequences of past folly and cannot be avoided.

U Thant

The problem of finding a replacement for Dag Hammarskjold as Secretary-General of the United Nations seems to have been resolved satisfactorily. The dire predictions of what was going to happen following his death did not materialize. U Thant of Burma was elected by a 103 to 0 vote and he apparently is highly respected by the representatives of all nations.

U Thant is a student of history as well as a diplomat of long experience. These are important qualifications for the difficult assignment he now has, but, judging from the experience of his predecessor, conditions may develop that will require more than a knowledge of history and long experience in diplomacy. Writing in the Christian Science Monitor, William H. Stringer has this to say of him:

> "Whether his Buddhist religion or Asian background will make him less tough minded in the long run, is something no one can now predict. He will endeavor to be a helpful mediator and truly nonaligned to any power bloc.
> "Perhaps he can also serve in the role which Walter Lippmann describes as Mr. Hammarskjold's most effective service: that of "confidant" of the various member governments. Through this confidential relationship the Secretary-general, knowing the intimate positions, can assess how much can be prudently proposed, and accomplished, in a key issue.
> "The United Nations has not been rendered useless. It will not for a time be as venturesome as it was during the final Hammarskjold days, but its wings can grow strong again."

Wishful Thinking?

Krushchev seems to have completed what he started to do five years ago when he first called for the de-Stalinization of the country. He moved cautiously at that time. There were rumors of the speech he had made in which he denounced the former leader but Russian newspapers made no mention of it. Now the work of eradicating all traces of the once-popular hero is going forward openly. Streets and places named in his honor are getting new names.

It would seem that a program of this kind would carry with it great danger. There have been many revolutions in Russia and there may be one more. Krushchev has made enemies as well as friends and some of the enemies he has made no doubt still have influence.

Maybe this is just wishful thinking, but, after all, it could happen. One mistake is all it takes sometimes. We hope, we hope.

Goldberg Reports

Arthur Goldberg, Secretary of Labor in President Kennedy's cabinet, spent some time in Europe recently, studying labor relations in several countries. He came home apparently knowing some things that he hadn't known before. He learned that in Europe organized labor recognizes that pay increases must be matched by increases in productivity. We may assume that he himself did not recognize that principal when, as a trade union lawyer, he succeeded in forcing pay increases on the steel industry that have resulted in decreased production within our country and increased unemployment.

We hope that he will put his new knowledge to good use in his guidance to our organized labor. He found, especially in Sweden, that the European trade unions have a much higher sense of responsibility than their American counterparts. Strikes, he told the president, are almost unknown in the countries he visited.

He attributes the comparatively peaceful cooperation between employees and management in Europe to government intervention in strikes. Without imposing compulsory arbitration, European governments are much more active as conciliators.

One other reason for the difference may be the greater experience Europeans have had with inflation. They know from experience that pay increases that must be followed by price increases are dangerous and unless checked lead inevitably to disaster. Not enough of our people are aware of that fact.

Learning About Africa

The large number of new nations that have achieved independence in recent years, and gained membership in the United Nations, has created new problems for us in international relations and in our position as a leading member in the United Nations organization. In the General Assembly of this organization the voting power of each of these nations is equal to ours.

Some of the new African nations do not feel kindly toward us for various reasons, and these reasons were given consideration at a recent international conference held in Boston on the topic of "Africa and the United States — Images and Realties." The conference, sponsored by the United Nations, agreed on the value of using the machinery of that organization in dealing with these problems.

Commenting on the conference and its objectives, the Christian Monitor Science states:

> "The major points many Africans hold against the United States have also been well defined. First, new nations do not want to be involved in the cold war as a result of needing outside aid in their internal development.
> "Secondly, they find United States alliances and friendships with the rulers of non-self-governing African territories distressing and inconsistent with self-determination.
> "Racial incidents and the second-class status of the American Negro in many parts of the United States make the third blotch on the image of America in Africa.
> "It is fairly evident that representatives of Africa's leadership understand the realities of the American position on these questions. They recognize that progress is being made in all these areas.
> "If American help reaching Africa were channeled through the UN and its agencies such as UNESCO, there would be less suspicion that strings were tied to it.
> "Africans acknowledge both that they have gained much from the UN and that the UN was founded on the finest traditions of the Western world. This latter association gives due respect to the United States' leading role in the UN. Certainly this recognition provides a hopeful basis for greater use of the United Nations' many facilities for improving co-operation between Africans and Americans."

Case Against Tipping

(New York Herald Tribune)

Among the more venal encumbrances of our civilization is the custom of tipping. And it's hard to shake.

It's not the money, or entirely the principle of the thing. What irks is engaging in two transactions where one would do. If one must buy insurance against sloth, let's put it on the bill and spare the customer the delay of pondering the size of the douceur, groping for change and weathering the sullen stare of those who believe themselves chronically undertipped.

Fame and fortune await the first enterpreneur with courage enough to boost the tariff and ban the tip.

For 1962...an all-new kind of Ford!
the car that's just right for just about everybody
You've never seen anything like it, because there's never been anything like it . . . until today. On the outside the new Ford Fairlane 500 measures a quick 197 inches from stem to stern. A good foot shorter than the cars from which it borrowed its name, it calls the snuggest parking places home. At the same time, on the inside the new Fairlane 500 is every inch as big as some of the biggest Fords ever built.
The new Fairlane 500 is priced way under previous Fairlanes, well under many compacts. But Fairlane economy doesn't stop with a pretty price tag. It runs to amazing gas savings—with the world's first economy V-8 or the nickel-nursing Fairlane Six. Routine service is reduced to a minimum—30,000 miles on many items, only twice a year or 6,000 miles on the rest. And it adjusts its own brakes.
right between Galaxie and Falcon
RIGHT! Big-car room, ride, performance.
RIGHT! Compact-car price, economy, handling.
RIGHT! Only car anywhere near its price with the twice-a-year maintenance schedule first introduced by Galaxie.
RIGHT! Unique economy choice: the world's first economy V-8 or the delightfully thrifty Fairlane Six.
RIGHT! Fine-car upholsteries, appointments, luxuries.
RIGHT! The built-in value that pays off in pleasure now—and in profit when it comes time to trade.
RIGHT! Quality and precision craftsmanship you've never before enjoyed in any car anywhere near its low price.

Coverage of Health Insurance Expanded

Virtually unknown in this country only a generation ago, voluntary health insurance has grown into a "highly complex structure covering almost three-quarters of the U. S. population." Moreover, Health Information Foundation reported today, the range of hospital and medical services covered under health insurance now is far broader than was true up to a few years ago.

In the November issue of "Progress in Health Services", its monthly statistical bulletin, the Foundation traces the growth of various types of health insurance in this country.

A generation ago, the Foundation pointed out, health insurance was designed to offer protection against the costs of hospital care. This is still the most popular type of coverage: By the end of 1960 almost 132 million Americans, or 73.4 per cent of the population, were covered for hospital expenses under Blue Cross, insurance companies, or independent plans.

Although late starters in the health insurance field, other types of coverage—surgical, regular medical, and most recently the "major medical" policies —have begun to catch up with hospital insurance in terms of people enrolled.

The Foundation reported, for example, that by 1960 more than 121 million persons were covered by surgical insurance and 87.5 million were enrolled under regular medical policies. The latter usually help cover physicians' fees for non-surgical care in the hospital and sometimes in the home or doctor's office.

Another type of insurance, major medical, covered too few persons to warrant listing even as late as 1950. But its growth during the 1950s, according to the Foundation, was "little short of phenomenal, and it covered just under 27.5 million — 15.3 per cent of the civilian population — at the end of 1960."

Major medical insurance usually covers very large expenditures for nearly all types of hospital and medical care, as well as helping to pay for prescriptions, appliances, special nursing care, and X-rays.

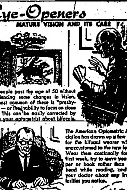
MATURE VISION AND ITS CARE



Few people pass the age of 50 without experiencing some changes in vision. The most common of these is "presbyopia" — or the inability to focus on close work. This can be easily corrected by seeing your optometrist about bifocals.

The American Optometric Association has drawn up a few rules for the bifocal wearer who is unaccustomed to the new lenses: Wear them continually for the first week, try to move your paper or book rather than your head while reading, and see your doctor about any irregularities you notice.

Another vision change that takes place requires more light to see properly. Try increasing your 75 watt bulb to 100, avoid night driving on poorly lit roads when possible; or reduce your usual speed. Make sure your windshield is always clean.

Volume Fifty — Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota — Thursday, November 16, 1961 — Number Ninety-two

29 State 4-H'ers to Go to Club Congress

Twenty-nine Minnesota 4-H members will receive trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 26-Dec. 1 in recognition of their achievements in projects and demonstrations. Included is Sharon Nelson of Thief River Falls, winner in the canning project.

They are among some 1,400 prize-winning delegates in the nation who will be awarded trips by sponsors of various 4-H programs. The delegates are competing for national honors, including about a hundred thousand dollars in scholarships. During their stay in Chicago they will take part in a variety of educational activities and will be entertained by donor companies with dinners, tours and special programs.

Mrs. John H. Burski, Rice, a club leader for 15 years in Benton County, has been selected to represent Minnesota 4-H leaders at the congress. Delores Andol, 4-H Club agent in Roseau, will represent Minnesota county extension agents.

University of Minnesota staff members who will accompany the group to Chicago are Leonard Harkness, Osgood Magnuson, Mrs. Delphia Dirks and Minerva Jenson.

A get-acquainted dinner is planned for the Minnesota delegation in the Student Center on the University of Minnesota's St. Paul Campus Friday, Nov. 24 at 6 p. m. The group will leave St. Paul for Chicago Saturday morning, Nov. 25.

The Conrad Hilton Hotel will be headquarters for the 1,400 4-H delegates, who will represent about 2,300,000 club members in the nation.

Appearing in newspapers of the Minnesota Editorial Association through the cooperation of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service and the University of Minnesota Institute of Agriculture.

"I'm glad I laid out those 50-odd acres of contour strips," Blue Earth county farmer Marshall Bayness told SCS technician James O'Meara. Erosion on the Bayness farm was cut considerably this year despite three high intensity rains early in the season. Bayness plans to install more strips or terraces on another area of his farm next spring.

A system of straight strips he laid out in an effort to control erosion only tended to concentrate water in one spot and create gully washing on the 270-acre Benton county farm operated by John Gans, Rice. When Gans recently became a co-operator with the Benton county SCD Work Unit Conservationist Leonard Donnelly worked out a basic farm plan calling for a diversion terrace contour strips, waterways and cross-slope farming. The diversion terrace now breaks the slope and carries runoff water into a grassed outlet. "I was afraid I'd have a lot of small-fields, but my contour strips are so long I almost have to carry lunch along on the tractor," Gans told County Agent Burton Olson.

From corn that wasn't worth picking to an 80 bushel-per-acre yield the next year. That's the experience of Gerald Goodvin, Hammond, as a result of contour strip cropping and fertilizing according to soil tests. A cooperator with the Wabasha Soil and Water Conservation District, Goodvin laid out his contour strips a year ago with the help of SCS technicians. One of his fields was so badly eroded he had to get a blade in to close the ditches. "This year I didn't have any washing, so it was much easier on my machinery," he says. Biggest improvement was the tremendous increase in crop yields.

Grain sorghum acreage is increasing in Yellow Medicine county, according to County Agent David Johnson. Good varieties and weed control know-how are influencing factors. Sorghum seems to take the drought in stride better than does corn or beans.

Q — On what basis are some peacetime veterans eligible for VA hospitalization?

A — They may be eligible for VA hospitalization if they were discharged, retired or released from active service for a disability incurred or aggravated in line of duty, or are receiving compensation for a service-connected disability, or would be eligible to receive such compensation if they were not receiving retirement pay.

Q — Is it true that the monthly payments for orphans attending school under the War Orphans' Education Assistance Act vary from $50 to $110, depending on the amount of death compensation or pension they are receiving?

A — The rates of payment are: $110 a month for full-time school attendance; $80 a month, if three-quarters time; and $50 a month if half-time. The rates are not determined by receipt of compensation or pension.

Gordon Reierson, club president, stated at the local committee of the American Field Service will meet this evening at Lincoln high school to nominate three candidates among Lincoln juniors for a possible trip to a foreign country during the summer of 1962. Grain Is Stolen from Farm Near Euclid Last Week

Thieves made use of Herb Kliner's elevator near Euclid to steal 50 bushels of barley and 200 bushels of oats off the Kliner farm sometime between Nov. 1 and Nov. 8.

The barley came out of government storage, the oats belonged to Kliner.

Polk County Sheriff Carl N. Knutson said his staff has several leads, but no arrests have been made yet.

The Kliner farm is four miles east of Euclid. The thefts were made separately, with the barley going on Nov. 8 and the oats sometime after Nov. 1.

Education Week Attracted 110 to Newfolden School

American Education Week was observed at the Newfolden school from November 5 to 11. A total of 110 persons signed the guest book during the week.

Monday evening's turnout at the "Parents Night" was gratifying, said Supt. Halvorson. A panel discussion was enjoyed by all. Frank Kohoutek served as moderator with Mrs. Verne Green, Mrs. Earl Waterworth, Mrs. Margery Sollom, Mrs. Herbert Dill, Mr. Lester Elseth and Mr. Curtis Tonneson being the panel members. There was opportunity for all to see the display of modern audio-visual equipment in the gymnasium. The classrooms were open and student's work was displayed. The evening was climaxed by a lunch served in the cafeteria by the school cooks, Mrs. Alvin Nelson and Mrs. George Gunderson.

Wednesday afternoon the grade school assisted by the drummers, and color guard composed of boy scouts, staged a parade through main street. A sign, "Visit our School" welcomed the public to attend school during the week.

Friday morning a Veterans Day observance was held in the school gymnasium. The band, vocal groups & four speakers from the high school participated. The American Legion color guard also took part. In the evening Mr. Borman presented the high school band in a concert.

DISCOVERY

Maybe it seems odd to think that anyone has to "discover" the Bible. Yet stop and think how few of us really know this Book of books

Time was when families read the Bible together, and most youngsters could quote their Scriptures. Biblical allusions were commonplace and understood by one and all.

Then somehow, over the years, a lot of people forget about the Bible. Or they reserved it exclusively for Sundays in church.

Now, there is a great and blessed resurgence of Bible reading in our land—thanks to the great work of the American Bible Society. Youngsters like these are learning new truths for themselves. They are putting God's word not just into Sunday, but into every day.

THE WORD FOR THE WORLD

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Warning to all Deer Hunters

Some deer hunters are very dangerous. If you don't believe it, take a look at the John Swenson home. At ten minutes to 1 o'clock on Saturday, Nov. 11, a bullet came crashing through their bedroom wall, went through a door and plowed into the other wall, plaster and wood splinters flying all over. Mrs. Swenson was sitting right by the door thru which the bullet went, so one of the family could easily have been hurt or killed. It was a steel slug too, which is illegal. May this be a warning to other careless hunters.

200 Producers Told of Turkey Market Order

Growers Advised at Meeting on Friday of Coming Hearings

Approximately 200 turkey producers from northern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota packed the American Legion club rooms in Thief River Falls Friday afternoon to hear explanation and ask questions concerning the proposed federal marketing order for the turkey industry.

Department of Agriculture gave an explanation of the proposed marketing order and answered questions directed to him concerning the document and its provisions and limitations.

It was explained that hearings would be held throughout the nation to record testimony of delegates of various producer groups. At the conclusion of the hearings, testimony would be considered and the proposed marketing order revised in accordance with the wishes of the producers as expressed in the testimony.

Copies of the proposed order would be made available to producers for study and a referendum (vote) would be held with all producers eligible to cast a ballot in the referendum. Two-thirds of the producers voting would have to approve the order before it could become effective. It would then be in effect for three years unless 10 per cent or more of the producers petition for repeal of the Arnold O. Englund, 25, Grygla, received a flesh wound in the upper left arm Saturday when hit by a rifle bullet while tending his trap lines in Beltrami county four miles north and two miles west of Fourtown. The mishap occurred about 10:30 a. m.

The person who apparently fired the bullet was Lowell T. Peterson, 39, Plummer, who was one of a party making a drive while deer hunting in the area, according to the Pennington county Sheriff's department. Peterson was shooting at a deer which he had jumped while making the drive.

According to the report, Englund was walking along a ditch and sought protection of the ditch bank when he heard the shooting. Members of the hunting party brought him to Thief River Falls for treatment of the wound at a local clinic.

House Committee Asks Senate Group for Joint Meeting

The Liberal-dominated congressional redistricting committee of the Minnesota house of representatives held its first meeting in St. Paul Friday and voted to:

Have its two Minneapolis members meet with their senate counterparts next week and try to arrive at a solution for the controversial third and fifth districts.

[illegible] a second committee meeting in the capitol at 2 p. m. next Friday.

Attempt to arrange a joint meeting with the senate redistricting committee next Saturday.

The two Minneapolis representatives on the 10-member house committee are Liberal Leo Mosier of the 35th legislative district and Conservative Harold J. Anderson of the 33rd.

They will confer with Conservative Sen. Daniel Feidt of the 34th, who is scheduled to make a redistricting recommendation when the senate committee reconvenes next Saturday morning.

Rep. Everett Battles, Warroad Liberal, the house committee chairman, said the committee should work on the basis of what had been done earlier by the unsuccessful house and senate conference committee at the special session.

Unless Gov. Andersen calls a special session to realign Minnesota's nine congressional districts into eight, candidates for congress will have to run on a statewide basis next year.

A special session of the 1961 legislature adjourned in June after both the regular and special sessions failed to come up with a redistricting plan satisfactory to both houses.

Little Soil Bank Land Is for Sale

Survey Indicates Most Owners to Go on Farming

A survey of 118 Pennington County land owners who have soil-banked all or part of their farms, seeking information as to their plans at the termination of their soil bank contract, indicated that few of the farmers are interested in selling their land.

The questionnaires were mailed by Fred Sorenson of the vocational school in behalf of an area agricultural development committee.

Mr. Sorenson received only 24 replies and of these, 14 stated they planned to farm the land themselves. Seven will rent and only two stated they will sell. One was undecided. A question requesting an opinion as to whether an organization should be formed to serve as a clearing house for farm sales and rentals, thirteen favored, the idea and five thought there would be no need for it.

Jaycees Plan Sale of Yule Tree Ornaments Tuesday, December 5

December 5 was set as the date for the annual sale of Christmas ornaments to financially support the nativity scene when the Thief River Falls Junior Chamber of Commerce met Thursday evening in the Elks club rooms. New figurines have been purchased for the scene which is located each year on the lawn of the Thief River Falls post office.

Don Narverud reported on progress of the nativity scene committee and noted that it will be erected to coincide with city Christmas decorations the day after Thanksgiving. Volunteers who offered to work on erection of the scene were Charles Holmquist, Dr. Ralph Heiser, Glenn Peterson, Jerry Lydeen and Narverud.

Chapter members also voted to sponsor a trip for a deserving farm boy to the Grand International in Chicago. George Hildre reported on work done by that committee and also on the used ice skate collection undertaken by the chapter. Number of skates contributed was reported as small with Jaycees urged to aid in collection by asking their neighbors about skates which are too small or otherwise not used. All skates collected will be given to needy boys and girls in December.

Final reports were given by Al Doerr on the "Get out the Vote" campaign conducted in the November 7 election, Allen Torkelson on the Aviation Day program and fly-in breakfast and Gene Beito on distribution of brochures for Carnegie public library prior to the proposed bond issue vote.

Due to the work needed on activities prior to the Christmas season and the fact that only one meeting is scheduled for December, club members voted to hold an unprecedented third meeting in November. The session will be held November 30 at 6:30 p. m. in the Elks club rooms.

Fair Assn. Talks of Reorganizing

Attorney Robert Wurst Discusses Legal Problems

Members of the Pennington County Agricultural Society, in annual session Thursday evening, heard a report by Robert Wurst, local attorney, concerning possibility for dissolution of the stock company which currently operates the Pennington county fair. Directors were authorized by vote of members present to study dissolution further together with formation of a possible non-profit organization and present a "package program" to the general membership at a later date.

In making his report to the stockholders, Wurst stated it was his understanding that the organization was losing money due to lack of public cooperation since the society is a stock company and not a non-profit organization. He also added that in most instances a majority vote of all stockholders in the corporation would be necessary to dissolve the organization. Only 75 of the 347 original stockholders or their heirs are known.

However, Wurst stated, there is also provision in the law whereby a minority may petition for dissolution if the organization is not fulfilling the purpose for which it was intended. He said it was his opinion that the society could dissolve, but that it would be necessary to dispose of the assets, pay all obligations and make the remainder of the money from such sale available for distribution to the persons holding shares in the organization.

There would be nothing to prevent shareholders from turning their stock returns, if any, over to a non-profit group for use in continuance of the county fair, the attorney said. A majority vote, however, could not deprive the minority of any equity which they have in the company.

"In summary," Wurst stated, "it is my opinion that the organization can be dissolved. However, the assets cannot be given to a new organization but must be liquidated, obligations paid and any equity remaining made available to stockholders who wish to receive it."

Albert Koop and James Parkins were reelected to the board of directors, with Ray Oen elected to succeed Morris Howick who has moved from this area.

A review of the operations of the Pennington county fair for 1961 and the financial picture of the society was included in the financial report presented by Kenneth Onken, secretary-treasurer. Total attendance at the 1961 exposition was 12,000 with $3,591 paid in premiums to 894 exhibitors with 2,813 entries.

Total revenue from all sources for the 1961 fair was $13,601 wehich included $2,112 from grandstand receipts, $554 for auto parking, $3,817 for concessions, carnival,

Grazing Deadline on Diverted Acres Set at May 1, 1962

No-grazing Requirement Must Be Met If Wheat Is to Get Price Support

With few exceptions, acreage diverted from wheat production to conservation uses under the 1962 wheat stabilization program may be grazed until May 1, 1962, according to Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

The 1962 wheat stabilization program provides for the diversion of land from wheat production to conservation uses. By using the acreage diverted for approved conservation practices, producers earn payments. The program also provides that the diverted acreage is not to be grazed or a crop harvested from it during the year.

With a grazing deadline of May 1, 1962, the diverted acreage on participating farms may not be grazed from that date through the balance of the calendar year if the farm is to remain eligible for wheat stabilization payments. In addition, the no-grazing requirement must be met if the wheat from the farm is to be eligible for price support.

Spring and winter wheat producers may apply for participation in the 1962 wheat stabilization program any time up to Dec. 1, 1961. An application is necessary for each farm on which the producer expects to take part in the program. Winter and spring wheat stabilization payments will be made only to those who file application at the county ASCS office by Dec. 1.

Thanksgiving isn't all drumstick
When the first Americans celebrated the first Thanksgiving, they were showing their appreciation for a year we would consider pretty rugged. They were living in a wilderness. There were few comforts, many dangers. Yet they were grateful for what they had, and their feast was an offering of thanks. Let's all remember that today, as we gather around our dinner tables. We have so much more than they had. Let's be sure those drumsticks are part of our thanks-giving.
We're here to wish you a Happy Thanksgiving

Many people have devoted their lives to service in the Arctic since fur trade and mineral discoveries led white men into its far reaches. Unfortunately in the beginning white civilization had as many ill effects on the native Indian and Eskimo populations as good. In many cases the natives and their lands were badly exploited, they were ravaged by the minor contagious diseases of the whites and they had difficulty fitting their lives into patterns which the whites considered acceptable. Often the native people were left with "unsolveable" problems.

A new book by William Ashley Anderson, "Angel of the Arctic" describes the life of Maud Watt and her husband who together tackled and solved just such a thorny problem that was being ignored by the government, the church and the Hudson's Bay Company.

Maud Watt was the French Canadian wife of James Watt, a Hudson's Bay Company manager first of the outposts at Fort Chimo and then of Rupert House. She had grown up on the fringes of a remote HBC outpost on the desolate northern coast of Newfoundland. The rigors of the Arctic held no fears for her: she was a crack shot and she loved people.

From the first she admired and devoted herself to her Indian neighbors, ignoring the "color bar" set up and followed by former factors' wives. She married James Watt at eighteen and left immediately with him for Fort Chimo on the southern shores of Ungava Bay. There WW I shut them off from the outside world. When their supply ship failed to appear in 1918 she and James determined to cross the 800 mile peninsula between Chimo and southern Quebec on foot. No white man had ever survived the trip before, but the Indians crossed it regularly and successfully. Accompanied by two Indian families, the Watts began the trip, rationing their supplies carefully. There was little or no shelter at night; game was scarce, in most places nonexistent.

As supplies dwindled, they watched their Indian companions go without food for days at a time. Any game they found was eaten immediately. Two months after they began their journey they discarded their rags for the town clothes they had carried with them and walked out of the wilderness as nonchalantly as two tourists on a short stroll. By coming out alive they made history; the route they followed was eventually that of a heavy duty railroad built to develope Canada's northern resources.

At Rupert House the Watts found a native population faced by starvation as the beaver upon which they depended for food and a living disappeared. For two and a half centuries beaver had been trapped with no thought of conservation; now they were on the verge of extinction. The year the Watts arrived 2,000 pelts were taken; ten years later four beaver were trapped. Death by starvation increased each winter; one couple lost all thirteen children. The HBC was ready to abandon the post; Then Jim began buying the remaining live beaver from the Indians with his own salary. The starving Indians left them alone, but they were menaced by trappers outside the Rupert area.

Jim Watt knew a preserve had to be set up to protect the breeding stock. Maud set out once more in the dead of winter to persaude the Quebec government to take this unprecedented step. Confronted with Maud's fluent French, her determination to help her Indian friends and her common-sense approach, the government granted her control of all beaver in the 7,200 square miles around Rupert House. Hudson Bay Company's first reaction was wrathful indignation, but the end result was a reversal of former policies. As beaver became plentiful, both the company and the Indians gained a new economic prosperity.

Maud, on the other hand, with the sudden death of her husband, became nearly destitute. But her Indian friends stood by her. She was eventually allowed to return to Rupert House to start a much needed bakery. With them, she built a community meeting place for her Indian neighbors. She is now an honorary chieftain of the tribe and warden of the Rupert House preserve. The Watts' preserve plan has been the pattern for all the others set up in Canada.

Turkey Growers Advised of Plans for Market Order order. A vote to repeal needs only a simple majority.

"Economic considerations of the marketing order on Minnesota turkey production" was the topic of the afternoon session opening talk by Francis J. Smith, extension economist in marketing at the University of Minnesota. The afternoon meeting followed a dinner served by the American Legion Auxiliary. A question and answer period followed the presentation on economics also.

Basic differences in a marketing agreement and a marketing order were outlined in a question and answer fact sheet distributed at the meeting. A marketing agreement is voluntary. It is a contract entered into by the secretary of agriculture with handlers of a particular commodity. It is binding only to those handlers who sign it and is seldom considered effective.

A marketing order is a legal document setting the limits within which an agricultural industry can operate a program of self-regulation. It defines the terms handler and producer, the commodity to be regulated and the area to be covered. It provides for an advisory board to administer the order, the number of members and the terms of office. It lists the economic tools to be used and has procedures for financing provisions of the order.

By law, final responsibility and authority in carrying out provisions of a marketing agreement or order rests with the secretary of agriculture. Traditionally the secretary has followed the recommendations of the industry board and has participated in the program to protect the interest of individuals and the general public, and to be certain the program's administration follows the declared policy of Congress.

midway and space rentals, $2,041 state aid, $3,013 county aid, $677 rent of grounds and buildings and $1,302 for other revenue.

Total disbursements were $14,234 which included $3,590 for premiums, $3,850 for entertainment, $521 for salaries and expenses of officers and directors, $558 for minor repairs and replacements and caretaker wages, $1,186 for insurance on buildings and contents, $1,830 for accounts payable for prior year and $1,475 interest.

Deducting disbursements from the total income and last year's secretary's balance of $634 leaves the organization with a cash balance at the end of the period of $2.31, Onken reported.

Assets of the society total $57,502 which includes $8,000 in lands, $48,000 in buildings and $1,500 in personal property. Liabilities total $34,885 which include $4,410 in accounts payable, $21,800 in notes payable and $8,675 in capital stock. Excess of assets over liabilities is $22,616 as compared with $27,658 at the end of the 1960 operation.

GRADING of onions at the Mosbeck brothers farm west of St. Hilaire is one phase of the operation with which the Mosbecks experimented this year. Donald Mosbeck is shown at the right of the above photo while Mrs. LeRoy Scholin and Mrs. Eddie Moss are shown at the left. Norman Johnson, who has assisted with the grading operation since it began, is pictured in the background. With five persons assisting in the operation the equipment is capable of putting out about 20 sacks per hour.

NO TEARS are shed over the onion crop which proved to be a successful experiment on the Mosbeck brothers farm west of St. Hilaire. LeRoy Scholin is pictured above by the entrance to the 28x32 bin as he forks onions into the hopper of the grading conveyor. Approximately 35,000 pounds of onions have already been marketed from the farm and only enough have been used so that the bin door could be completely opened. At the center of the picture is the air duct through which air is forced with a grain dryer to assist in conditioning the onions. The Mosbecks estimate their 10-acre field yielded between 400 and 500 bushels per acre.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Arthur Leiran who passed away Nov. 21, 1960.

At twilight when night draws near
And sunset flames the sky,
We think of you loved one,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back
Within our dreams to stay
And we know that you are resting
When twilight ends the day.

Langen Calls for American Unity

Congressman Speaks at Stephen Saturday Night

Congressman Odin Langen Saturday called on Americans to work with renewed effort to make sure this nation maintains peace without yielding principle and to strengthen our economic and fiscal stability.

Langen, in reviewing the first session of the 87th Congress, told a public meeting at Stephen that two major problems still face lawmakers and their constituents: the defense of the nation from external forces in these difficult hours of international tension; and the defense of the nation from internal forces that threaten our existence through fiscal irresponsibility and circumvention of constitutional rights.

Langen reported that Congress exhibited commendable bi-partisan support of emergency legislation such as the defense budget. But, Langen noted, real concern was evidenced when needless domestic spending forced us into a deficit policy that may drive the country into bankruptcy.

Langen said the budget director's recent mid-year prediction that the United States is running 6.9 billion dollars in the red this fiscal year is further evidence that we cannot long continue to spend a million dollars more every hour of every day than we take in.

The Congressman praised the ability of Americans to unite as the strongest power the world has ever known when outside forces threaten our country. "But," said Langen, "this same unity is needed now to halt the forces from within that would destroy our way of life through dangerous deficit spending and suicidal concentration of bureaucratic power."

"TIGHT QUARTERS" is an understatement of the facts when the Draper Cougar is partly assembled in our 16' x 24' garage. In this shot, taken Saturday, the fuselage had to be jammed against the workbench in order to permit installation of the 1-16 in. plywood-covered right wing in order to fit the strut. Even so, the wingtip cleared the opposite wall of the garage by mere inches. The partially-completed wing is visible in the upper left while the sheet metal and tubing projecting forward are the firewall and engine mount. The fuel tank will go immediately behind the firewall. The project is almost four years old and represents a lot of evening labor. The chrome-molybdenum tubing used is similar to that used in shotgun barrels and is quite thin-walled, light, but very strong. The ship should be flyable by late winter, barring the unforeseen. Since this photo was taken this wing has been removed and the other one installed in order to fit the strut. After that "buttoning up" in preparation for FAA inspection gets under way. The aircraft, complete, will weigh slightly less than 700 lbs.

A MAZE of steel tubing is what this appears to be—but in actuality it is the tail section of the Draper Cougar, less the feathers. As can be seen here, a lot of important moving parts are cramped into some tight quarters. In this shot Yours Truly was checking amount of elevator travel — it has to be exactly right.

The Mercury Meteor will be unveiled across the country on Thursday, November 30, at about 2,000 dealerships in the Lincoln-Mercury organization. Its introduction will climax the auto industry's fall showings of the 1962 models.

The Meteor is regarded by the Lincoln-Mercury Division as a balance between the industry's compacts and big cars. Compared to its companions in the Mercury line, the Meteor is nine inches longer than the Comet and nearly a foot shorter than the Monterey.

The new Meteor will be offered in four body styles two and four door sedans in both a standard and custom series.

Two Car Mishaps Near Postoffice

Collisions Occurred Thursday and Friday

Two traffic mishaps were reported in the city since Thursday, neither of which resulted in personal injuries.

At 12:20 p. m. Thursday, the Rev. Harold Ingersoll, Minneapolis, backed from a parked position on E. Second st. near the postoffice, into the side of an eastbound pickup driven by Donald Souers, Oslo.

Damage to the Ingersoll car was negligible but Souers' pickup truck sustained an estimated $190 damages. Ingersol was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Richard L. Booen, city, reported to police about 5:10 p. m. Friday his car had been stuck in the left-rear fender by another car, presumably parked behind Booen's, in front of the postoffice. Damage estimated at $75 was caused to Booen's car by the second car, which left the scene. Police are investigating.

Custodians Are Invited to Clinic in Bemidji Nov. 27

Modern methods of building maintenance will be the theme of an afternoon clinic for custodians and janitors to be held at Bemidji State college Monday, November 27, from 1 to 5 p. m.

Marvin Ohman, supervisor of building maintenance for BSC, will be the director of the clinic, and he has secured several films and guest speakers who will discuss problems confronting building maintenance and the need for putting modern methods and products into practice.

Each fall BSC holds a clinic of this type for its own maintenance personnel and Ohman reports that many Northern Minnesota school administrators have asked that the clinic be expanded to allow their maintenance staffs to attend.

The program will include a film on standard custodial operations, best work methods and public relations. There will be a demonstration of water, wax and detergent spray methods plus a demonstration of wet and dry mopping.

Your friends will be interested in reading about your guests from out of town. Call MU1-1450 and tell the Times about it.

Old Records

Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Daily Pioneer has been delving into the old files in an effort to bring the results of the Prowlers vs. Bemidji Lumberjacks football series up-to-date. And Jim has been doing a good job.

Jim's research reveals that the series began back in 1911, and in that game Bemidji won by a 27 to 0 score. In 1912 the Jacks again won, this time by a 12 to 0 score. And in 1913, Bemidji trounced the locals, 71 to 0. The Prowlers and the Jacks did not play in 1914, 15 and 16, but in 1917 the series was resumed, with the Prowlers winning by an 18 to 12 score.

Since 1920, with the exception of 1925 and 1927, the two teams have played on an annual basis, and the rivalry has developed into one of the best on the Prowler schedule.

Our records, in the main, coincide with Jim's. There is a variance of one point in the score of the 1926 game though. Bemidji won that game, according to our records, by a 2 to 0 score, and by a 3 to 0 score according to Jim's research. Roy Oen, who played in that game, expressed the opinion that the score was 2 to 0, with Harold (Brownie) McCready kicking a field-goal, by placement, to give the Jacks the win. It was Roy's recollection that a placekick field goal in those days was worth two points, while a drop-kick field goal was worth three points. This is a point for Jim to check.

Odds Favor the Blue Bombers

Harry (Bud) Grant's Winnipeg Blue Bombers football squad, defeating the Calgary Stampeders, 14 to 1, on Saturday afternoon, took a one-game lead in the best-of-three Western Canada finals. The Bombers, who won the league championship of the WIFC, are heavily favored to close out the series on Wednesday night when the two teams meet in the second game of the series in the Winnipeg Stadium.

If the Blue Bombers win the western finals the squad will move into the Grey Cup game, and will meet the Eastern Canada representative for the Canadian football title. This game is rated as THE athletic spectacle in Canada.

Grant has developed a team this season that is rated with the all-time great football squads in Canadian history. And Bud, who is a former University of Minnesota all-round athlete, has been greatly aided this season by the play of three former Gopher football stars. Dave Burkholder is rated as one of the best linebackers in the Western conference; Mike Wright has been doing yeoman service at tackle for the Bombers, playing both ways; and Roger Hagberg has been a ground-gaining fullback for the club, being especially effective during the absence, through an injury, of the first-string fullback, Charlie Shepard.

The Shot of the Year

What's this we hear about one of eastern Red Lake county's top-ranked game-shots "blowing" a set-up on a pheasant?

According to the information at hand, a party of pheasant hunters were returning from a trip to the Barnesville area and as they approached Twin Valley a cock pheasant scurried across the highway and found cover along the railroad right-of-way.

The party made a quick stop, and recognizing the reputation of the veteran hunter, and ackowledging his seniority, it was agreed that this hunter should make the "kill". The hunter thumbed a pair of shells into his trusty automatic, and followed the dogs as they trailed the pheasant. The dogs pinned the bird, and the hunter made the flush, Bang and bang, two shots were taken, and bird flew away unharmed. It must have been an embarrassing moment.

This hunter, perhaps, should restrict his activities to golf and bowling.

Drive carefully. The life you save may be your own.

County Men Did Well with Onions

by Marv Lundin
Times Reporter

Handling onions may make you cry but it brings a smile to the lips of Veral, Donald and Warren Mosbeck and Arlo Scholin who had considerable success this summer with onion production on their respective farms southwest of St. Hilaire. While an extremely dry summer severely cut production of normal crops in the area, the experiment with onions proved beneficial to the Mosbecks and Scholin.

After conducting interviews and writing a story on the planting operation last spring, I followed the project with a great deal of interest. Together with Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent, who foresees a substantial potential for vegetable production in this area, I visited the Mosbeck farm again this fall to see if the experiment was successful. Apparently it was.

From 10 acres of onions the Mosbeck brothers filled a bin measuring 28 feet wide, 32 feet long and 14 feet high. They estimated the yield to be between 400 and 500 bushels per acre. With a weight of 57 pounds per bushel and a market price in the vicinity of two cents per pound, the onions will prove to be a substantially paying investment.

While the onion field looks quite green financially, it must be stated that there was a considerable investment in planting, cultivating, harvesting and grading equipment and hand labor. Proper storage area and equipment to permit drying of the onions was also needed and a great deal of time was spent in planning, research and preparation of equipment and facilities.

The Mosbeck's figured their cost at about $100 per acre which included about $65 per acre for hand-weeding during the summer. Local women were hired to do the weeding at one dollar per hour and help was easy to secure. The Mosbeck onion field was hand-weeded twice and covered by tractor and cultivator about five times during the growing season.

Late season rains gave the Mosbeck onions a substantial boost in growth, but skirted the Scholin field where the yield was estimated at about 250 bushels per acre. Some of the late-sprouting onions turned into "thick necks" having tops nearly as large as the onion itself. These are useless and are discarded in the grading process. Culls aren't wasted. The Mosbeck sheep thrive on them.

If the Mosbecks can't find what they want in the way of equipment, they build what they want. They built a topper which was run by the power take-off on the tractor and also used an indirect potato harvester to get the crop out of the ground. The onions were dumped in long rows on a hill at the north end of the field to dry and were covered with 400 feet of plastic sheeting every night when it appeared that it might rain.

Harvesting started right after the first of October and was completed just before the first hard frost of the season in mid-October. After drying in the rows for about two weeks, the onions were moved with a tractor and loader to the farm yard where a conveyor carried them into the storage bin.

Frost walls were erected in the storage facility and an inverted "V" duct about four feet high was prepared in the center of the bin. Air is forced into the bin with a conventional grain dryer to further dry and condition the onions. Soil sticking to the onions due to wet harvest conditions has not been a problem since onions shed layers of skin as they dry and the dirt peels off with them.

Approximately 35,000 pounds of onions have now been marketed by the Mosbeck brothers through L. B. Hartz Wholesale, Inc., in Thief River Falls. This amount has made just enough of a hole in the bin to permit the bin doors to be completely opened.

Assisting in the grading operation have been Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Scholin, Norman Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Moss and Oscar Mosbeck, father of the three Mosbeck boys engaged in the project.

Other experiments in the general truck garden field have also proved moderately successful for the Mosbecks this year. A two and one-half acre field of rutabagas yielded about 30 tons after only one hand weeding and one tractor cultivation. They were lifted after hard frost which apparently did not hamper their storage ability.

Cabbage from a field 2.6 acres in size was also marketed through the Hartz wholesale firm beginning in August. About 100 50-pound bags per week were sold from the field for a total income of slightly over $900. Late rain caused a number of split heads so that "not a bit over half" of the crop was salable, Veral Mosbeck stated.

Are the Mosbecks going to be content to have their calculated risk pay-off this year and toss in the sponge in the onion business to quit while they're ahead? Not hardly. They worked all summer preparing the ground for next year's crop.

SACKING of onions into five-pound bags for a special Thanksgiving promotion by Hartz Wholesale is Ronald Sevre, shown here in the Hartz fruit and vegetable department. The onions were produced locally by Mosbeck brothers west of St. Hilaire, and are delivered to the warehouse in 90-pound sacks. The Mosbecks also marketed approximately $900 worth of cabbage through the local wholesale firm from a field 2.6 acres in size.

Highway Program No Pork Barrel: Blatnik

"Financing of the federal highway program is not a lavish government pork-barrel," Rep. John A. Blatnik (DFL-Minn.), has told Minnesota motor carriers.

"Every penny the federal government is spening on the highway program is coming out of the highway trust fund set up by Congress in 1956," Blatnik stated in a message to the state's motor carrier industry.

"It has been charged by some that the Congress of the United Sates has poured money into one form of transport at the expense of others and that the federal highway program amounts to a hugh subsidy to highway transportation at the expense of general taxpayers," he said.

"This is clearly not the case," he said, "All of the revenues of the highway trust fund are derived from levies on automotive products and truck and bus use."

Blatnik said in 1960; according to U. S. Treasury department figures, taxes on new motor vehicles, parts and accessories, tires, motor fuels, tread rubber, tubes, lubricating oil, and truck and bus use totaled $[illegible],937,000.

"Of this amount, $2,568,500,000 went into the highway trust fund, leaving $1,712,437,000 for a general fund," he pointed out.

Blatnik said, "in 1959, in Minnesota, total state highway expenditures, including federal aid, were about $132 million.

"More than 33 percent of this total came from truck taxes alone" Blatnik said.

"There is no support for the view that Congress has been doling out funds for highways which were obtained from general taxpayers."

71-foot Spruce to Be State Capitol Christmas Tree

A 71-foot white spruce growing north of Crosby will be cut this week and hauled to St. Paul to glitter with 1,000 lights as a Christmas decoration on the state capitol lawn.

The tree, spotted by state foresters at the request of Gov. Andersen, is being given to the state by Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Banks who live about 15 miles north of Crosby.

The big tree weighs an estimated 3½ tons and experts guess its age at about 70 years.

James Spangler, regional forester at Brainerd, said crews will move in with a tractor and crane to cut the spruce. It will be hauled to St. Paul during the last week in November.

A Man's Thanksgiving

(Arthur W. Newcomb)

"God of commonsense, I give thee thanks for the heavy blows of pain that drive me back from perilous ways into harmony with the laws of my being; for stinging whips of hunger and cold that urge to bitter strivings and glorious achievement; for steepness and roughness of the way, and staunch virtues gained by climbing over jagged rocks of hardship, and stumbling through dark and pathless sloughs of discouragement; for the acid blight of failure that has burned out of me all thought of easy victory, and toughened my sinews for fiercer battles and greater triumphs; for mistakes I have made, and the priceless lessons I have learned from them; for disillusion and disappointment that have cleared my vision and spurred my desire; for strong appetites and passions, and the power they give when under pressure and control; for my imperfections that give me the keen delight of striving toward perfection.

"God of common good and human brotherhood, I give Thee thanks for siren songs of temptation that lure and entangle, and the understanding of other men they reveal; for the weaknesses and failings of my neighbors, and the joy of lending a helping hand; for my own shortcomings, sorrows and loneliness, that give me a deeper sympathy for others; for in gratitutde and misunderstanding and the gladness of service without other reward than self-expression."

We Pay the Costs

A Brooklyn jury has awarded nearly a million dollars to three persons as a result of a plane crash. American Airlines was held responsible when a flight from Chicago crashed into the East river near New York's LaGuardia airport in 1959.

A public relations man, who had both legs broken in the accident and suffered internal injuries, was awarded $150,000. A widow, whose husband's body was recovered from the river some months later, was given $125,000. Another passenger received $28,000 for a brain concussion.

Had the plane been on an international flight the liability, under the provisions of an agreement entered into by 52 nations, would have been limited to $8,300 per person. As we understand it, there is no cash ceiling in liability for domestic flights if negligence is proved.

There may have been justification for these large awards by the jury, but they appear to be exorbitant. We are sure the attorneys' fees were excessive. What business is that of ours? you may ask.

Unfortunately it is our business, all of us, because all of us pay a portion of the cost. Juries are becoming increasingly liberal with their awards in cases of this kind, involving any form of common carrier or, in fact, involving any individual or organization that the jury suspects is protected adequately by insurance. No responsible individual or corporation can afford not to be adequately protected by insurance.

But it is not the insurance company's money that is used to pay the excessive awards. The insurance companies merely spread these costs among their policy holders, and as juries become more liberal, our insurance costs increase. We pay these costs, all of us.

Let the Industry Do It

A group of communications companies, providing service in various areas of the world, seek approval for a space communications plan that would make available a world-wide satellite communications system. A special committee has recommended a non-profit corporation to develop, construct and operate such a system. The report emphasizes that no one company can control the operation and that the federal government would have a strong voice in that control.

Our knowledge of satellite communications systems is a little limited, we will agree, but we like the idea mainly because no tax dollars are involved. The communications companies that seek permission to enter into this field will pay the bills. President Kennedy has expressed himself favorably on the proposal.

But now some of the Socialists in Washington are trying to get the President to change his mind. This thing is too big for private industry, they say. The government should take the job over. And of course they see in the background a greedy group of self-seekers who are thinking only of their own selfish interests. Far better that our capable and always public spirited politicians perform the miracle with taxpayers' dollars. They are sure the government can get the system completed faster than could private industry.

Well, we hope that President Kennedy does not change his mind, and that the communications industry, headed by men who have proven their know-how, will be encouraged to take over this assignment.

Preparing for the Worst

For months government authorities have been writing and rewriting a booklet on fall-out shelters, Josephine Ripley, staff correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, tells us. It still is in the process of revision. President Kennedy is hopeful that it will be completed by the end of the month but those who are working on it are not so optimistic. In the meantime public reaction to shelter building ranges from apathy to hysteria, according to Miss Ripley.

We are not going to do one single thing about building our own shelter until we get this booklet, and by that time the ground will be frozen. Maybe we will wait until spring. By that time the third or fourth revised edition of the instruction manual may be available to us. We are inclined to agree with Miss Ripley that the government is as confused as the public as to what is needed in the way of a shelter program.

We like the plan that has been adopted for the saving of the city of St. Paul. If Civil Defense officials in St. Paul are notified that the city is going to be bombed, the fire department will immediately take to the hills. Just where the fire fighters will go has not been revealed. They will not run away to save themselves. They will run away so that they can return to put out the fires after the storm has subsided.

We gather from this that the present thinking of the Civil Defense Board of Strategy is that when an alarm is sounded all the important people, the doctors, the nurses, the police and others who provide essential services, should leave town. While this is going on, will you ordinary people, who are just going to get killed, please get out of the way.

Youth and Age

(Wall Street Journal)

The first time we encountered Sam Rayburn—it was more than a quarter-century ago — we were new to the press rooms of Congress and he was already an elder statesman.

At the morning gathering we bombarded him with questions, boldly stated and full of the pretensions of youth. Suddenly he asked us who we were. "Wall Street Journal," we replied with an air of some self-importance.

There was a pause while our colleagues watched him look us over from head to toe. And then, quietly, his own question: "When did The Wall Street Journal start sending us adolescents?"

It was typical of Sam Rayburn. Like any man so many years in Congress, he has his sins to answer for; without his parliamentary skill many a bad law would never have been shepherded through the House. But among his sins was never a tolerance of pretension. He was not fooled by over-educated young men. And he had always that gift of a bygone generation, rooted in elemental experience, for cutting through fine-spun humbug with an earthy edge.

There are others now who can replace him in the Chair; the old are never missed for their skills. But we wonder who remains there, intolerant of humbug, to bring down to earth the new young men overcome with their self-importance and bursting with the pretension to remake the world in seven days.

From an Expert

(Tuscon, Arizona Star)

Many editorials on Communism and how to fight it have been written, but probably none any better than is found in the words of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in his testimony before a Senate Judiciary Committee subcommittee investigating administration of internal security laws: . . .

"Because Communism thrives on turmoil, the party is continuously attempting to exploit all grievances—real or imagined—for its own tactical purposes. It is, therefore, almost inevitable that, on many issues, the party line will coincide with the position of many non-Communists.

"The danger of indiscriminately alleging that someone is a Communist merely because his views on a particular subject happen to parallel the official party position is obvious. The confusion which is thereby created helps the Communists by diffusing the forces of their opponents.

"Unfortunately, there are those who make the very mistake the Communists are so careful to avoid. These individuals concentrate on the negative instead of the positive. They are merely against Communism without being for any positive measures to eliminate the social, political and economic frictions which the Communists are . . . exploiting.

"These persons would do well to recall a recent lesson from history. Both Hitler and Mussolini were against Communism. However, it was by what they stood for, not against, that history has judged them."

Those final lines will stand a rereading. Americans engaged in negatve campaigns, working . . . to divide neighbor from neighbor . . . should remember them especially.

Governor Elmer L. Andersen

Phenylketonuria

This is a very strange word. It is the name of a strange, inherited disease, recently discovered, that causes mental deficiency in infants. About one infant in 20,000 is born with P. K. U., as it is called. The child has inability to digest protein-containing food properly. An excessive amount of a material phenylalanine accumulates in the body which has a harmful effect on the central nervous system. If undetected, severe mental retardation will occur by the time the child is five years old.

If detected (tests are now well developed), and treated (this also has been fully tested), no mental retardation will occur. All Minnesota doctors have been urged by the Department of Health to check every infant.

The amazing research that lead the way to removing this cause of mental retardation was carried on at our University of Minnesota Medical School under the direction of Dr. John Anderson.

Wild Rice

As one part of an overall bountiful harvest this year Minnesota has been blessed with the fourth consecutive year of a generous wild rice crop. It is unusual since wild rice is very fussy as to growing requirements and when rice is easily destroyed by even moderate rain storms.

The figures for 1961 are not complete but in 1958 the harvest was 3.2 million pounds, in 1959, 2.1 million and in 1960, 2.3 million. This is the raw unprocessed rice as it comes from the stands. It takes about 2½ pounds of this to make a pound of the wild rice you buy.

The rice is picked by about 800 harvesters and processed mostly by commercial firms in the wild rice area. Usually there are 15,000 to 30,000 acres of this native grain growing in shallow waters of northern Minnesota lakes. Our state provides about 85 percent of the national supply.

If you want to try a new way to serve it, deep fry it like french fried potatoes, dry, salt, and serve as a confection. This "popped" wild rice is very tasty.

The Kelley Farm is Ours

While I was in New York on the trade promotion trip I was in touch with our own Bill Pearson, Master of the Minnesota Grange and leaders of the national organization who were meeting at Worcester, Massachusetts. The delegate assembly voted to transfer the Kelley farm (about which we wrote a few weeks ago) to the Minnesota Historical Society. This is a most significant acquisition which delights Russ Fridley, executive director of the society, and everyone else interested in Minnesota history.

Prayer of Thanksgiving

"The day passed so quickly — there just wasn't time!"

We've said that about many days. Never say it about Thanksgiving.

For it isn't true . . .

All days pass at the same steady pace. We have the same daily portion of time—to spend as we think best.

Take time to be thankful.

And be thankful for time!

Our souls do not realize their destiny in one hurtling leap.

An hour of thanksgiving. An hour of worship. An hour of Bible study. An hour of service for our Church. Thus we grow... SLOWLY, WITH FERVENT FEELING.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

This Thursday, being Thanksgiving Day, should have a great deal of significance to us as we count our blessings. We cannot forget the story of the first Thanksgiving as the earliest settlers sat down with some American Indians and had a feast and gave thanks for the blessings this new land had bestowed upon them. They were very hopeful for a bright future of freedom in a land where a man could be a man and live his life free from suppression.

How far we have come since that day! We are now quite a developed nation of some 185 million people. We have improvised our standard of living to a great extent, however we have also relinquished some of the liberty that those early people once had. Times have changed, people have changed, and situations have changed.

This conglomeration of changes that has taken place has brought progress to this nation in many respects and yet we descendents of those early people are slowly finding ourselves sacrificing a freedom here and a liberty there which is gradually regulating and regimenting us into a mass of controlled humanity.

The situation is far more serious than most of us realize, however it is not yet completely out of our hands. Personally, this is one thing that I am very thankful for this 1961. I am glad and thankful that I still can be an individual and make something of my life without being completely regulated like a puppet on so many strings. I hope that every person reading this paper recognizes how important that fact is. The way this nation is going, I question whether or not we'll be able to be thankful for quite so many freedoms in another ten years.

Everybody wants a government program! Labor, agriculture, business, transportation, municipalities—everybody wants to have the government guarantee them something. Who is the government? The people, of course! So, I ask why the people don't want to be responsible for their own responsibility. What happened to the tough individual who had the guts to come to this country, sight unseen, and hack out a living with his own shovel? Well, we've forgotten about him. He's an old-fashioned thinker, isn't he?

Personally, I wish we had more "old-fashioned" thinkers in this town, county, state, and country. I, personally, don't want a government program, for I think I'll do better without one if I work a little harder. I'll work a little harder too, if I know that everything is up to me. I think you would too. On a "free swinging" basis this whole area would move a little faster than it is right now. Here in the Heart of Northwest Minnesota, we've still got some opportunity to develop a great deal of potential with our own brains and hands. Let's not kick it down the drain with a whole manual of controls and management out of Washington D. C.

I hope everyone of you have a very thoughtful Thanksgiving!

of Rhyme & Reason

BY [illegible]

TODAY'S TOPIC OF DISCUSSION for the Monday study group comprised of faithful "Rhyme & Reason" readers reeks of sarcasm and is the subject of holidays. Thanksgiving Day is coming upon us soon and many people, the vast majority in fact, believe that it is a day set aside for giving thanks to God for things which provide our living and livelihood.

This mistaken conception throughout the years has gradually changed back toward its original intent. The true story will be outlined later in this column. But the idea, that of giving praise to The Almighty for daily bread, must soon be considered as naive as believing in the birth of Christ more than the coming of Santa Claus at Christmas.

Here then is the true Thanksgiving story as revealed by diligent search through documents uncovered in an old shoe box by an Italian immigrant clam digger along the Eastern coastline of the United States. It maybe shocking but it is every bit as true as recent statements made about newspaper men on recent Jack Paar television shows.

In the early Chrysler colony, located up the coast a bit from Plymouth colony, lived a distinguished gentleman's gentleman by the name of Sir Edmund Giving. Sir Giving was a man of noble bearing, disdaining to work the soil since it discolored his cuticles; but because of his stature he fared bountifully at the tables of other residents of the colony. In fact, in modern terminology, it could be said he was fat.

Sir Giving was a profound believer in holiday observances since he dearly loved a party and there was always extra food. Nobody's fool for organization when it came to a plan of getting something for nothing, "Big Ed", as he was known to his intimate friends, had an idea. The more he thought about a gala feast to observe the end of the harvest season, the more obsessed with the idea he became.

It wasn't long before Chrysler colony felt the directional power of Sir Edmund Giving. He secured young boys to ride their bicycles through the streets, calling for a meeting in the center of the colony. In the light of a blazing bonfire, before an entranced crowd of Pilgrim fathers, Sir Giving made his pitch for a harvest festival. When his speech was concluded a deafening roar drowned out the crackling of the public address system. The feast was assured.

With the diligence of a man dedicated to duty, Giving directed procedure for the event. Parties were sent out to secure turkeys which were in bountiful supply due to a surplus of production. Pumpkins and other goodies were begged from the more prosperous farmers. Women were assigned as volunteers to do the work in preparing the meal. It was a 20th century plan of action.

When the day of the feast came, the boys with bicycles again pedaled through the streets, blowing through horns left over from the previous new year's party. (That party was also engineered by giving who liked to drink as well as he liked to eat). These "horns of plenty," indicating that the feast was ready and there was plenty of food for all, brought the Pilgrims en masse to Chrysler colony's community activities center where long tables were covered with white linen and unruly Pilgrim children.

Following the feed, Sir Giving was carried to the speaker's platform where, after belching loudly several times, he commented on the success of the event and extolled his role as originator and organizer. He left the stage, by tripping over the microphone cord and falling heavily to the floor, amid a chorus of "Thanks, Giving" from well-fed Pilgrims. The rallying cry of "Thanks, Giving" was shortened by a typographical error in the Chrysler Chronicle and annual harvest feasts to this day have been held under the theme of "Thanksgiving" in honor of Sir Edmund.

Who could dispute such an authentic story?

SHORT TALE OF A WHITETAIL

This is a tale of nothing but luck.
The story concerns a young whitetail buck.
The deer didn't hear me and so didn't duck.

The chapter unfolded on opening day.
I was ready and waiting when he came my way.
I was out to get him, not just out to play.
That's why there's meat in my freezer today.

Your Minnesota Hostess

Folks used to think of beer as a "hot weather" beverage. But not any more! Seasonal consumption figures for 1959 and 1960, found in the 1961 Brewers' Almanac, prove beer has ever-increasing status as a year-around treat. (Wonderful, for instance, with a Thanksgiving Night turkey sandwich.)

Historic Hubbel House
Driving near Mantorville, Minn.? Raise a glass to the oldest still-flourishing tavern in our state! John Hubbell drifted into Mantorville and built the stout stone structure in 1854. Just five years hence, Hubbell vanished from his popular stagecoach-stop! (Rumor suggests he lost a battle with a grizzly bear.) Hubbell House, however, continued to welcome travelers. Its guest register names many a famous man, including Ole Bull and Horace Greeley, the gent who said "Go West, Young Man."

Braves and Brewing — The Indians were drinking beer when Columbus arrived! It was brewed from Indian Corn. Though our beer contains other grains as well, corn still plays a part. During 1960, Minnesota breweries bought 1,635,539 bushels of corn from our farmers.

Holiday Potatoes
Lush beer-laced partners for your Thanksgiving turkey:
6 large sweet potatoes
1½ Tbsp. butter
1 cup beer
salt and pepper
Scrub potatoes; cover with boiling water. Boil about 30 minutes, till tender. Peel thinly. Slice potatoes ½ inch thick and place in buttered casserole. Fleck with rest of butter. (Don't skimp!) Season to taste. Pour beer over them. Bake in 400-degree oven about one hour, till beer is almost absorbed. Serves 6 to 8 . . . See other holiday specialties in my free cookbook. Draper Gives Details of Building Airplane

by V. M. Draper

Ever wonder just what the loneliest job in the world would be like—and what job that would be? The night watchman in a metropolitan cemetery certainly must stand a lonely vigil, as does the custodian in a morgue. Of course we'll have to rule out Big Barnsmell, proprietor of the Dogpatch Skonk Works because he's a mythical character in the Lil Abner cartoon strip.

It wasn't my intention to find out what the loneliest job in the world is, nor am I necessarily claiming my hobby is that but the task of constructing my own airplane has turned out to be something like it. Little did I dream nearly four years ago just what the job entails—not that I'm complaining on the length or difficulty of the job because the press of other chores or lack of finances has often kept me from it for periods up to four months so that actually such a project could be completed in as little as 18 months.

One could complain, however, after slaving for nights on end over a hot welding torch on some small parts only to hear some occasional dropper-in remark, "Oh, you haven't done anything to it since the last time I was here."

At moments like that an airplane builder feels like wrapping a strut around his visitor's neck. If you should ever tackle such a project be sure to turn it end for end occasionally so it looks different each time you have company in the shop. That's how I do it. It saves hours of explaining how painstaking one must be in making each small part, such as door hinges, pulley brackets, etc.

Then there is always the chance visitor (thank Heavens there are few of this cariety) who always says, "This will be something like a Cub, won't it?" Not wanting to precipitate an argument I always agree. After all it has much in common with a Cub—both of them are airplanes! I'll admit to being somewhat shook up once, however, when one individual said it reminded him of an F-51 Mustang! Oh well, just so long as no one tells me it reminds him of a blimp . . .

Then there is always that old chestnut, "Couldn't you BUY a plane much cheaper than you can build one?" Then you go into the "Yes, but . . ." routine. (Just in case you're interested, you CAN'T buy a two-seater with a 150 m.p.h. crusing speed at any price—the factories just aren't building 'em. The fastest two-seater on the market today is the Shinn 2150A with a top speed of 135 and a price tag of around $8000.) Need I say more?

Just for the record, my plane is a conventional high-wing, strut-braced monoplane with fixed landing gear. It will be 18 ft. 6 in. long with a wingspan of 20 ft. 7 in. Robert Nesmith, the Houston, Tex. engineer who designed the "Cougar," says it will do 190 top, 160 cruise with a 115 h. p. Lycoming engine swinging a 64 x 65 in. propeller.

That's just what I want in an airplane. With 1500 miles between us it's hard to visit my home folks in Virginia often, especially when one has only a week's vacation annually. With my plane the mileage is cut to about 1150 and the travel time is reduced to 7½ hours, roughly. Which means I'll be able to make it down at least one weekend a year, maybe more. Which also explains why I wouldn't be satisfied with a big old-fashioned 75 m.p.h., factory-built, used Cub for the low, low price of $850 or so.

Some uninformed people consider flying in homebuilt planes about the same as playing Russian roulette with all the chambers in the revolver loaded but one. It isn't, with Federal Aviation Agency supervision being what it is today. The only practical difference between a good homebuilt plane and one that came out of a factory is just that. . .the materials are the same in each plane, for the most part.

The homebuilt plane may be a little "hotter" on landing but in the hands of a careless pilot one plane can be just as dangerous as the other. Most airplane crashes are the result of cockpit trouble in the first place—pilots, being human, are always an unknown quantity.

There is one sure thing—if all goes well this winter the neighbors won't be seeing lights in our garage at ungodly hours next year and I'm sure TV reception in the neighborhood will improve considerably after the bench grinder, saber saw and drill are put away on completion of the project sometime early in 1962.

Then I hope my lonely vigil will be over, after realizing a lifelong ambition, and I can relax in a soft, easy chair and watch TV myself—that is, if I don't find something else I'd like to build afterwards. In the meantime, drop in if you wish—visitors are welcome, questions and all!

MP Army Pvt. Clayton O. Hjelle, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hjalmer Hjelle, Newfolden, completed eight weeks of military police training at The Provost Marshal General Center, Fort Gordon, Ga., Nov. 9. He received instruction in self defense, traffic control and the basic procedures of civil and military law. He attended Newfolden high school.—U. S. Army photo.

AAA Calls for Equity in Highway Financing

The Minnesota AAA at its 55th annual meeting in Minneapolis Thursday protested the policy that the entire cost of construction of the national system of interstate and defense highways be borne by the highway user.

Harlan Nygaard, Minneapolis, policy chairman of the 250,000-member motoring organization, said:

"Studies by the Bureau of Public Roads, made under Section 210 of the federal highway revenue act of 1956, clearly reveal the benefits to non-users from construction of the Interstate System.

"We are urging Congress to act on this in the interest of fairness and equity — to recognize these benefits and provide an equitable tax base for both highway users and non-highway user beneficiaries."

Another action taken by the organization called for a nationwide campaign of education on the use of safety belts in automobiles, asserting that use of seat belts could save up to 5,000 lives each year in traffic accidents.

The association also:

Urged that radar and other speed detection devices be used openly and be made illegal if used solely to entrap motorists.

Advocated the installation of information, rest and service areas for the benefit of motorists using the new freeways.

Asked all segments of the automotive industry to explore means of reducing costs of car operation, maintenance and repair wherever possible.

Appealed for added impetus to the high school driver education program by raising the minimum driver license age for untrained drivers.

Don't Ignore Teeth, Says Dental Assn.

Says Big Dental Bills Are Result of Neglect

The dentist's best friend — from a financial point of view — is the person who ignores his teeth and shuns the dental office.

According to the Minnesota State Dental association, big dental bills are almost always the result of neglecting teeth. Those who ignore their teeth consistently can expect severe dental problems, says the dental group.

Sooner or later they are forced to visit the dental office, driven there by pain caused by cavities or one of the severe gum diseases.

This, of course, usually calls for intensive and long-term treatment or fitting with artificial dentures, both of which are expensive.

On the other hand, points out the dental association, good dental health habits pay off in the form of sound teeth, healthy gums and small dental bills.

The person who brushes his teeth faithfully as soon as possible after eating, stimulates his gums with daily toothbrush massage and who shows up for dental examinations every six months will cut his average annual dental bill dramatically and very possibly will never have to wear dentures.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Clock Watcher

Nothing in the world is more discouraging than a guest who doesn't know when to go home—especially if you have to get up as early as Chub Jackson, our local milkman.

Last week, poor Chub and his missus were entertaining a distant cousin from Center City who just wouldn't call it a night. The later it got, the more he talked, and the more unhappy Chub got.

But Chub finally found a way to shut him up. Just as his cousin started another long tale with, "And that reminds me of the time . . . ," Chub jumped right up and said, "Gosh, you're right! It is getting late!"

From where I sit people who have respect and consideration for other folks' feelings never outstay their welcome. One of my neighbors, for example, prefers other beverages to beer, yet when he drops over he never objects if I have a glass of beer while he enjoys his coffee. It's thoughtfulness like this that keeps friendships from "tiring out."

Final Action on City Budget Is Set for Nov. 28

Council Buys New Police Car Tuesday from Forkenbrock

Final action on approving the city budget for 1962 and fixing the mill levy was tabled until an adjourned meeting at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, November 28, when the Thief River Falls city council held its regular November meeting in the municipal courtroom Tuesday evening. Also shelved until the adjourned session was discussion on a wage increase application by the Municipal Drivers and Helpers Local 664.

Forkenbrock Motor company of Thief River Falls was the successful low bidder for supplying a new police patrol car for the city. The bid accepted was for a Dodge four-door police pursuit automobile with V-8 engine, 7:10x15 tires and vinyl upholstery. Difference between cost of the car and trade-in of the present squad car was given at $1,105.

The bid of Tunberg Motor company for a trade-in difference of $1,450 was the only other conforming bid received. Bids of Gustafson and Son and Sande Auto and Implement company were not conforming since their offers were for "compact" cars.

Upon receipt of a petition from property holders on Knight avenue, the council ordered a feasibility report on street light construction on Knight avenue from the Great Northern railway tracks to Third street. The report is to be prepared for presentation at the next regular meeting of the council in December.

Other petitions for street improvements on west First street from Arnold avenue to State avenue and on LaBree avenue south from First street past the hospital to Main avenue, were tabled and ordered checked for accuracy. Councilmen expressed the thought that other petitions are being circulated and that it would be of advantage to wait until all peti-

District Governor Speaks at Rotary Luncheon Monday

Robert Allison of Fergus Falls Discusses Role of Rotary in Changing World

G. Robert Allison, Fergus Falls, governor of district 558 of Rotary International, was guest speaker at the noon dinner meeting of the Thief River Falls Rotary club Monday. He discussed the role of Rotary in a changing world and cited projects which prove the worth of the organization as a service club in their respective communities and an international promoter of friendship among nations.

"With fellowship and service to others as its keynote, Rotary provides a common ground for 509,000 business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of differing nationalities or customs or languages or political and religious beliefs, the district governor emphasized.

"In addition to the promotion of international understanding, special emphasis is being placed by Rotary clubs in this district on civic and community welfare projects, youth work, support of crippled children's hospitals and schools, rural-urban projects and the promotion of better employer-employee relationships." The district includes 41 Rotary clubs in North Dakota, Minnesota and the "lake head" region of Ontario and Superior, Wis.

"The world is truly one neighborhood and in this great family of Rotary, extending to all corners of the world, we have unlimited opportunities to be good neighbors and establish friendly relations with men of good will of every land," Allison stated. He stated that there are now over 11,000 rotary clubs in 124 countries throughout the world.

Allison also urged all local Rotarians to attend the district conference to be held in April at Moorhead, and to make plans for the club to be represented at the 53rd annual convention of Rotary International which will be held next June in Los Angeles, Calif.

Postmaster Dryden Reminds Patrons of Coming Holiday Rush

"It's time to start planning your Christmas card and gift mailings", Postmaster R. J. Dryden said today as he launched his 1961 "Mail Early For Christmas" Campaign.

Looking ahead to what may be the biggest Christmas season ever, he said further, "Here are the things to watch to help in getting every Christmas card and package delivered before December 25th:

Check your Christmas card and gift lists carefully. Be sure each address is complete with full name, street and number, city, zone and state. Avoid abbreviations of city and state names.

For your gift packages, secure heavy wrapping paper, sturdy corrugated cartons, strong cord and adhesive tape. Remember, also, that you can include your Christmas card or letter inside your gift packages if you will add the appropriate first class mail stamps to the postage for the package itself.

When you go to the Post Office, ask for a supply of labels which read, "All for local delivery " and "All for out of town delivery," so that before you mail your Christmas cards you can sort them into two groups, with the addresses all

Three Youths Hurt in Mishap Tuesday

Two Warroad youths and another boy from Badger, all 16 years of age, are hospitalized at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls following an automobile accident one mile south of St. Hilaire about 3:30 p. m. Tuesday. Investigation of the mishap was made by the state highway patrol.

High Temperatures Range in Mid-30s During Week

Freezing rain, snow, fog and low ceilings covered a large portion of a 3-state area in the upper midwest Tuesday and today, making a shambles of airline schedules and resulting in several traffic accidents.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for some areas, although this part of the state will escape most of the heavy snowfall. At the airport an inch and a half of sticky, wet snow was recorded Tuesday. Accumulations up to three inches in depth are still forecast for extreme northeast Minnesota.

Temperatures thus far this week were: Monday, high 36, low 17 with Tuesday's readings 36 and 27 and the low this morning was 31.

The forecast is for scattered drizzle and snow today with light snow continuing through Thursday. Highs expected today will be in the 30 to 38 bracket with tonight's lows ranging from 25 to 32.

Visually Handicapped Pupils Make Progress

by Marvin Lundin
Times Reporter

If you ever feel the need for inspiration when it seems that the world is treating you with a hard hand, pay a visit to Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls and witness the resource program foe the visually handicapped. I'll wager that after an hour of watching and listening, you can't leave without a change in attitude, a tear in your eye, a lump in your throat and a prayer of thanks in your heart for having what you have and being what you are.

Here in this program, under the careful guidance of Miss Martha Nubson, you will see a display of courage by youngsters that is truly inspirational. Five pupils, three totally blind and two with only partial vision, ranging in age from grades two through seven, are currently enrolled in the program and participate in nearly all phases of normal classroom activity.

"As teachers of the blind, we need to have a genuine belief in the program and a willingness to interpret this program through our own acceptance of blind individuals as people or children who are blind," Miss Nubson said. "We believe a blind child is entitled to

Dr. C. L. Cole Tells Group Dairying Is Growing Industry

Dr. C. L. Cole, head of the department of dairy husbandry of the University of Minnesota institute of agriculture, was the principal speaker at a well attended dinner meeting of Land O'Lakes districts 14 and 17 at the Armory Tuesday night. In his interesting and informative talk he emphasized the favorable factors in the future of agriculture in general and of the dairy industry in particular.

"Agriculture today is the nation's biggest industry" he said. "It represents the nation's biggest industrial investment. Four out of every ten jobs in the country today are related to agriculture."

He stated that in the dairy industry 80,000 farmers are now marketing more dairy products than were marketed by 140,000 farmers not many years ago. "It is a growing, dynamic industry," he declared, "and Land O'Lakes is doing an excellent job for the industry in the field of marketing."

In order to succeed in this industry the producers must do two things, according to Dr. Cole. They must produce the kind of a product that will sell, with emphasis on quality. And they must keep their unit production costs down to where a quality product can be marketed profitable. In Minnesota climate and feed costs are favorable, he said. Volume production is an essential in the cost column both in production and in manufacturing. The creamery with big volume is the creamery that will pay the largest returns to the patrons.

Trig Sundheim, treasurer of Land O'Lakes, reported on the progress of the organization. This year is going to be another year of growth and one of the best in the history of the organization, he said.

Volume is up in all lines, butter, non-fat milk solids, grade A milk, quality egg production, feeds and turkeys. The only disappointing operation is in turkeys where overproduction has resulted in prices lower than production costs. He reported briefly on the contribution Land O'Lakes is making in all of these fields through research, seeking greater efficiency and better marketing. This year's patronage dividends will be approximately $2 million he said.

Fewer Herds, More Milk Is Prospect, Says LOL Official

Carl Leaf, Manager of Milk Division, Spent Tuesday in T. R. Falls

Encouraging progress is being made in manufacturing efficiency in dairy products production in northwestern Minnesota, Carl Leaf, production manager of the dry milk production division of Land O'Lakes Creameries, told a Times reporter Tuesday.

Mr. Leaf was in Thief River Falls attending the joint meeting of creamery operators and board members of Districts 14 and 17, and discussed the overall problems at an afternoon session at the Eagles Hall.

Changes that have been made in the manufacturing procedures in this area are already showing good results, he said, and the benefits will be noticeable in lower manufacturing costs in 1962 with a full year of experience.

Manufacturing costs in this area have been higher than in southern Minnesota and Wisconsin, but producers are becoming more cost conscious. He looked forward to an increase in the production of milk in the area with fewer but better producing herds.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huseth and girls of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grimley and boys of Moorhead were guests at the Arne Markuson home at Goodridge.

Prigge-Kriel Wedding Vows Spoken; Live in TRF

Judy Rae Prigge, daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Prigge of this city, and Ralph H. Kriel, also of this city, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony Saturday, October 28 at Trinity Lutheran church here. Rev. Herbert Larson officiated at the 7:30 p. m. ceremony.

Palms, baskets of autumn colored mums and candelabra graced the altar as the organist, Mrs. Reuben Lockrem, played the traditional nuptial music and accompanied Beverly Uggerud of Grafton, N. D. singing, "O Perfect Love," and the "Lords Prayers."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, James Prigge, was gowned in a floor-length lace and net over taffeta gown. The bouffant skirt featured a net front panel with lace panneling encircling the skirt. The fitted bodice of lace over net with scalloped hand clipped square lace neckline was enhanced with sequins and pearls with long sleeves coming to a point at the wrist. Her fingertip net veil was caught on a cutglass crown. White feathered carnations centered with a lavendar orchid in shower style made up her bridal bouquet.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Bakke with Norma Kriel, niece of the groom, and Mrs. Roy Jablinski as bridesmaids. The matron of honor wore an orchid street length dress with long sleeves and overskirt of net and matching headpiece while the bridesmaids wore identical dresses in gold color. Their miniature crosses on a chain were a gift of the bride. All carried bouquets of cascade style feathered yellow mums with Hawiian wood roses and desert spoons. Miss Debbra Myrum of Chisholm was flower girl for her aunt waring a white floor lenth gown with overskirt of orchid net. She carried a miniature bouquet like the bridesmaids.

Bruce Kriel, nephew of the groom was ringbearer and carried the rings on a white pillow. He was dressed like the gentlemen and wore a yellow carnation boutonniere.

Ray Olson, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man while Virgil Prigge, brother of the bride, and Robert Bakke, brother-in-law of the bride were attendants. All wore white dinner jackets, dark trousers and yellow carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs Prigge wore a turquoise crepe dress while the groom's sister wore an orchid plaid suit. Both had corsages of autumn roses and yellow mums.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors decorated in gold and lavendar. A four tiered wedding cake, decorated in white with gold and lavendar, was topped with a miniature bride and groom and centered the bridal table. It was baked and decorated by Mrs. Johnnie Nelson of Trail.

For travel, the bride wore a blue dress with flared skirt and long sleeves. They are now making their home in the Northwest trailer court in this city.

The bride is a 1959 graduate of Lincoln high school and the groom also attended Lincoln, and has spent the past four years in the U. S. Navy, being discharged in the spring of 1961.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving is a day of thanks,
When most everyone will feast.
Both table sides people will flank,
And might eat as much as beasts.
Most all the people go to church,
To hear the preacher preach
On a pulpit made of wood,
About the Bible he'll teach.
Some people stay home and play a game,
Some people might go out.
Some people might have guests that came,
But I havent' any doubt,
That people will say,
Have a happy Thanksgiving Day.

by Douglas Knutson

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a time for prayer,
Something that goes on everywhere.
We thank the Lord for what we own,
And that He's with us, so we're never alone.

Gerald Droppo

On Thanksgiving Day

The Pilgrims on a wintry day,
Came from England far away.
They had a merry celebration,
For their very hearty ration,
On Thanksgiving Day.
So now on Thanksgiving Day,
Relatives come from far away.
Then we pray, then we eat,
On very delicious turkey meat,
On Thanksgiving Day.

by Steven Harder

Thanksgiving

A turkey stands bright and gay,
Not knowing tomorrow's Thanksgiving Day.
When he finds out, (and I'm sure he will.)
He might even be on our grocery bill.

by Marsha Mattson

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving's when the pilgrims had
A great and wonderful feast,
And as they prayed they also fed
On turkey stuffed and greased.
A great and gracious day was that
When all of us think back.
To see the turkey and the hat
And people dressed in black.
Let us be thankful for Thanksgiving too
And praise the Lord that day,
For work and play and things to do,
Let's give thanks in every way.

by Debra Halvorson

Thanksgiving Day

Thanksgiving Day is here at last.
We can forget the hard, hard past.
We thank him now for food and drink,
And toward the future we must think.

by Katherine Hanson

The First Thanksgiving

On the first Thanksgiving day
Pilgrims were going on their way.
Women with Bibles in their arms
And men to protect them from all harm.
Children were trampling along the ground
Laughing and frolicking all around
All were singing songs of thanks
Cause they had landed on the banks.
They came to church and all sat down,
On the benches on the ground.
And wished the Lord would hear them pray
On that wonderful Thanksgiving Day.

by Barbara Baumeister

THANKSGIVING DAY

On our Thanksgiving Day
We'll kneel down to pray,
And thank the Lord for his great goodness.
He made for us each day.

by Sandy Forsberg

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving day comes in the fall
I like the turkey best of all,
Pumpkin pie is also good.
But I always eat more than I should.

by Patrick Passa

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is a happy day,
When the pilgrims came to stay.
Now this day is filled with glee
Because they came across the sea.
When we think how we love the day,
We should think of it this way;
We never would have had this living,
If we hadn't had Thanksgiving.

by Christine Kjensrud

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving morning is gay for me.
When I wake up I smell and see,
I smell the turkey I smell the pie,
I see the table for my family and I.
Thanksgiving dinner is gay for me,
Because I have a jubilee,
We eat the turkey, we eat the pie,
We eat at the table my family and I.

by Gregory Borchert

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving's in November,
One cold and crispy morn,
When people get together
And have a feast of corn.
It started when the pilgrims came,
So many years ago,
We're thankful for the plenteous game
And fruits they chose to grow.
So they could show their thankfulness,
They used this simple way,
And invited Indians from the wilderness,
To worship and feast all day.

by Joan Rupprecht

A THANKSGIVING PRAYER

We should be thankful for our good,
We shouldn't be in an unhappy mood,
For the Pilgrims came this day,
To America to stay.
Because they came for me and you.

by Lynne Himmerich

THANKSGIVING DAY

The table is piled high,
With turkey and pumpkin pie,
It's all very good
Because Gramma made it the way she should.
We all give thanks on this day,
We all are very merry and gay,
Thanking, praising on our way
Upon Thanksgiving Day.

Seated in the foreground are Miss Sharon Sanders, secretary for the director of elementary education; Mrs. Rodger Sackett, housewife and substitute teacher in the elementary schools; and Mrs. James Cuppett, mother of two totally blind children who are receiving help in the program. Working in the background are Mrs. Lloyd Iverson, former teacher, and Mrs. Phillip Bergland, second grade teacher in this city for the past two years and now a housewife. A common interest in the program and youngsters involved has formed the group which works without financial reward in preparing braille sheets and other items which will be needed by the five students currently enrolled in the program.

Final Action on 1962 City Budget Set for Tuesday

tions had been received before calling a hearing.

Ordered paid were the following for estimates of work completed on city projects: J. A. Shaw Construction company, $1,873; J. B. Hagland & Sons, Inc., curb, gutter and sidewalk work, $6,697; Acme Construction company, waterworks improvement, $2,000; and Sornsin Construction company, storm sewer construction, $41,540.

Two resolutions concerning parking were also passed by the council. One called for establishment of a no parking zone along the west side of Knight avenue between First and Zeh streets during school hours. The second established a two-hour parking zone on Third street between Knight and Duluth avenues.

The council entered into a contract with Motorola for maintenance of police radio equipment in the station, patrol car and chief's personal car. The contract calls for payment of $27.50 per month which includes parts, labor and frequency checks to bring the equipment to factory specifications.

Building permits were awarded to Merlyn L. Adamson, 306 St. Paul av. S., domestic garage, $800; H. O. Tommerdahl, 306 Tindolph av. N., addition to domestic garage, $108; and Prichard Brothers Construction company, addition to Red Owl store, $1,600.

Request for state aid for snow removal at the municipal airport was also officially made. The state has previously participated in the cost of snow removal on a 50-50 basis up to a maximum of $500. A resolution was also passed requesting the Pennington county board of commissioners to place west Sixth street on the county state aid system.

Thief River Falls public schools were granted an abatement of $212 for penalty imposed for tax delinquency. The delinquency occurred when the district increased its payment for previous special assessments and made a lump-sum payment which included the proper amount for taxes. Proper credit had not been given for the tax payment since the entire sum had been applied to the special assessment fund. The district will allow the assessment credit to remain and pay the taxes without penalty.

Miles Jackson was awarded a refund of $50 from the city when an error in repair work resulted in extra material being used in water main replacement at his residence. He contended that the resulting charge was not due to any fault of his and the council concurred.

Roy Lee, council president, welcomed aldermen Donald M. Olson, Roy Jorgenson and Dr. A. E. Jacobson who attended the session to view operations before taking office in January. The recently-elected aldermen will respectively succeed Olaf Dahlen, A. J. Rau and Harry Ranum.

58,193 Cars Cross Baudette Bridge During First Year

Toll Income of $62,698 for Year Less Than Half of Advance Predictions

A brief statistical summary of the first year of operation of the Baudette-Rainy River international bridge was released this week by the Baudette village office, the Baudette Region reports. It shows that the first year of operation did not come up to the statistically projected bridge crossings and revenue estimates made prior to funding the project.

At the end of the first full year of operation village clerk's figures show: that 58,193 vehicles crossed the bridge; that 127,534 passengers rode in the vehicles; that toll income was $62,698.

The first year of operation ended July 31, 1961.

At one time it was estimated that the first year of bridge operation would see vehicle crossing of about 74,000 and persons crossing totaling 240,000. Neither figure came close to realization.

The estimates were based on actual crossings in 1955 projected according to the annual arbitrary ten percent annual rise. To the figure thus obtained was added an estimate of additional traffic which would come just because the bridge was there, and an estimated diversion of traffic from the international bridge at International Falls.

It was also estimated that the income in the first year of operation, based on the toll rates originally used and the number of crossings statistically estimated, would be approximately $129,000.

Operational expense for the bridge in its first year was estimated at about the $20,000 mark, and it probably will turn out to be close to the estimate. But at the first year of operation there was not enough toll income to both operate the bridge and to pay interest on the bonded indebtedness, let alone retire indebtedness.

Public Opinion

Editor, the Times;

My brother Jack suffered a sudden heart attack at the home of friends in Thief River Falls on the eve of November 10th. We called Dr. Pollman, who arrived in five minutes. The Green Ambulance arrived in another four or five minutes. The Northwestern Hospital was alerted by phone, and upon arrival, the patient was rushed into emergency oxygen treatment. From that time on, until he passed away at 10 a. m. Monday, November 13th, he was never left alone for a minute.

Dr. Pollman was at his side for hours at a time, night and day, as was Father Patnode of St. Bernards Church, and Jack's wife and my wife, who arrived by train Sunday morning.

Never have I seen, or even heard of such unfailing devotion to duty—such conscientious and constant attendance. Their friendly sympathy their consoling words, will remain forever in our hearts.

Visitors in town, unkown to the doctors, hospital staff and clergy, we thank God for the privilege of having known them.

Visually Handicapped Pupils Make Progress

educational opportunities equal to those he would receive if he were not blind."

Locally the program was originated following a change in law which states that school districts must provide educational opportunity to all children, not only those who are without handicap and able to proceed without special assistance and materials. In 1960 the program began for the 1960-61 school term with three totally blind children enrolled. One of these was a second grade pupil who had previously attended a year of school in Fargo where the program was available.

Miss Nubson had shown a considerable interest in the students and their work and now has taken several courses in giving assistance to the visually handicapped. She works in close conjunction with classroom teachers and students to coordinate activities and give special help on new assignments.

This year there are a total of five pupils in the program, three from within the local school district. The two additions this year have partial vision but require special materials to enable them to keep pace with other students in their respective classes. Among these are maps, models, braille or large type books and instruction in typewriting, braille reading, use of the braille writer and slate and stylus.

Totally blind students enrolled include Terri and Chris Ann Cuppett, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Cuppett of Thief River Falls and respective third and second grade students, and Phillip Sutherland, second grade student from Roosevelt. Those with partial vision are Richard Kalinoski of Thief River Falls, third grade student, and Charles Fearn, Hallock, seventh grade student at Lincoln high school.

Emphasis in classroom and resource room work is placed on teaching the youngsters to help themselves whenever possible. This is aimed at helping the students to make satisfactory social and educational adjustments, develop personal responsibility and learn independence and consideration. A goal of the program is to build in the student a strong sense of belonging to the normal group.

In visiting the classes to gain material and take pictures for this article, I was able to witness the principles of the program put into action. And it was, to say the least, a memorable and inspirational experience.

Normal classroom routine, studied from the standpoint of a child who has never had the gift of sight, is truly a formidable obstacle. Movement from desk to special class activities must be done by touch. Assignments must be noted by alert listening. Written work must be completed with the use of a braille writer. Reading must be accomplished through the braille touch system. Overall senses, other than sight, must be developed to compensate for the lack of vision.

And the devoted manner in which these pupils strive to achieve their goals is a study in courage. Their reading from braille books was unhesitant and with vivid expression. Use of braille writers was handled with speed and accuracy. Attentiveness to instructions by the classroom teacher and comprehension of the spoken word which was also printed on the blackboard for sighted children was nothing short of amazing.

From the second grade class of Miss Loretta Huber, where the above work was noted, I accompanied Miss Nubson to the resource room. Here I found Terri Cuppett, third grade student, who had been left in the room with braille library books to read. In the time while I was in the second grade classroom, Terri had finished one book and started to read another.

"We're going to show you something new today, Terri," Miss Nubson said. She placed a small loom on the table and drew up a chair to sit beside her anxious pupil. Miss Nubson guided Terri's fingers over the loom, explaining the working parts and how they operated. Then they began to weave, using heavy yarn and a large shuttle. Even in the excitement of a new experience, Terri's memory of part placement was extraordinary.

Gradually hand help was decreased as Terri did more and more of the work herself, guiding the shuttle by touch between the taut strings. Bracing the loom against her body, she pulled the woven material tight and returned the sliding mechanism to alternating positions, ready for the next threading with the shuttle. She ran her fingers over the woven yarn. Her face glowed with a smile of accomplishment. "Soon it will be like a real rug," she said.

Acceptance of the blind pupils by their classmates has been no problem. They help with directions without being told. In fact, sometimes they are almost too helpful. "We try to teach the blind students to help themselves as much as possible," Miss Nubson said. "We feel that when they have accomplished something sucessfully by themselves they are encouraged to try other things. This is how we make progress."

There seems to be no limit to the extent the blind students take part in work and play with other members of the class. They show a willingness to participate, even to the end that they square dance with the others during physical education classes. And a casual observer, watching the square dance action, would not be aware that there are blind students in the group. Finger painting in art class is another popular activity.

Assisted by special state aids, contributions from charitable organizations and tuition from students outside the district, the program is relatively near self supporting, according to Marshall Hankerson, superintendent of Thief River Falls schools. The local district also has two classes for the retarded as part of its training program for the handicapped.

It is the duty of Miss Nubson, as resource teacher, to prepare written material in large type or braille and provide opportunity for the reading of text books, library books and reference materials through the use of large type or braille, recordings on either tape or disc and supervised oral readers. She also teaches use of the braille writer and typewriter, braille reading, handwriting and mobility to the end that these skills become reliable tools for pupil use. She orders supplies, orients students to surroundings and plans workable programs with the classroom teacher.

The student is expected to submit his work in good form and as preferred by the classroom teacher. He should show his appreciation of his privilege of greater freedom within the school by being prompt, entering and leaving the classrooms and moving through the halls in an acceptable manner and by remembering to have materials with him to avoid unnecessary trips between classrooms.

Assistance in preparation of materials for classroom and resource room work is being provided by a group of five women who have offered their services to the program on a voluntary basis. This group, comprised of Miss Sharon Sanders, Mrs. Rodger Sackett, Mrs James Cuppett, Mrs. Lloyd Iverson and Mrs. Phillip Bergland, meets once a week to copy material on braille writers, make books with large type and provide other services to the resource teacher.

Parents of youngsters in the program praise the work being done for their youngsters and are proud of the rapid strides forward which their children are making. They are thankful for the program which is being offered here. Those of us without handicap should be thankful that we have no need to experience what these children find necessary.

PROGRESS in use of braille writers is checked by Miss Loretta Huber in her second grade classroom as Phillip Sutherland and Chris Ann Cuppett write answers during the language class. While other students in the class use pencil and paper to follow instructions printed on the blackboard by Miss Huber, Phillip and Chris Ann write the lesson answers with their braille writers. When this photo was taken, the two blind children above were writing by fives to 100 and by twos to 50. Neither was content to stop at 50 for the latter and both had written by two's to 100 by the time the rest of the class had completed its assignment.

HAPPY HOMEMAKING

by Laura Duerst

PENNINGTON COUNTY HOME AGENT

Gobble, gobble will go the turkey at the dinner table come this Thursday. This day was set aside by the Pilgrims back in 1664 for the purpose to give thanks for the year's blessings. We, as Americans do live very busy lives but have you thought of having Thanksgiving every day for the bounteous blessings we have?

Well, this turkey would like to have a pretty table to be placed on, so maybe the children would like to get a finger in the helping. With a little help, these ideas could easily be made by the smallest child.

SURPRISE APPLE: Slice off the top of a nice red apple but don't throw it away! It will serve as a cover. Scoop the bottom part of the apple and fill with candy and nuts. Then put the top back and you have a clever little favor.

CANDY TURKEY: This turkey doesn't gobble, but you can gobble him because he's made of candy. The tail is a round candy orange slice, backed with a circle of cardboard which is glued to the orange slice. Paste a circle of brown crepe paper ¼-inch larger than cardboard circle which has been put in scallops around edge to back of cardboard circle. Use a large gumdrop for the body and attach it to the tail with a tooth pick stuck in at a slant so a cherry can be propped on end for the head. Put several raisins on two toothpicks and stick into the body for legs. Stand in an Old Fashion chocolate. A bit of gumdrop can be stuck to head for a wattle.

To each and everyone a very Happy Thanksgiving!

WILDLIFE
by JIM KIMBALL

With much regret, we announce the loss of one of our top game research scientists. First, it was Dr. Stanley Harris, chief of pheasant research, then, Don Balser, leader of furbearer and predator research and manager of our Carlos Avery research center. Now we have lost Dr. Lytle Blankenship who has done outstanding work in conducting big game research in Minnesota. They like it here, they would like to continue work here, but they leave for greener pastures and you can't really blame them when the green is of the folding type.

Dr. Blankenship will be missed by many people because his sincerity and endless effort has won the respect and admiration of every manager, warden and administrator that he had contact with.

Before Doc left I had a talk with him and would like to pass on some of his views and the new information he has gathered here in Minnesota.

Every fall some very small fawns are shot, some even still having their spots. This can be caused by an abnormality but usually, it is the result of late breeding. Bucks are capable of breeding over a long period of time, but the actual time that a doe will mate lasts only about 24 hours. However, if she is not successfully bred during this period there will be a second mating urge about 28 days later. This even may be followed by a third. Successful matings have occurred as late as February.

Deer movement is also something that interests many hunters. In one project many deer were trapped and given florescent plastic collars of various patterns which could be identified at some distance. Through this study it has been learned that deer may move long distances in summer. I believe the maximum record was 165 miles. We must remember, however, that this is unusual and that about 90 per cent of the deer stay within a five square mile area throughout their lives; and probably one-half on the deer stay within one square mile throughout their lives.

This is not necessarily true where they are greatly disturbed by man's activities.

When deer do move relatively long distances, it is almost always during the summer. Fall and winter movements are relatively short except in cases where they are pressed by heavy hunting pressure.

To date most of the deer having fancy collars around their necks are in the Camp Ripley area. This winter we hope to expand this project in the Mille Lacs Refuge area. There is no way to stop hunters from shooting these marked deer, but we wish they couldn't. It costs quite a bit of money to live-trap a deer and get the collar on him and this deer may be providing some badly needed information for deer management of the future.

Dr. Blankenship said, 'Minnesota is still sitting pretty regarding the deer situation." Of course, there is no question in anyone's mind that even though we have been taking a relatively good harvest of deer there will be starvation when we get a severe winter.

We belive there are 400,000 or, possibly, half a million deer in this state. The annual harvest has been about 20 per cent and Dr. Blankenship believes we could harvest up to 30 per cent or 35 per cent each year. Of course, it is difficult, if not impossible, to achieve just the harvest you want because you are always faced with the problem of taking too many in one area and not enough in another.

Blankenship believes that Minnesota can carry even a larger deer herd than we presently have, but he says it will depend to a large degree on forest management. A major problem in deer management is the mature popple stands which produce practically nothing for deer and, in many cases, little or nothing in the way of forest products. With an ever increasing demand for game, it seems inevitable that we must one day manage the poorer forest lands primarily for wildlife and secondarily for timber products.

Pennington Fifth in Savings Bonds Purchased in 1961

County Residents Have Invested $262,080 Thru October 31st This Year

"October purchases of Savings Bonds in Minnesota totaled $6,096,000, bringing the year to date total to $61,050,000 or 79.7 per cent of the goal for the year," J. M. Roche, volunteer savings bonds chairman for Pennington county, announced today, in asking for increased purchases of savings bonds.

"We are asking all Minnesotans to increase their purchases of Series E and H Savings Bonds during these times of ominous threats to our national security," he said.

"This is a simple way for everyone to help in the enormous task of building up our national defensive strength."

Purchases of savings bonds in Pennington county totaled $31,726, last month, bringing the year to date purchases to $262,086, or 104.3 per cent of the county goal for 1961.

The five counties leading in quota attainment are Roseau, 135.6 pct.; Hubbard, 116.6; Beltrami, 106.5; Murray, 104.6; and Pennington, 104.3.

Hockey Notes

The Rochester Mustangs of the United States Hockey league began play on their 1961-62 schedule this past weekend, meeting the Milwaukee Metros in a two-game series in Milwaukee. The Mustangs swept the series by 6-3 and 8-4 scores.

Of interest to local fans is the fact that four former Prowler hockey Luminaries — Bob Helgeland, Brad (Pud) Teal, Archie Schneider, and Dale Wennberg — were named to the fifteen-man traveling squad. Helgeland and Schneider, defensemen, saw action in the contests against Milwaukee, as did Teal, a forward. Wennberg, who has been playing at a wing during the practice sessions, was out of action during the weekend's play because of a heavy cold.

Judging by the lineup that the Mustangs put on the ice, the Rochester club must be rated as a title favorite in the U. S. league. In goal the Mustangs have the veteran Tom Yurkovich, the former Eveleth and North Dakota star; on defense, along with Helgeland and Schneider, is Bud Frick the former Gopher and Willie Yasinski, a Canadian. The two centers are Bill Reichart, the former All-American at North Dakota, and Dave Frank of International Falls. At the wings the Mustangs have Ken Johannson, Gene Campbell, Mike Castellano, Oscar Mahle, Teal, and Wennberg. The Mustangs as well as the other league members, are permitted to dress but twelve men for the league games, and it must be quite a task for the Rochester coach to name his starters.

Arlan Hjelle and Gus Holmes, who spent some time in Rochester, and were given a tryout by the Mustangs, are back in town. The latest reports are that Arlan and Gus are to enroll at Bemidji State college the next quarter.

Marv Jorde, the former Prowler all-state tournament center and later a three-year letterman at Minnesota, is playing hockey with the Minneapolis Rebels. The Rebels are members of the United States league.

And Daytone Secours, the University of North Dakota student last season who played several games with the local senior hockey Thieves, is playing pro hockey with the Toledo Mercurys of the International league. Secours was ineligible for varsity competition with the Sioux last year having signed a Canadian Junior A hockey contract.

Prowler 'A' and 'B'

Jack Junker and Joe Mrkonich, coaches of the Prowler varsity and 'B' squad basketball, will probably select their rosters from the following group of boys: seniors, Gary Kelly, Mike Aune, Elton Hornseth, Wayne Bjerken, George Handerson, Gary Klungness, and Karl Ekstrand; juniors, Tom Lindberg, Paul Klungness, John Aune, Jim Ellingson, Don Nicholson, Steve Mittelstadt, and Barry Matthew; sophomores, Rick Jensen, Mark Anderson, Bob Wick, Fred Sorenson, Bob Olson, Dave Ellingson, Gary Hagen, Ron Olson, and Allen Christensen; and freshman, Dick Nelson.

A transfer student, Reynold Ulrich, who was a basketball letterman at Buhl last year as a sophomore, will be eligible for competition in a couple of weeks. He will join the Prowler practice sessions this week.

With such boys as Ron Hanson, Don Ulferts, Eddie Lietzow, and Gary Anderson having been graduated, the Prowlers will be lacking in rebounding height off the backboards this season. Coach Junker, in explaining the defensive formations that the Prowlers will use this year, had a lineup on the floor on Monday afternoon that consisted of the following: Wayne Bjerken, Gary Kelly, John Aune, Paul Klungness, and Elton Hornseth. These five boys, along with Tom Lindberg, Mike Aune, and Gary Klungness, are lettermen.

He'll Be a Great One

The North Dakota Sioux hockey team opened their season's play on Friday and Saturday by meeting the Winnipeg Junior Rangers in a two-game series.

Coach Barry Thorndycraft's Sioux won the two games, and playing a stellar role for the Sioux was Don Ross, the former Roseau Rams' star. Ross, who bulks a solid 200-pounds, is playing at a wing for the Sioux and he is proving too difficult to contain. Ross, the possessor of one of hardest shots during his high school days, scored a pair of goals and had an assist in the Sioux victory of Saturday night.

We'll venture the guess that coach John Mariucci and the Gophers will rue the day they let Ross "get away" and enroll at North Dakota.

Bow & Arrow Season on Deer Opens Dec. 2d in South Minnesota

Details of a December bow and arrow season have been announced by Minnesota Game & Fish Director James W. Kimball. The season will extend from December 2 to December 17, both dates inclusive, in that area of the state lying south of Highways 10, 210 and 30 running from Moorhead on the western boundary to Duluth on the eastern boundary.

Deer may be taken within the following state-owned public hunting grounds: Carlos Avery; Dietrich-Langer Mille Lacs; Talcot Lake; Whitewater; Walnut Lake (including Walnut Lake Refuge); Rothsay (including Rothsay Refuge); Pool No.3 (including Pool No. 3 Refuge); Orwell (including Orwell Refuge) and Lac Qui Parle (including Lac Qui Parle Refuge except the Lac Qui Parle Recreation Reserve, Lac Qui Parle Mission Site and the area posted with state "Do Not Trespass" signs).

The state wildlife management wetland areas located in the open zone will all be open during the December bow season.

Deer may also be taken within the following statutory game refuges: Rochester; McGrath; Brooklyn Center West River Road and Monongalia (except Sibley State Park).

St. Croix State Park will be opened to archery deer hunting except for the area posted with state "Restricted Area—No Hunting" signs which is closed to hunting and the carrying of strung bows.

Camp Ripley Military Reservation will be open under such rules and regulations as may be established by the military authorities.

Rice Lake and Upper Mississippi National Wildlife Refuges, except those portions of the refuges which are posted as closed areas, will be open.

The harvest of deer during the December bow and arrow season is usually very light. For example, during the 1960 December bow and arrow season only 113 deer (of which 36 were taken in the Camp Ripley Military Reservation) were taken in the 70 county area which was open.

Game law enforcement authorities remind bow hunters that no person shall take more than one (1) deer either by bow or firearms during any calendar year, which deer may be of any age or sex. No person shall have a firearm in his possession while hunting with a bow, which bow shall have a pull of at least 40 pounds at full draw.

Upon killing a deer with bow and arrow every person shall within 24 hours after, submit the deer to inspection by a game warden, who will affix the proper tag. No person shall hunt or take deer within 500 feet of any building.

Deer may be hunted from sunrise to sunset each day of the 16 day December season.

Minnesota Is Leader in Interstate Work

Minnesota is one of the leading states in the nation in current progress on the federal-aid interstate highway system, according to a report issued by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

Minnesota ranks first in the midwest and third in the nation in engineering underway and right of way acquisition in process, with $132.2 million in state and federal funds obligated or authorized. This advanced status means that Minnesota will be in a better position than most states to place a great number of projects under contract for construction as money is made available, according to the highway department.

Minnesota ranks first in the five state area and 11th in the nation on work in progress on total miles, with work underway on 440.8 miles of the states 898 mile system of Interstate highways, the report shows. This includes construction on 116.4 project miles (miles of both grading and surfacing) and engineering and right of way acquisition underway on 324.4 miles. Work remains to be started on 369.4 miles.

In total cost of Interstate projects underway, which includes construction, engineering and right of way, Minnesota also ranks first in the five state area and 11th in the nation with $207.1 million obligated or authorized.

Minnesota presently has 34.7 miles of Interstate freeways actually open to traffic. In addition 52.2 miles of regular trunk highways, improved to meet present needs, have been incorporated into the Interstate System and will be further improved to full freeway standards.

As of September 30, 11,250 miles of the 41,000 mile system of Interstate and Defense Highways were open to traffic, according to the Bureau report, and construction is underway on another 4,800 miles. Mileage open includes highways adequate for today's traffic needs, but which will ultimately be built to freeway standards considered necessary to meet 1975 traffic requirements.

Yield Right-of-way to Snowplows & Sanders

"Help keep wintertime emergencies at a minimum by staying alert for the flashing blue lights that pinpoint working maintenance crew, the unsung heroes of the winter driving season."

So said Garnet E. Hall, state highway safety director, as he urged motorists today to ease up on the gas pedal and prepare to stop whenever they spot flashing blue lights.

"Winter is here," he said, "and the blue lights of snowplows and sanding trucks will be a common sight as maintenance crews strive to open roads for travel. Without the aid of these crews, traffic would become hopelessly stalled along the 121,000 miles of the state's road system whenever there was a freezing rain or a heavy snowfall.

"Give these crews the right of way, and make certain that you don't cause a traffic accident that will make their job more difficult and very likely bring grief or pain to you and others," Hall said.

"Drive cautiously and slowly when meeting or overtaking these crews. Give youself a wide margin for safe maneuvering when following a snowplow, and never try to pass when the whirling snow spray blocks your vision of the road ahead. Snowplow crews will stop from time to time and let traffic pass," he said.

Hall also said that the jobs of these maintenance crews would be much easier if all motorists would condition their vehicles and their driving for wintertime hazards.

"Too many drivers become stalled in roadside emergencies with run-down batteries, defective windshield wipers and defrosters, poor brakes, smooth tires and no chains. Some can't see; some can't move. Such needless emergencies cause traffic jams and keep maintenance crews from clearing roadways properly."

Christmas Tree Removal Law Cited

State Conservation Dept. Points out Regulations

With Christmas tree harvesting operations now in full swing throughout the state, the Department of Conservation's forestry division pointed out today that certain laws pertaining to the removal and transportation of such trees are in force and must be abided by.

Under the law, no one may cut, remove or transport for decorative purposes or for sale in a natural and untrimmed condition any evergreens or coniferous type trees of any size, or parts of such trees, without the written consent of the owner of the land on which the trees are grown.

The regulation applies to trees on both private and public lands.

Before any person except a common carrier may transport any decorative trees of the kind described on a public highway, he must first obtain a transportation permit from a department of conservation forestry station. No such permit need be obtained by any person transporting not more than six decorative trees for his own use.

However, any person having in his possession decorative trees and any person transporting them on a public highway must have in his possession the written consent referred to above.

The written consent to cut the trees should be on a form furnished by the department of conservation forestry division. The forms are available at area forestry headquarters and ranger stations thruout the state.

The permit must be carried by the person cutting or transporting the trees and be shown upon demand to any officer of the law or officer of the department of conservation. Failure to show the written consent notice when requested to do so will be considered prima facie evidence that no such consent was given.

"Of all our passions and appetites, the love of power is the most imperious and unsociable nature, since the pride of one man requires the submission of the multitude. In the tumult of civil discord the laws of society lose their force, and their place is seldom supplied by those of humanity.

—Edward Gibbon

Peace in Ireland?

After centuries of distrust and violence, France and Germany seem to be getting along wonderfully well in their Common Market fraternity. Some observers are hopeful that Common Market membership will have the same good effect upon relations between the Irish and the English. Both Britain and the Republic of Ireland have applied for admission.

If the two applications are accepted then the "lost six counties" of Northern Ireland and the 26 of Southern Ireland will be united under an economic and partly political roof for the first time since 1921. The relationship between Ireland and England has improved a great deal and exports from Ireland move quite freely into England. The relationship between the North and South Irish however remains bitter, and there is little exchange of goods or services. Southern Irishmen are now barred from seeking work in Northern Ireland.

Membership in the Common Market will remove many of the barriers to trade. Both Northern and Southern Irishmen will meet together in the European Parliament and on the various commissions that will become necessary to carry out the purposes of that organization. As one observer puts it: "Political re-unification of the 'auld sod' under the Common Market umbrella, would be a happy outcome of a chequered story."

Ike Calls on Harry

Our thanks to the good people of Kansas City for bringing together two of our ex-presidents who have not been on friendly terms with each other, Ike Eisenhower and Harry Truman. Both had been invited to speak at ceremonies rededicating a World War I memorial, but on different days. However, on his arrival to Kansas City, Eisenhauer paid an unexpected visit to the Truman Library at nearby Independence, and the two men met and shook hands and chatted.

In his prepared address that day Eisenhower said:

> "Governments can speak to governments and the results—or lack of results—are dramatized in the headlines of our newspapers, on our radios and Tvs. But more often than not drama is the only product. Policies don't change; relations don't improve noticeably—
> "But if the peoples, represented by these governments, are mutually convinced of each other's good will, honesty of intentions and decency of purpose, governments will begin to heed plainly the voices of their own millions, and even the most arrogant will have to listen."

If Ike and Harry can reconcile their differences, the result of political charges and counter charges, then maybe there is hope for an ultimate triumph of peace and good will among all mankind.

Private Power Doomed

Assistant Interior Secretary Kenneth Holum has announced that the partnership policy between public and private power organizations has ended. He told delegates to a Western regional meeting of cooperative associations that the policy in effect during the Eisenhower administration "ceased to exist as a national policy on January 20 of this year."

That is an unfortunate thing and certainly not in the best interests of an efficient, low cost system of power generation and distribution. Perhaps, as we move in the direction of a welfare state, it is inevitable.

Private power companies cannot survive in competition with tax-free public power. The only hope for private power would be a uniform tax structure that would require public and cooperative operations to contribute equally with private companies toward the cost of government.

Rural electrification has a great deal of merit and deserved the special consideration it received in the early stages of its development. There is danger now however, that it will become the political plaything of a few Kenneth Holums, who gradually will gain control of all of the nation's electric power resources.

That will not be in the best interests of our national economy.

How Long Will We Lead?

During the decade that started with 1950, Japan, a small country in area but large in population, was the leading foreign market for our farm products. The average annual value of U. S. farm products exported to Japan was $391 million. Great Britain, second largest market for our farm products, averaged $383 million during that ten-year period.

Farm products imported by Japan consist mainly of sugar, wheat and soybeans among the foodstuffs, and cotton, wool, rubber, tallow and hides and skins for industrial purposes. Our export of farm products to Japan this year is expected to reach an all-time high of $560 million, according to Agriculture department estimates.

Japan has made tremendous progress industrially since the war, and must import a large portion of the raw materials that are converted to finished products and sold on world markets. What Japan has done, other Oriental nations will eventually be able to do.

Our country now is the leading industrial nation of the world. How long we will remain in that No. 1 position is anybody's guess. Several competitors are now making faster progress than we and unless we cut out some of our foolishness and get back to work again we will find other industrial nations surpassing us in more and more production fields.

The Queen's Duty

Britain's Queen Elizabeth has strengthened the position of the free world by her demonstration of courage in visiting Ghana. Her ministers had expressed their concern for her safety in exposing herself publicly in this West African country, because of the state of unrest that prevails there and the pro-Communist leanings of its government. She decided that the acceptance of the invitation was a duty, and the wisdom of her decision to entrust her safety to her subjects is now apparent.

While assassination, as a way of expressing dissatisfaction with political leaders, is less common now than it was during some periods in the past, there are many demented individuals whose conduct is unpredictable and for whom any person of high rank may be looked upon as the cause of their own misfortunes. Queen Elizabeth's great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, survived eight attempts or demonstrations against her life, but they did not deter her from making public appearances. From the Winnipeg Tribune we get the following interesting story on how the British of that period punished the would-be assassins:

"One of the most remarkable assassination attempts against Queen Victoria took place in 1842. In that era when a sheep-stealer could be hanged, John Francis, "an ill-looking, swarthy rascal," according to the Queen's husband, was permitted two chances of shooting his queen.

"He took his first shot as the Queen and Prince Albert were driving through Green Park in June. Francis stepped from behind a bush, hurried his shot and missed. He escaped.

"The next day, the Queen and Prince Albert again drove through Green Park as part of a ruse to see whether the "swarthy rascal" would try again. He did. Again he missed, but this time he was caught. His mild sentence was transportation and he was banished from the country for life.

"Of the six others who threatened the life of the Queen, the most severe sentence given was seven years transportation; two were found insane; one got 18 months, and another, 20 strokes of the birch.

"Surely there was nothing in the sentences to deter unsuccessful assassins. The Queen's opinion was that they were "poor fellows" and in every case it was one of her loyal subjects who grabbed the rascal."

We can understand why the British people respect their royalty.

Any request for across-the-board authority to reduce tariffs is going to raise an uproar in the next Congress. Protectionist sentiment is growing and the Administration will have a bloody battle on its hands. But the President has powerful arguments and influential persons on his side. The idea of a North Atlantic trading area . . . is bold and novel.—San Francisco Chronicle.

House, Senate Units Disagree on Districts

Committees Met at Capital Saturday to Discuss Problem

Minnesota legislators Saturday in St. Paul rejected a proposal to alter the boundaries of the third and fifth congressional districts.

Further action by redistricting commitees of the state senate and house of representatives was postponed until next Saturday.

Between now and then, a revised six-member subcommittee of the two houses will continue working on a solution it can sell to both committees.

Anoka county was the unsalable part of the plan drawn up last week by the original four-member subcommittee.

Anoka county, now part of the third district, would have been divided between the fourth and eighth districts under the subcommittee proposal.

But senators and representatives from both the fourth and eighth objected for two main reasons:

The enlarged fourth would have gained disproportionately in population, making it considerably larger than either the third or fifth.

The northern part of Anoka county, which would have been added to the eighth, would have had few common interests with the rest of the vast district, stretching all the way to Canada.

It was the feeling of both committees that Anoka county should remain in the third.

House and senate members of the joint subcommittee will report to their respective 10-member committees when they reconvene in the capitol at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Senate and house redistricting committees held their second separate meetings Saturday, then got together briefly for a joint meeting.

All eight congressional seats will have to be filled at large in 1962 if Gov. Andersen doesn't call a special session to realign the present nine districts into eight.

Whether he calls a special session he insists, depends on whether substantial agreement first can be reached by the two redistricting committees.

Tax Settlement of $306,351 Set to Go

Rodekuhr, Pennington county auditor. Checks for the distribution of taxes paid since the June settlement will be mailed this week.

Towns, villages and the city of Thief River Falls will receive a total of $70,247 with Thief River Falls being awarded the bulk of the distribution with $54,180.

Schools in the county will receive $209,378 in tax distribution with the major school district recipients including Thief River Falls, $183,166; Goodridge, $13,018; and St. Hilaire, $4,820.

Operation Airlift to Seek No. Central 1961 Boardings Near 1,800

Operation Airlift, a group comprised of local businessmen interested in having the North Central Airlines service remain in Thief River Falls, is assisting in keeping the required number of boardings necessary to hold the service at the local airport. Plans Completed for Santa Claus Days Dec. 9 and 16

Saint Nick Will Visit Little Friends Here Two Succeeding Saturdays

Preparations are now being made by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce for Santa Claus Days which will be held in this city on December 9 and 16, according to Roland K. Volunteers will begin work at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, December 6, filling 2,000 sacks of candy to take care of the youngsters expected to throng to the auditorium on the succeeding Saturdays. "We can use as many volunteers as care to come and help," Larson said.

Santa Claus will be assisted by helpers from the Chamber of Commerce ranks on each day of his appearance to distribute the sacks of candy and popcorn balls to excited youngsters. Following the same procedure as last year, arrangements will be made so that youngsters and parents with smaller children will not be forced to stand in line outside the building. Seating space capable of handling most of the anticipated crowd will be provided inside the auditorium.

Wheat and Barley ASC Fall Signups Deadline Is Near

P. W. Culkins, Office Manager, States Dec. 1 Is Final Date to Sign

Patrick W. Culkins, manager of the Pennington county ASC office, said today that December 1 is the final date that applications for participation in the 1962 wheat stabilization and barley programs can be accepted at the county ASCS office during the fall sign-up period.

He added that both of these programs would be made available to producers during the early months of 1962, and that the opening and closing dates would be determined by the state ASCS committee.

He stated further that it was the desire of the county committee and the county office manager that an early opening date be established for the spring sign-up period, because in their opinion an early opening date would be instrumental in a more orderly flow of traffic through the county office. Opening and closing dates for the spring sign-up period will be announced when determined.

Duane Mortenson, 26, Missing Three Years, Found N. E. of Duluth,

Duane Mortenson, 26, step-son of Mrs. Ruby Mortenson of Thief River Falls, has been located after being missing for nearly three years. Reports state that he was found by deer hunters near Orr, northeast of Duluth, where he had been living the life of a hermit in the timber country.

Duane was reported missing in 1956 but returned to the home of his father, Elmer Mortenson, in East Grand Forks in 1958. The elder Mortenson had moved to East Grand Forks about four years ago. At that time Duane was taken off the missing persons list in the Pennington county sheriff's office and the file was closed.

In 1958, according to his stepmother, he was persuaded by his father to take a physical examination for the armed forces. He disappeared from the Fargo induction station, and his whereabouts was unknown until he was found Friday, November 17. Hunters who discovered him said he was "scavenging in a meadow and drinking from puddles".

He was taken to Duluth and held in the St. Louis county jail on a charge of vagrancy until his identity could be determined. At first report his father was to leave East Grand Forks in time to be reunited with his son at Duluth for the Thanksgiving holiday. He later refused, telling authorities, "there's nothing I can do for him."

Mrs. Mortenson told the Times that she was not informed of her step-son's discovery until she heard a news broadcast Tuesday evening.

When put in custody of jail guards, Mortenson was reported as having matted, shoulder-length hair and three inches of beard. He reportedly lived on grass, berries, ditch water and scraps from logging camp meals. He had $50 in his pocket and said he had worked for a logger until two years ago. Authorities who had known of his presence near Orr, 110 miles northeast of Duluth, decided to take him to jail for fear he wouldn't survive the winter.

In addition to his step-mother, Mortenson has two half-sisters, Elaine and Yvonne in Thief River Falls.

Future of County Fair to Be Topic at Meeting Tonight

Present Society May Be Dissolved and Fair Put in Hands of New Group

Possibilities for dissolution of the Pennington County Agricultural society and formation of a new group to assume operation of the Pennington county fair will be discussed at an open meeting to be held tonight at the courtroom of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Any person interested in the future of the fair will have an opportunity to be heard and all interested persons are encouraged to attend. Special invitations have been sent to members of township boards, county commissioners, city councell, members of the 4-H leader's council, boards of local curling and baseball associations, Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees, school board and area farm organizations.

Albert Koop, association president, will preside at the meeting with the explanation of how dissolution can be effected to be explained by Robert Wurst, local attorney who has been retained by the society. Discussion will also be held on problems to be met in formation of a new organization to operate the fair.

Plan to Form City 4-H Club Tonight

Meeting Is Set for 7:30 in Court House Basement

Since a number of city children have indicated a desire to form a 4-H club within the city, another attempt at organizing a city 4-H club will be made at a meeting called for tonight at 7:30 p. m. in the basement meeting room of the court house.

Attendance at a previously called meeting was too small to justify club organization, but later interest indicates a club should be formed, according to Paul Stelmaschuk, Pennington county agricultural agent, and Miss Laura Duerst, home agent.

If a sufficient number of youngsters between the ages of eight and 21 years can be obtained, a club will be organized and officers elected tonight. Posts to be filled include those of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and reporter. Adult leaders will also be selected at the meeting.

The Library Corner

by Eleanor Olson

Among the recent books at the library is Irving Stone's "The Agony and the Ectasy," a fictional biography of Michelangelo. It traces the great artist's career from his promising boyhood apprenticeships to painter Ghirlandajo and sculptor Bertoldo through the years of his flowering genius. Michelangelo is ranged in rivalry with Leonardo, whom Stone has respect for the younger man's ability. Other less important characters insist that Michelangelo runs a very poor second.

Stone uses the art-hating religious firebrand Savonarola to give historical flavor to the novel. Thus he proves his point that, while rabble-rousers come and go, great art endures. Mr. Stone has coupled his historical detail with a lively style which makes it impossible to separate facts from the fabric of his imagination. The end result for the reader is a reasonably fast paced piece of entertaining reading.

"One Man and His Dog" by Anthony Richardson is one of the great true dog stories to come out of World War II. It is the story of Antis, a starving Alsatian puppy found by Czechoslovakian airman Jan Bozdech, whose plane had been shot down near the Siegfried line. Dog and pilot adopt one another and work their way through German lines to their own base. Later when France is overrun they make their way to England and the R. A. F. Through the fighting and the peace Jan defies courtmartial, death and government regulations to keep the dog with him. After the Armistice Jan returns to Czechoslovakia, but finds the freedom he fought for under three flags is non-existent there. Once again Jan and the faithful Antis become exiles. Anthony Richardson has written other books, but this tribute to the loyalty, courage and devotion of a man and his dog should be the clincher to his enduring fame.

Mrs. Jaycees Taking Gifts to Finance War on Cystic Fibrosis

In cooperation with the state organization of Mrs. Jaycees, the Thief River Falls Mrs. Jaycees chapter this week is undertaking a fund campaign aimed toward support of the research and training center for Cystic Fibrosis recently started at the University of Minnesota. Research will be carried out at the center in an attempt to find the most effective ways of controlling the disease.

"Cystic fibrosis is a dread disease which affects the lungs and digestion of children," explained Mrs. Marvin Lundin, local project chairman for the Mrs. Jaycees chapter. "The disease strikes about one child in every 600 born and about half of these unfortunate youngsters die before they are five years old. It is transmitted through genes the child inherits from both parents without either parent having the disease.

"Until a few years ago, almost all children who had cystic fibrosis died in infancy. Today over twice as many reach adolescence as did a few years ago. New drugs are giving relief to many afflicted children while doctors, nurses, medical schools, educators and parents by the tens of thousands are receiving facts about the disease to help identify, treat and save children who are afflicted with it."

According to the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation which established the Minnesota research center with a $10,000 grant, cystic fibrosis is a chronic children's disease of the glands of external secretion. Its serious complications involve the lungs, digestive system and sweat glands. Symptoms include chronic coughing, difficult breathing, repeated respiratory infection, large appetite but small weight gain, bulky diarrhea and a tendency to tire easily.

The disease produces a thick and sticky abnormal secretion in the lungs, clogging the air passages and causing repeated respiratory infection, often fatally. The same abnormal secretion is produced in the pancreas, blocking the flow of vital digestive juices to the small intestine and upsetting digestion and assimilation of food. The child's sweat contains an abnormally high concentration of salt, the excessive loss of which causes him to tire easily and makes him susceptible to heat prostration.

Through this week, voluntary contribution canisters will be left in about 100 Thief River Falls business places, Mrs. Lundin said. Help of the Thief River Falls public in assisting to control the disease through support of the research and training center will be appreciated by the local Mrs. Jaycees chapter.

IT IS HEREBY RESOLVED; that all lands which pursuant to Chapter 386, Laws of 1935, as amended, have been forfeited to the State of Minnesota for non-payment of taxes, under any existing laws declaring the forfeiture of lands to the State for non-payment of taxes, shall be offered for sale to the highest bidders at the office of the County Auditor in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, commencing at 10:00 o'clock A.M., Friday, December 15, 1961, a list of said lands being on file in the Office of the County Auditor of said County.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Olson and declared carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Almquist that the Board convene at 9:00 A.M., Nov. 14, 1961 to appraise lands forfeited to the State for non-payment of taxes.

Carried.

Moved by Hanson seconded by Olson that the Auditor be instructed and authorized to reduce the 1961 tax levy for the Courthouse Sinking Fund by the amount of $10,000.00, the amount that is anticipated the City of Thief River Falls will pay toward the Fund from the earnings of the Municipal store.

Carried.

The Auditor presented the figure of $17,200.00 as the amount needed for the County School Tax Fund for the 1961 tax year payable in 1962 and to be spread on the tax records against property in schools that do not have a high school. The Board unanimously approved the proposed levy and authorized the extension on the tax records.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Almquist that additional funds be set aside for Clerk Hire for the office of the County Treasurer for the year 1961 in the amount of $210.00, said amount being necessary as a result of the new legislation requirement of mailing real estate statements, to all landowners.

Mercury Drops to —5 This Morning

Lowest of Season to Date; 5 Inches Snow Thursday

Ol' Man Winter really got down to business in northwest Minnesota last night to stir up a batch of bone-chilling cold temperatures. The results showed up in below-zero temperature readings, the first of the winter so far in this locality.

Temperatures for the entire period since Wednesday were also well down the scale as compared with readings earlier this month. The rundown is as follows: Wednesday, high 35, low 27; Thursday, 32 and 16; Friday, 32 and 1 above; Saturday, 33 and 12, and Sunday, 27 and 7. The low temperature this morning was -5.

A total of 5.2 inches of new snow arrived Thursday, bringing the month's total to 7 inches to date.

The forecast is short and to the point—partly cloudy today and tonight, somewhat warmer with highs 18-26 and lows tonight 8-18.

OKLEE PARENT-TEACHER ASSN. TO MEET TUESDAY

Obert Lallo, safety officer with the Minnesota Highway Patrol, will talk and show a film on highway safety.

Experimental Plane Enthusiasts Invited to Meeting Thursday

An interesting and informative evening is offered aviation enthusiasts in eastern North Dakota and northwest Minnesota Thursday, November 30, at the Thief River Falls municipal airport where an organization meeting of an area chapter of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA) will be held.

Meeting time is at 8 p. m. in the airport administration building. Everyone, whether active or interested in flying or interested in home-built planes, is invited. EAA is primarily interested in aviation education, the development of private aviation and are safety rather than persuading more people to build airplanes in their backyards, according to EAA officials.

Largely through EAA efforts the government has relaxed restrictions so that individuals are now permitted to build and fly their own planes, but not for hire, with certain restrictions. But the large number of tried and proven home-built airplanes in the skies nowadays, well over 1000, is but one of the benefits derived from EAA by some few of its membership. Perhaps the chief benefits of EAA as far as all aviation is concerned is the revived interest in aviation among the youth of today with EAA deserving a lion's share of the credit.

Thursday's meeting will feature color slides and movies of the 1959 and 1960 EAA International Fly-ins at Rockford, Ill. and possibly some of this year's event, which drew an estimated 100,000 persons to the Greater Rockford airport Aug. 3-6. The Fly-ins and the airplanes shown will be described by V. M. Draper and Kenneth Halliday, of Thief River Falls and Fosston, respectively.

All pilots, interested high school students, scouts and CAP or former CAP members are cordially invited to attend, along with anyone else who has an interest in aviation at the "grass roots" level.

It's Quite a Game

Received a long and interesting letter from Dale Klungness, a former Prowler athlete who is now teaching junior high math to children of Army and Air Force personnel in West Berlin, and he relates the interesting experiences he has had.

Dale, early in September, had an opportunity to tour East Berlin (that area is now "out of bounds") and he remarks that the area and the people were very drab. He says that the "saddest part of the division of Berlin was in giving the Russians the very heart of the city. All of the large stores, and nearly all of the public buildings are located in East Berlin. The Brandenburg Gate marked the beginning or gateway to the city of Berlin, and now that is the border into East Berlin. Friedrichstrasse, the controversial street where "Checkpoint Charley" is located, was once the newspaper center of Berlin, and is now almost empty of anything in the newspaper and shopping line."

Last Sunday, (November 12) Dale witnessed his first soccer football game, and an important tilt it was as it pitted the teams from Sweden and Switzerland in a playoff game to determine a berth in the world tournament to be held in Chile this year.

The game was played in the 100,000-seat Olympic stadium in West Berlin, and Sweden was rated the favorite by the experts. The German fans, though, were very partial to the Swiss team as in 958 the Swedes had upset the Germans in a world's tournament game. The Swiss, to the enjoyment of the German fans, defeated the Swedes, 2 to 1.

Says Dale, commenting on the game, "This game was really wicked and dangerous, with many of the players being shaken up. There were no serious injuries, but many of the players would lie on the field for three or four minutes trying to get up as the game progressed around them." Soccer is a no-substitute game, and if a player is badly hurt and forced to leave the game, well, his team is forced to play short-handed.

Dale adds that "It is amazing the control the players have of the ball using feet, head, chest, and everything else except their hands. The goalkeepers are excellent kickers, with most of them being able to kick a soccer ball fifty yards or more in the air. At least both of these men could do this. They are the real crowd-pleasers, and will do many stunts that may seem out of place to make the save look good."

I have seen a couple of soccer matches in Winnipeg's Alexander Park, but these matches, exhibitions both, were not of the world's tournament caliber. Can understand though, the reason why the game has such a world-wide appeal. It is crammed with action. In fact there are a number of the state's high schools that have introduced soccer, mostly on an intramural basis.

Game and Fish

It appears to be the consensus of the hunters in this area, based on reports that have been received, that the hunting season which, except for rabbits and squirrels, was brought to a close at sun-down yesterday, was rated as fair to good.

While the duck-hunting in this vicinity was not up to par, with fewer ducks being available, the waterfowl season wasn't too bad. The early-season goose hunting was the best here in a number of years.

Upland game-birds, sharptails and ruffed grouse, continue at a low level. There were a few concentrations of partridges in the Norris Camp and Beltrami Forest areas, but the ridges west of town contained but few birds. The supply of partridges surely did not warrant a four-a-day and eight in possession limit.

I had a long conversation with Helmer (Great Northern Ole) Ness the other day, and he gave me a complete briefing on his hunting season. He had fair hunting on pheasants around Pelican Rapids and Fertile. Ole remarked that he did not purchase a duck stamp this year and so did not do any duck hunting. With the limit at two ducks a day, Ole explained that he was afraid of breaking the law as "I often get three or four ducks with every shot".

Ole's party of three, he and Al Berge and Art Rambeck, filled their deer tags early this season. They hunted the area south of Norris Camp. On the way home, Ole stopped for a visit, as he does every year, at the Skomedal-Rupprecht camp near Rapid river. He's becoming somewhat suspicious of these boys, though, for he remarked that he had barely got into the camp before he was hustled into a "smear" game with Helmer Skomedal and Lloyd Hogenson, and before he was adjusted comfortably in his chair he, Ole, had lost a couple of bucks. "They must have framed up on me," said Ole, "for I can beat those fellows playing blindfolded."

National President of Farm Bureau Hits Secy. Freeman's Plans

Some 800 Minnesota Farm Bureau members in attendance at the 43rd annual meeting of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation in the Hotel Leamington in Minneapolis heard their national president make a major blast at the current farm program at their banquet Tuesday night.

American Farm Bureau president Charles B. Shuman called the administration's huge feed grain program a "Two Surplus Plan" that he said had given the nation's taxpayers "one enormous due bill".

Mr. Shuman charged that with President Kennedy now taking steps to recover some of a predicted seven billion dollar budget deficit, his own farm program is handing him his principal setback.

"Instead of just costly surplus in corn," Mr. Shuman charged, "we now have a brand new surplus in soybeans...we have in effect bargained one surplus for two."

Mr. Shuman said he looked on the new surplus in soybeans as "more tragedy than travesty." He said that soybeans had long been high among our soundest commodities—had thrived and prospered in trading on the competitive market, without a nickel's cost to taxpayers.

Last year farmers grew 558 million bushels of soybeans, and still couldn't supply all the demand. But this year, as a lure for farmers to divert acreage usually planted to feed grains, the government raised support prices on soybeans to $2.30 a bushel. Mr. Shuman said that farmers not only diverted enough acreage to produce a record soybean crop, but poured some fertilizer on their remaining corn crop—for record per acre yields in corn as well.

"The result is a surplus in BOTH corn and soybeans," Mr. Shuman charged. "Now we have a Two Surplus Plan which has not helped farmers, has not helped prices, and has again clobbered the taxpayer."

Mr. Shuman warned that the extension of government power over farmers is not confined to grain and soybean producers. He noted that, for the first time in our history, federal controls on poultry are a real possibility. He took sharp issue with U. S. Department of Agriculture recommendations for a nationwide marketing order for turkeys now in surplus supply. Such a marketing order would set quotas on turkey production to ostensibly drive prices up.

The result of a turkey marketing order program would be reduced income to producers and increased costs that always accompany each new government scheme to regulate and control. Bird watching is a pleasant hobby but under the proposed marketing order, turkey watching would be added to the list of salaried government jobs.

Paying tribute to Minnesota as a major turkey-producing state, he also paid tribute to the Minnesota Turkey Federation which has led an industry-wide campaign among producers to promote and sell more turkeys on the free market, rather than seek government devices to control the market.

New Duluth Bridge Opens December 2

Toll-free Structure Cost over $15,000,000

For the first time in more than 60 years, motorists driving between downtown Duluth and Superior will be able to cross St. Louis bay without paying a toll with the opening bridge at 11:00 a.m. Saturday morning, December 2nd.

High-ranking national, state and local officials will participate in the ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremonies at the mid-point of the bridge and at a luncheon at Superior State college to follow, at which Rex Whitton, federal highway administrator, will be the chief speaker.

Soaring 200 feet above the bay to permit ocean-going ships to pass under it, the new bridge is a monument to cooperation on the local, state and national levels, with the citizens of Duluth and Superior providing the need and impetus, the states of Wisconsin and Minnesota the engineering and construction, and the federal government paying 90 per cent of the cost, because the bridge is included in the 41,000-mile system of Interstate and Defense highways.

Also invited to participate in the dedication ceremonies and at the luncheon are Luther M. Hodges, Secretary of Commerce, Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, Governor Elmer L. Andersen of Minnesota, Governor Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, U. S. Senators Alexander Wiley and William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Hubert H. Humphrey and Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, and Congressman John A. Blatnik of Minnesota and Alvin O'Konski of Wisconsin.

'Red Ink' Flows in Washington, D. C., Tax Group Warns

State Taxpayers Assn. Cites Impending 1962 Deficit of $6.9 Billion

Closer public attention to federal fiscal policies was urged by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association this week in a news release calling attention to recent official estimates of higher spending and deficits.

"Federal government spending has skyrocketed 10 percent since the original balanced-budget estimate of last January," Norman A. Borgen, Executive Secretary of the Association, said. "The most recent official budget review figure puts this fiscal year's total at $89 billion.

"Translating this staggering increase of nearly $9 billion into figures we all can understand, it means that the tax and debt load of each man, woman and child in Minnesota has been increased by more than $38 on the average over the January figure.

"Because the federal government just doesn't have in its tax treasury the amount of money it is spending, it is resorting to deficit financing, and the red ink is flowing freely once again on the banks of the Potomac.

"In January they estimated a $1.5 billion surplus. The surplus became a $2.8 billion deficit by March and has climbed steadily ever since, with the deficit for the year now estimated at $6.9 billion.

"Analysis of the spending increases shows that no more than half is due to defense and related costs.

"Of the presently estimated $89 billion total of federal spending this fiscal year, Minnesotans must provide through taxation — either now or in the future — more than one billion 432 million dollars.

"In today's troubled world, when the need for national strength in both the military and financial sense is paramount if we are to survive, it is not unreasonable for the people to insist that our government meet the essential needs but tighten its belt on things that are only 'desirable.' "

County Agent Has Farmer Tax Guide

Farm Account Books Also Available December 11

Copies of the Farmer's Tax Guide 1962 edition, issued by the Internal Revenue Service of the U. S. Treasury Department, are now available at the Pennington county extension office, according to Paul Stelmaschuk, county agent. Minnesota farm account books will also be available in the office after December 11, Stelmaschuk said.

The tax guide explains most of the income tax rules which apply to farmers and those who have tax questions about farming. The booklet is written in plain language and contains numerous examples to show how the rules work in actual situations. A 1962 tax calendar tells farmers when to pay various taxes, file tax returns and do other things required by law.

Chapter headings indicate material on filing requirements and return forms, accounting periods and methods, importance of good records, income to be reported, farm business expenses, other deductions and personal exemptions, completing your return, farm inventories, depreciation and depletion, capital gains and losses, determining basis for gain or loss, casualty losses and thefts, trades, condemnations and diseased livestock, soil and water conservation and self-employment social security tax.

Drastic Action Justified

State highway commissioner James C. Marshall has instructed highway patrolmen to enforce all traffic rules to the letter from now until the first of the year and arrest all violators. There will be no warnings, he declared.

The Commissioner pointed out that in the past five years an average of 129 persons were killed in traffic accidents during November and December, the worst two months of the year, and he is requesting the cooperation of all law enforcement agencies "to mount the strongest possible attack on drivers who violate traffic laws."

He has ordered the use of partially-marked patrol cars, electric timing devices, radar and spotter planes, and "officers other than traffic police will be mobilized for additional surveillance." He stated:

> "This may sound like a program directed against the people. But let us consider that last year in Minnesota over 120,000 drivers were involved in more than 68,000 accidents, nearly all of which resulted from violation of traffic law.
> "In terms of our 1½ million licensed drivers, this may be a smaller number. But it is the number against whom we are waging our desperate fight."

Comissioner Marshall is to be commended for declaring all-out war on carelessness thru the dangerous period ahead of us. The drastic action is justified as an experiment to determine if an all-out effort can produce good results. The highway patrol should have the cooperation of all good citizens as well as all local police officers.

Time Now to Talk

The report of the Bureau of Field Studies and Surveys of the University of Minnesota, on the needs of our school district, recommended a long term construction program on which there no doubt will be many conflicting views. That there is a problem must be admitted. Present facilities are not adequate by present classroom-size standards and groupings. Four elementary classes are operated in rented quarters, and space is also rented for several vocational school courses.

The report also recommends the establishment of a junior college. Several statewide study groups have recognized Thief River Falls as the logical location for a junior college in this area. This recommendation deserves immediate consideration as one question that should be disposed of before we proceed with any building program. There should be no delay in starting a discussion on all aspects of this question.

As the report points out, the establishment of a junior college requires the approval of the state board of Education. With that approval the question would then be submitted to the voters of the district who must favor the proposal by a two-thirds majority of those voting.

As we understand it, a junior college would not be a spearate school but would be integrated into the high school system, offering college courses in a limited number of preparatory subjects. The college math teacher probably would also teach high school math for instance. The report indicated too that a junior college would supplement nicely the vocational school, and recommended that eventually the junior college and the vocational school should be located in one building.

And how much is all of this overall program going to cost? That is what the taxpayers will want to know, and properly so. Their approach probably will be a little more cautious this time and our guess is that the proposals are going to be scrutinized very carefully and critically before the decisions are made.

Fortunately there is no need for speedy action. If we can agree upon a program within a year we will be making good progress. During the next three years the debt service costs of the school district will be at their peak, as far as present obligations are concerned. In 1965 the debt service cost drops substantially and any new obligation should be amortized over a period of years in a payment pattern that would not increase the presena cost of debt service.

And another good reason for the slow approach is the possibility of federal aid for school construction. We are opposed to federal aid but the organized educators are a terrific pressure group and federal aid must be looked upon as a possibility. Federal aid for school construction is not likely to be made available for construction that is already under way. We have plenty of time to talk.

First consideration should be given to the questions of a junior college.

We May Survive Again

The Wall Street Journal encourages the hope that humanity will somehow survive. It bases this conclusion largely on the fact that humanity has survived, and that at various stages of history the prospects for survival may have seemed more hopeless than the present threat of nuclear war. We get some comfort from these observations:

"The truth is that the future is all conjecture. It is a wildly irrational conjecture when uninformed citizens predict total devastation for America and assert that survival is either impossible or intolerable. This is defeatism—essentially the same defeatism which leads so many in the world to demand that we surrender now to the slavery of Communism rather than run even the risk of nuclear war.

"Since common sense tells us anything is possible, a nuclear war is not inevitable in any case. If it does come no one can prophesy its effects. It could introduce another dark age lasting centuries or millenia; equally, it could be an event from which we could recover and from which we should try to recover in our individual and national interest.

"What is absolutely certain is that this remarkably resilient creature has in fact survived — some experts now think for nearly two million years—through all manner of devastions of his own and nature's contriving. Against that incredible span even centuries and millenia count for little. And always the survival instinct has won; men have rebuilt, women have borne children, and the community has sought to organize even amid the death and desolation of pestilence, flood and war.

"None of us can prejudge man's prospects: But only if we see man in perspective can we hope to act like mature men."

Interesting Opinions

"The prosperity of Canada cannot be achieved by raising artificial barriers to trade. The fundamental problems of the Canadian economy must be resolved here at home by the closest co-operation between government, management and labor.

"Means must be found to reduce the high cost of Canadian production—not to insulate this high cost by raising the price of the competing imported articles."

Canadian Viewpoint

(Kitchener—Waterloo Record)

In recent months there has been growing evidence that Canadian criticism of various aspects of U.S. policy, and certain unattractive facets of life below the border, has lodged itself in U.S. consciousness.

Articles have appeared in popular magazines probing the reasons for Canadian dissatisfaction with the way life is managed, and public policy is conducted, in the United States.

As an antidote, John Holmes, a former high-placed official in Canada's External Affairs Department, has told Americans that the sense of partnership and common purpose between the two countries is greater today than it has ever been.

Though this may seem like an exaggeration, it is possibly close to the truth. Canada today, better informed about U.S. affairs than ever before, is usually willing to acknowledge wise U.S. leadership. The fact that there may be some pretty frequent criticism does not mean Canadians have turned against the United States, but merely that we expect our good neighbors to live up to their own best ideals.

If this is evidence of a hypocritical and pharisaical attitude, at least it pays Americans the tribute of expecting them to be effective exemplars of a living democracy. However, it does put Canadians in the extremely vulnerable position of self-constituted judges of their neighbors' behavior.

Canadians would have a more balanced view if they showed more interest in other aspects of U.S.-Canadian relations.

The only university school devoted to these relations is located at an American university, and the leading authority on the history and development of French Canada is an American. Millions of dollars from U.S. foundations are eagerly welcomed by Canadian health authorities and artists of various kinds.

There is far more evidence in support of Mr. Holmes' analysis than against it. As he indicated, one reason there seems to be more argument is that there is more to argue about, because of the increasing intercourse between the two nations. As this increases, the arguments may increase, but, so olng, as they are based on fact and mutual goodwill, they need arouse no fears.

from

A Visit With General MacArthur

One of the important recent additions to Minnesota industry is the Remington Rand Univac plant in St. Paul. While in New York I met and visited with Mr. Dause L. Bibby, president of Remington Rand; Mr. Harry F. Vickers, president of Sperry Rand, which is now the parent company of Remington Rand; and General Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the board of Sperry Rand. From the standpoint of Minnesota business development all the meetings were encouraging but, as you can readily appreciate, the visit with General MacArthur had special personal interest as well. I shall not soon forget it.

My appointment with the General was at 11:30 a. m. in his apartment in the Waldorf Towers. I was ushered in to his living room at about 11:28. It immediately impressed me with its large size and the large number of chests, trays, swords, screens, textiles, and other relics of a long Far Eastern residence.

At exactly 11:30 the General appeared. Here was a man in his 82nd year, handsome, straight as a stick, walking briskly forward, with his hand outstretched, eyes bright; and alert smile looking more 62 than 82.

He was most cordial and talked easily and rapidly. He complimented the University football team on its fine record. "You know," he said, "if they played Missouri again they'd beat them by five touchdowns." I was amazed at his detailed knowledge.

At one point he was discussing his experience as Governor of Japan, during the time a new constitution was being drafted.

"One day," he recounted, "Prime Minister Shigimitsu came in to see me and said he had a suggestion for the constitution. He seemed hesitant about revealing what he had in mind. I told him I knew it would be a good suggestion. 'What he proposed,'" MacArthur went on, "was that we put in a provision outlawing war.

"I have not often been taken aback in a conversation," he continued, "but this left me breathless, although I quickly concluded it was a fine idea. I told him I approved and would support the proposal. He greatly appreciated my response to his suggestion.

"The provision is in the constitution," MacArthur concluded "and I'm glad it is. War has become obsolete. It can no longer be an instrument of national policy. It is too completely destructive with the new weapons science has created."

"You know, General," I broke in, "I get the impression you regard the Japanese constitution as your greatest achievement— outstanding as your military record has been."

"There is no question about it," he replied. This impressed me as most significant comment.

As we discussed other subjects, I was impressed with the breadth of his horizon and the depth of his spirituality. He is a truly great man, of this there can be no question.

As I left I thought of the opportunity that is mine to meet and know outstanding people of our state and nation. It made me humbly grateful for the great privilege of serving you as Governor of Minnesota.

Stop it Cold!

USE SAFE, HEALTHY COAL HEAT IN YOUR HOME

Of all home heating fuels, only coal gives you steady, continuous heat without oil-on or oil-off flame. That's why coal eliminates "cold pockets" or over-heated rooms, gets the house warm clear through and keeps it that way! Because it's a steady, dependable heat, coal heat means greater comfort, fewer colds next winter.

HERE WE GO AGAIN and time will will tell what the end result will be. Tonight at 8 p. m. comes the meeting of the Pennington County Agricultural Society with invited officials from county, township and municipal governments, agricultural groups and civic bodies to determine what will become of the Pennington county fair.

Late November may seem like an odd time to discuss an event which takes place in the heat of summer, but the action is a necessity at this time. The association has generally decided that it will not operate another county fair. Directors have been advised that the association can dissolve under certain circumstances and this dissolution has been basically decided upon by the board.

So where do we go from here? Let somebody else worry about their own problems? Tell our friends and neighbors that somebody sure ought to do something? Forget about the whole thing if nobody seems to care anyway? Or rustle up enough community pride to take an interest in where the situation does go from here and show up at tonight's meeting.

I suppose that a county fair isn't a necessity. Just because 420 members of county 4-H clubs use the fair as a culmination of their project activity is not a complete justification. And producers of top quality livestock and crops can find another place to display their products. Fancywork can just as well be shown to occasional visitors at the homes of the hobbyists or stored away in a drawer to pass along unseen to future generations. And kids don't really need a carnival to have fun either.

So there really isn't sufficient justification to continue operation of the fair, is there? Unless, of course, people enjoy seeing what their neighbors can do and are doing. Unless some people still have pride in their accomplishments and enjoy competition. Unless youngsters need to find out the values of public experience through 4-H demonstrations and exhibits. Unless there is some value in a community activity which unites rural and urban segments of the population into a common bond.

And so, here we go again. Go where? First of all to tonight's meeting to find out what we can do. Secondly to move forward in step with progress and prove that when this area has a problem it can face it squarely, solve it, and bring about something better than ever expected.

Pity the poor American businessman. Every time he gets an idea for a new product, the Russians INVENT it a week later and the Japanese make it CHEAPER.

Some good comes out of almost everything. Consider the man whose drinking of moonshine led to taking occasional shots at his neighbors with a shotgun. "Can't you see that not one good thing comes out of this drinking?" his concerned pastor asked. "Well, parson," the backslider alibied, "it makes me miss the folks I shoot at."

Two belated bouquets to hand out this week. One to the American Legion Post for furnishing equipment for the school safety patrols and sending patrol boys to Legionville. The other to the Civil Defense auxiliary police force for assisting with street patrolling to curb vandalism on Halloween night.

Lest we forget, the Jaycees collection of used ice skates is nearing completion and more skates are needed. Dig out those no-longer-used sliding shoes and call MU 1-3441 to have the Jaycees pick them up and make a needy youngster happy.

Imagination—what as asset in an inquiring mind. Along with the Thanksgiving poems of sixth graders last week came this composition from Darryl Zitzow, son of the Times Linotype operator Mel Zitzow, which will suffice as the rhyme for today's column.

MY LI'L SKUNK

I got a li'l skunk
That once really stunk
He went out to play
But everyone ran away.
One day he came home mad
And said everyone's a cad.
We talked the matter over,
Then went to Dr. Rover.
Dr. Rover said, "Without a doubt
We gotta take that stink bone out."
Well, he had the operation
Just like relaxation.
Now he's all squared
With the people who were scared.
And let me whisper in your ear
The name of my skunk is Shakespeare.

Celebration of Yule Once Illegal in Nation

Celebration of Christmas — the most widely observed religious holiday of the modern world — was at one time illegal in early American history.

Colonial New England did not celebrate Christmas, according to researchers at Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia, because the stern Puritan colonists believed that such activities were wholly pagan and forbade them by law. Christmas came to the American colonies while it was the subject of strenuous controversy in England. English Puritans condemned it as "popish" and the secular celebration as a "wanton Bacchanalian feast".

Opposition of the English Puritans to festivals culminated in an act of Parliament in 1647 which abolished the observance of Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide. This was echoed in the American colonies in 1659 when Puritans enacted a law in the general court of Massachusetts to punish those who "kept Christmas".

The law read "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forebearing of labor, feasting, or in any other way . . . shall be subject to a fine of five shillings."

The law was repealed in 1681 but many of the Puritans were not reconciled to this action. Secular reveling at Christmas had often interfered with religious devotions and offended the Puritans' moral sense. This intensified their sectarian hostility to the religious observance of Christmas - an attitude they maintained for the better part of two centuries in parts of New England.

The fun-loving Dutch colonists of New Amsterdam, however, celebrated Christmas as their chief holiday. They brought the old customs from their homeland, especially the Christmas stocking and observance of the feast day of St Nicholas.

In the Southern colonies, the planters celebrated the yuletide with feasting, singing, and dancing. On many plantations slaves were given a holiday as long as the great yule log burned.

The latter half of the eighteenth century saw a swing of attention to the realm of economics and politics and religious controversies became of less importance. The fact that English and Hessian troops celebrated Christmas during the Revolutionary War may have added a patriotic note to the denominational controversy.

General Washington crossed the Delaware River on the night of December 25, 1776, to surprise and defeat the Hessian troops stationed at Trenton, N. J. In the opinion of one writer, Washington's bold venture succeeded because the Hessians were enjoying their customary Christmas revels and failed to maintain the usual watch and patrols.

However, denominational opposition to the ecclesiastic observance of Christmas continued into the second half of the nineteenth century. An account in the New York Daily Times for December 26, 1855 read:

"The churches of the Presbyterians, Baptists and Methodists were not open on Dec. 25 except where some Mission Schools had a celebration. They do not accept the day as a Holy One, but the Episcopalian, Catholic and German churches were all open. Inside they were decked with evergreens."

In the twentieth century, all denominations have embraced Christmas widely both as a religious and as a social celebration. Today, men, women and children in every Christian land crowd into churches to give their thanks. More than one fourth of the world's population - about 800 million people pro-

Conservation Dept. Cites Poor Deer Kill

Reports from conservation department fieldmen indicate that the opening week end of the 1961 deer season was only moderately successful.

As reported previously, deer were present in good numbers throughout most of the hunting area but the total kill was reduced because of poor hunting conditions. Only patches of crusted snow could be found in the extreme northern part of the state. On Saturday, the leaves and ground litter was frozen making the woods extremely noisy and on Sunday the hunters were hampered by rain, wind, and low visibility. Many reports were received of crippled deer being lost because of this poor visibility.

Some of the best hunting was found on state owned wildlife management areas. At Carlos Avery, located 35 miles north of the Twin Cities, department personnel contacted 163 hunters and found that they had taken 62 deer. 654 hunters checked on the Whitewater Wildlife Management Area in southeastern Minnesota took a total of 141 deer. At the Red Lake Wildlife Management Area north of Upper Red Lake, 760 hunters were contacted and they took 233 deer.

Hunting was good in the one day zone in southwestern Minnesota with 399 hunters checked taking 139 deer for a success ratio of 35 per cent. Hunters in the Lac Qui Parle Wildlife Management Area one day zone had 14 per cent success.

Hunting pressure in the northwestern quarter of the state was approximately the same as last year but an increased number of hunters were noted in the northeastern portion.

It appears at this time that the 1961 kill will probably fall short of last years kill of 95,000 animals. Despite an excellent deer population and an increased number of hunters, weather conditions were such that a heavy kill cannot be expected.

Pedestrians Raise Death Toll in State

38 Persons Walk to Their Death in Past 3 Months

As Minnesota's death toll continues to rise, pedestrian fatalities are blamed for part of the increase over the 1960 totals. Despite an apparent drop in deaths during the middle of the year which gave some encouragement to safety workers, the pedestrian deaths of the past three months brought the total to its highest point for October.

In August, September and October, 38 persons walked to their death, compared to the 29 fatalities in those three months of 1960. These nine deaths made the difference between the 607 for the first ten months of 1961 and the 601 of the same period in 1960. If it had not been for the jump in pedestrian fatalities, Minnesota would have been able to continue its downward trend in traffic deaths.

Special emphasis is being given during November to the problem as the month has been declared "Pedestrian Safety Month" by Governor Elmer L. Andersen as part of the state's official traffic safety program, "Blueprint for Safety."

Throughout the state, members of local posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and of the local safety councils are taking part in activities aimed at protecting the pedestrian.

However, in most of the traffic fatalities involving pedestrians — the person on foot is found to have been at fault. Crossing between intersections, running against the red light, walking on the wrong side of the roadway, staggering into danger because of walking under the influence of alcohol — these contribute to more traffic deaths of pedestrians than do the drivers.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Additional information or assistance on veterans' benefits may be obtained by visiting or writing Mr. Leo L. Haley, VA contact representative, located in Room 210 in the Grand Forks postoffice building.

Q My husband is a war veteran and since his discharge from active duty, he has worked under social security. In planning our insurance program, we would like to know what burial allowances would be payable.

A It appears that a burial allowance in your case may be payable by either the VA, the Social Security Administration, or both. The VA pays up to $250 to the funeral director, if he has not been paid, or to the person who pays the burial expenses. The Social Security lump sum payment equals three times the worker's benefit, but not more than $255.

Q My father, a World War II veteran, died recently from causes not connected with his military service. In order for me to be eligible for a VA pension, since I am unmarried and not yet 18, what service requirements must my deceased father have fulfilled?

A Your father must have had at least 90 days service, part of which was during wartime. During World War II the wartime service dates are December 7, 1941, to December 31, 1946. He must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Q — I understand patients in VA hospitals must provide their own personal comfort items. What are "comfort items?"

A - Comfort items are articles an individual normally requires in his everyday needs, such as shaving cream, tooth brushes, razor blades, hair tonic, etc.

Q — What was the average number of patients treated in VA hospitals last year?

A The latest figures are available for Fiscal Year 1961 which ended June 30, 1961. The Veterans Administration treated an average of 111,351 patients daily during this period.

Q Can a veteran be advised as to his general non-medical benefits while he is a patient at a VA hospital?

A Yes. Each VA hospital has a contact representative as a full-time member of the hospital staff to serve veterans in just such a capacity.

The passing of the Thanksgiving holiday inevitably brings forth the Christmas holiday season. These are days that each of us look forward to and yet, are happy when they are over.

Churches, schools, organizations, and certainly individuals all make significant contributions to creating a gala atmosphere each year. Everybody finds themselves in a spirit of Christmas. As a result of the original and still true spirit and meaning of Christmas, many side effects have occurred. I suppose that there are those who would say that these side effects are bad or undesirable or at least that they tend to overshadow the true meaning of Christmas.

"Commercialization" is one term that is oftentimes used with a tone of malice around this time of year. Therefore I should like to comment briefly about it. People still maintain the spirit of giving which is quite admirable, I believe. In order to give something people have found that they usually want to acquire something special so that it might have more meaning. In most cases this means purchasing something. In this competitive world it is human nature to also try to sell something where there is a demand for goods. A merchant would attempt to make his merchandise seem more attractive to the purchaser than his competitor might in order that he might sell more than he would otherwise. Naturally, there is a profit motive behind this competitive spirit which enters the holiday season.

The profit motive is not bad or even undesirable, however. Profits are what have caused business to develop thousands of items for sale that would otherwise not have been developed. The advertising involved in business causes increased buying. Increased buying allows for mass or volume production, which also allows for efficient production and a relatively low price to the consuming public. If you don't believe that, look at the ball-point pen industry. Remember when they sold for $15.00? I do. What caused them to become a 10 cent item?

So, commercialization of Christmas is not bad, it does not overshadow the true meaning of Christmas, but rather, it is good for every person and it is good for the community economy. The circulation of dollars within our economy is healthy for every citizen. In fact the greater the circulation, the more healthy the economy will be.

I would say that doing one's Christmas shopping at home would, in actuality, be a community service. If you have your shopping spree in some other town, your dollars spent will do the Thief River Falls area economy almost no good at all.

So, please think about what I've said and feel welcome and proud as you Shop and Trade Where Bargains Are Made, In The Heart of Northwest Minnesota, Thief River Falls.

New County Agent Chief in N.W. Area

Howard Newell Is Named District Supervisor

Howard Newell has been appointed supervisor of county agricultural agents for the Northwestern part of the state, according to an announcement from Sjull Rutford, director of the University of Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service.

Frank Forbes, former supervisor for the Northwestern part of the state, has been appointed acting assistant director of the state extension service.

Creation of a new district in the central part of the state raises the number of county extension supervisory districts from four to five. The districts are Northwest, Northeast, Central, Southeast and Southwest.

Newell served as assistant state 4-H club leader from April 1, 1957, until being appointed supervisor.

In his new position he supervises the work of 16 agricultural extension offices in 14 counties.

The counties are Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk (2 offices), Pennington, Red Lake, Norman, Mahnomen, Clay, Becker, Wilkin, Otter Tail (2 offices), Wadena and Todd.

The job of the district county agent supervisor is to work with county extension committees as well as county agents themselves on such matters as program development and coordinating the work of agents on an area basis.

Newell is a native of Slayton, Minnesota. He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1946. Before joining the state 4-H club staff he was agricultural representative for the Cities Service Oil Company for five years and served an earlier five years as agricultural extension agent in Rock County.

Home Agent Makes Suggestions as to Correct Rug Care

Regular Use of Vacuum Cleaner and Quick Spot Removal Recommended

Regular vacuum cleaning and quick spot removal are the keys to good care of carpets and rugs, according to Miss Laura Duerst, Pennington county home agent.

The service you get from your carpet depends in part on the care you give it.

Regular vacuum cleaning is the most important step in keeping carpets and rugs at their peak of beauty. Cleaning even seldom-used areas regularly, once a week, for example, prevents atmospheric dust from settling in carpet fibers and makes the job of regular up keep much easier.

Quick spot removal is the next major step in preserving the beauty of soft floor coverings. Damage from stains can be kept to a minimum if three points are remembered.

1. Act quickly when anything is spilled on a carpet—before the stains dry.
2. Have necessary cleaning equipment on hand.
3. Try to identify what caused the spot or stain.

Cleaning materials needed are simple. They include water, a detergent such as you use for washing fine fabrics, white vinegar and a dry-cleaning fluid.

A simple solution of one teaspoonful of detergent to a quart of warm water will take care of many stains. Add 1 teaspoonful of white vinegar to this solution and use it for most food stains, spots caused by candy, beverages, pet stains and washable ink. Dry-cleaning fluid is best for oily or greasy spots from lipstick, butter and hand cream.

In removing any spot on a carpet, use the cleaning material on a cloth or sponge—never pour it directly on the carpet. Sponge the spot lightly, working from the center toward its outside edges, using light brushing or tamping motions. Never scrub. Sponge the stain irregularly around the edges so there will be no definite line when the fabric dries.

Dry the carpet quickly as soon as you have used a cleaning material. Blot up moisture from carpet with a towel or blotter, and use a fan, small heater or the nozzle from the vacuum cleaner, blowing directly on the area. When the carpet pile is completely dry, brush it gently to restore the natural direction of the pile.

Aged Workers May get Some Social Security

The Social Security district office in Grand Forks will be open from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. every Thursday evening for the next three weeks beginning November 30. This is for the convenience of people 65 or over who work during the day.

In announcing the special evening hours, Walter Kistler, manager of the Grand Forks office noted that many older people in the Grand Forks area who are still employed, do not understand that recent changes in the social security law now make it possible for a good number of them to collect some benefits in addition to their earnings.

Older workers made eligible to collect some social security benefits for the year 1961, may lose some of the payments due them if they do not make application for them before the end of January 1962, Mr. Kistler said.

Unfortunately, Mr. Kistler said, a number of older people continue to think that they cannot collect any social security benefits at all if their earnings are over $1200 for the year. This is not true, he emphasized.

To show how recent amendments to the social security law have increased the amount an older worker can earn and still collect some benefits, Mr. Kistler cited the following example:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who are both over 65, could upon application become entitled to a combined monthly benefit of $150, based on Mr. Smith's average earnings under social security of around $3,200 to $3,300 a year. Up until this year, this couple could not be paid any of their benefits if Mr. Smith's annual earnings amounted to over $2,080.

With the recent change in the law, Mr. Smith could have earnings of $2,500 in 1961 and the couple would have at least $750 in benefits coming to them for the year. If his earnings were $3,000, the couple would get at least $250 of their social security benefits; even if he earned as much as $3,200, they would be able to collect at least $50 in benefits for the year.

The social security district manager suggests that working people 65 or over who have not yet applied for their social security benefits stop in at his office during the day, or during the special Thursday evening hours, to find out just where they stand.

The social security district office in Grand Forks is located in the Red River National Bank Building.

Committee Formed to Study New Fair Setup

Will Seek to Set up New Organization to Continue Fair

Interested in seeing a continuation of the Pennington county fair, approximately 85 persons representing a number of service organizations and rural groups attended a special meeting held Monday evening in the courtroom of the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. Directors of the Pennington County Agricultural society, which has operated the fair since its inception, have decided the group will not sponsor the 1962 exposition on the same scope as previous years.

As a result of interest shown at the session, a committee was appointed by nomination from the floor to discuss formulation of a new organization, ways and means of finance and degree of public participation. This group will report to the present agricultural society which will in turn call another public gathering to discuss the issue. Members include Charles Rodekuhr, Adam Lendobeja, Art Stenberg, Everett Amundgaard and association, presided at the open meeting Monday and outlined the history of the organization and its present position. In essence he stated that the fair had been originated by a group of individuals who were concerned about a place to display the produce and livestock of this county and raised the money to start by selling stock in the association.

For many years the fair prospered, but storms which damaged or destroyed buildings on the grounds combined with other factors to decrease the operating revenue. When the state department of health required that sewer and water facilities be provided on the grounds, Koop said, the resulting work required brought the organization's cash resources down to nothing. Since then the association has operated at a loss, failing to gain public support primarily due to the fact that a private stock

Solicitors who assisted in the drive, if they have not already been contacted, will be called by fund officials this week to remind them to complete their canvass and turn in funds collected.

Final figures on the drive will be released early next week and recognition will be given to business places which made outstanding contributions in the campaign.

Carnegie Library to Enforce Rules Aimed to Ease Congestion

Effective December 1, Carnegie Public Library in Thief River Falls will be closed to children under junior high school age after 6 p. m. unless they are accompanied by their parents. The action concerning the regulation took place at a recent meeting of the library board and is a result of congested conditions existing at the library during evening hours.

The board also reviewed existing library regulations and agreed upon more rigid enforcement of them, according to Miss Frances Shanahan, librarian. These rules are basic for the most effective library usage and have been listed as follows:

High school students are welcome to come to the library to check out circulating reading material but will not be allowed to loiter in the library;

There will be absolutely no talking allowed in the library and any high school student violating this rule will be suspended from the library for two weeks;

Erskine Burglars Take $5,000 Loot

Burglars working in Polk county early this week made off with over $5000 in merchandise and cash in three separate break-ins, according to Sheriff Carl Knutson.

The largest haul was taken from the BZ Sales Co. in Erskine Sunday night. Rifles, shotguns, ammunition binoculars, watches, fishing tackle and about $200 in cash brought the total there to around $5000, Knutson said. The theft was reported Monday morning.

Burglars in Lengby, east of Fosston, broke into two places, one of them the post office, and took a total of $51, of which $31 was taken from Walt's Market and $20 from the post office.

Entry in both Lengby cases was made by use of a pry bar, Knutson said. The post office break-in was a federal offense and postal authorities have been called in to assist in the investigation. Knutson said there are good leads in the Lengby robberies and that a solution may be close.

However, he stated it is not believed the Lengby cases and that one in Erskine are connected, although the possibility has not been completely ruled out. Methods of operation and other factors do not point to a connection, Knutson said.

Council Cuts City Tax Levy 4 Mills

Approves Budget Calling for Outlay of $1,886,000 in '62

As a result of a split vote of the Thief River Falls city council at an adjourned session held Tuesday evening, a four mill reduction in the city tax levy will be in effect for 1962. The drop in mill levy was made although at the same meeting the council adopted a budget with a higher toal than 1961. Increased revenue anticipated makes up the difference and permits the decreased mill levy.

Total budget adopted by the city was $1,886,715, an increase of $55,236 from the $1,831,479 budget set last year. The mill levy was set at 40.82 mills, a drop of four mills, from the 44.82 levied for 1961. This four mill decrease, equivilent to approximately $10,500, was voted with the thought in the mind of council members that a county mill increase of about the same monetary amount was levied to provide the city with money from its road and bridge fund.

The total budget includes all expenses which are anticipated to be made by the city during 1962. It includes $428,088 for use in the general fund, $184,963 for debt service, $499,000 for liquor store, $765,588 for utilities and $9,075 for trust and agency funds.

Budget for 1962 was figured by the council on the basis of assessed valuations in the city for the past year. Figures recently released indicate an increase of $18,000 in assessed valuations to a total of $2,723,000.

Estimated revenues for 1962 are $1,498,000 with the balance of the budget total being made up of transfers. Liquor store and utilities not only pay their own way but return a large profit to city coffers. Direct taxation, through the 40.82 mill levy, will bring approximately $106,000 for operation of the city during 1962. This will include about $81,000 for debt service, 19,236 for general fund and $6,000 for trust and agency funds.

Reclamation Bureau Power Fails Monday; Current Off One Hour

Residents of the Thief River Falls area found themselves groping in the dark for approximately an hour Monday evening as a result of trouble experienced by the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation at the West Fargo sub-station. The city was suddenly thrown into blackness at 5:15 p. m. and only the lights of heavy street traffic illuminated the downtown area.

Morris Owen, chief engineer at the municipal light plant, stated that the 2,400-volt power normally received from the Bureau of Reclamation was gone for exactly one hour. The Bureau brought the voltage back to 2,000 shortly after the original outage as local standby units were put into operation, but the power then failed, throwing the entire electrical load back on the local engines.

Time required to get the local power units started functioning again was the chief reason for the length of outage time, Owen told the Times. Normal peak load at this time of the year for the city would be about 4,200 KWH, he added. When Bureau power came back on at 6:15 p. m., the peak hit 4,956 KWH. This was caused by the automatic starting of refrigeration units, light switches turned on while current was off and other increased electricity use in individual homes.

At Northwestern Hospital the standby unit automatically cut in at least twice when normal power failed during the outage. This unit, termed "scarcely able to handle the essentials" by Norman Peterson, administrator, provides power for surgery, obstetrics, corridors, stairwells and oxygen equipment. It is not large enough to provide lights for patient rooms, x-ray equipment or elevators. No inconvenience was caused by the outage other than the lack of light in patient rooms.

Northwestern Bell Telephone company suffered no appreciable curtailment of service due to the

Mayor Aurel Parenteau of Brooks to Be Opposed by Emery LaCoursiere

With the annual village elections set in Minnesota for next Tuesday, December 5, a light turnout of voters is anticipated in some towns due to a lack of contests.

No candidates will be listed on the ballot at Goodridge, where a mayor, clerk, trustee and treasurer are to be elected.

In Oklee Mayor Bill Seeger has filed for re-election. Assessor Henry Falardeau also filed. Councilman Kenny Rolandson declined to file for re-election because his residence is outside of the village limits. Filing for Rolandson's position is Arnold Stenberg. A justice of the peace will also be elected.

In Brooks Aurel Parenteau is a candidate for re-election as mayor with Emery LaCoursiere also filing for the post. Oliver Junau is a candidate for re-election as treasurer. Harvey Page and Ronald Paradis are candidates for the office of trustee. A justice of the peace will also be elected.

Doris Melvie and Rodney Anderson Exchange Vows

Baskets of brown, yellow and white mums and candelabra graced the altar of the Viking Covenant church for the November 24 double ring wedding of Miss Doris Irene Melvie of Denver, Colorado, and Rodney Milford Anderson of Gill, Colorado. Pastor Eldor Langager of this city performed the 7:30 p. m. ceremony assisted by Pastor Walter Blackwood.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Olga Melvie and the late Toby Melvie of Viking and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Anderson of Gill, Colorado.

Miss Lucy Nygaard, organist, played the traditional nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Paul Sanders, brother-in-law of the groom of Denver, singing, "O Perfect Love," "Wedding Prayers," as the couple knelt at the altar and Miss Betty Lou Johnson of Minneapolis sang, "We'll Walk With God" and "Benediction," with "The Seven-fold Amen."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Lawrence Melvie of Viking, was gowned in a floor length gown of delustered satin with bateau neckline and long sleeves coming to a point over the hand. Rose lace appliques were scattered on the bouffant skirt and accented the neckline. A fingertip veil was caught on a crown of sequins and seed pearls and she carried a crescent cascade bouquet of autumn and white roses. The traditional something old, new borrowed and blue was carried out.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Russell Anderson of Englewood, Colorado, and Mrs. Charles Peterson of Minneapolis and Claudia Melvie, of Viking, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore identical dresses of bon-bon delustered satin with matching headpieces forming a large bow with matching shoes. Their crescent cascade bouquets consisted of a large mum surrounded with yellow feathered mums. Candle lighters were Misses Annie Petterson of Rockford, Illinois and Charis Norden of Minneapolis, wearing dresses of autumn delustered satin, identical to the bridesmaids. Their wrist corsages were of autumn roses and feathered mums.

Raymond Anderson, brother of the groom of Gill, Colorado, was best man while Russell Anderson of Englewood, Colo., and Brad Swanson of Greeley, Colo., were attendants. Ushers were Arnold Melvie of Greeley and Lloyd Melvie of Pensacola, Florida, brothers of the bride. The gentlemen of the wedding party were attired in black tuxedoes with carnation boutonnieres.

Both mothers wore two piece green crepe dresses with black and white accessories and corsages of autumn roses with yellow feathered mums.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's mother in the church parlors. A three tiered wedding cake, decorated in white surrounded by bronze and yellow poms with huckleberry, formed the centerpiece for the bridal table. Reception hostess was Mrs. Lawrence Melvie of Viking. Cutting the cake were Mrs. Conrad Engelstad of Virginia, Minn., and Mrs. Rodger Sackett of Thief River Falls, both sisters of the bride.

Mrs. Harold Peterson of Minneapolis, sister of the bride and Mrs. Paul Sander of Denver, Colorado, sister of the groom, poured coffee. Attending at the punch bowl were Mrs. Raymond Anderson of Gill, Colo., sister-in-law of the groom and Ruby Anderson of Denver, sister of the groom. Imogene Brekhus and Iong Torrin of Minneapolis and Marlene Torkelson of this city were waitresses. Mrs. Don Wicklund of Minneapolis and Ione Gustafson of Viking presided at the gift table and Arlene Melvie of Viking, sister of the bride was at the guest book.

For travel, the bride chose an emerald green two piece jersey knit dress with brown accessories and a corsage from her bridal bouquet. Their wedding trip took them thru Minneapolis, Iowa and Kansas and they are making their home at 1460 Birch street in Denver.

The bride is a 1954 graduate of Newfolden high school and a 1959 graduate of the Lutheran Deaconess hospital school of nursing and is employed at the children's hospital in Denver. Mr. Anderson is a 1955 graduate of Gill high school and farms.

A large tiered wedding cake trimmed in red and silver topped with bells, which was baked by Mrs. Eddie Hanson of Fosston, centered the serving table. It was cut and served by Mrs. Stanley Otness and Mrs. George Hanestad while Mrs. Carl Gustafson poured. The hostesses also served punch.

A large basket trimmed with a silver and red bow was used for the gifts and cards received by the couple. The guest book and a large floral arrangement of red roses were gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Otness.

Out of town guests attending came from Bagley, Lendby, Fosston, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Stephen, Goodridge, and Bloomington.

The bride wore a floor length gown of silk organza and Alencon lace fashioned with belled tucked skirt which cascaded into a chapel train. Her three-tiered veil was caught on a seed pearl and Alencon lace Grecian cap. She carried a gold rosary, a gift of the groom, and a white silk handkerchief, which had belonged to her great-grandmother. Her bouquet was of all white butterfly gardenias, stephanotis and sweetheart roses.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. Donald King of Walcott, N. D., while bridesmaids were her cousins, Madge Schwede of Moorhead and Mrs. Lowell Vogel of Minneapolis. All other cases were brought by city police. Delmer R. Rux, city, pleaded guilty to failure to yield the right-of-way, accident involved, and was fined $25. Donald O. Sjoholm, rt. 4, pleaded guilty to following another vehicle too closely, accident involved, and was also fined $25.

Edward H. Hanson, Viking, pleaded guilty to running a school patrol flag and was fined $20, of which $10 was suspended. Duane D. Scholin, rt. 4, pleaded guilty to having an illegal muffler and was fined $15.

John A. Taylor, city changed his plea of innocent on a charge of petit larceny of a deer, to a plea of guilty and was sentenced to 15 days in jail, subject to parole after seven days.

Committee Will Seek to Continue Pennington Fair company handles the operation, Koop stated.

"As far as we members on the board are concerned, and I believe I speak for the stockholders of this group, we are through with the operation of the fair," the association president said. "We have called this meeting to ask you if you want a fair and if you have any ideas as to what we can do in helping you organize a new group to operate it."

It had been the wishes of the old stockholder group that they could turn over the assets to a new organization to assist them in getting a good start. Legal procedure will not permit this, explained attorney Robert Wurst, since stockholders could not be deprived of whatever equity they have in the corporation. Nothing would prevent the transfer of this equity, if any, on an individual basis once the present group has been dissolved, however, the attorney said.

Koop promised the support of the board of directors in any way possible in an advisory capacity for the new organization. Results of committee work to determine how a new organization can best handle the situation will be made public at another general meeting to be held later.

general fund for 1962 and the respective amounts set for 1961 are as follows: Mayor and council, $7,875 and $7,875; municipal court, $5,070 and $7,178; elections, $1,075 and $625; finance, $26,536 and $24,707; attorney, $3,785 and 3,495; Pennington County Agricultural society, $1,000 and $1,000; general government buildings, $19,699 and $20,394; police, $68,209 and $62,236; civil defense, $1,008 and $1,380; engineering, $2,450 and $2,166; street department, $88,980 and $83,230;

Also street lighting, $25,500 and $25,500; conservation of health, $995 and $995; public welfare, $4,000 and $3,600; band, $1,575 and $1,600; parks, $18,965 and $21,190; and unallocated (general expenses), $49,357 and $47,534. Included in the final figure is approximately $46,000 for insurance and Public Employees Retirement association.

Discussion was held but no action taken on wage increase requests presented by a representative fo Municipal Drivers and Helpers Local 664. The request called for an increase of 15 cents per hour across the board for all hourly and monthly employees in 1962 and an additional 13 cents per hour across the board for 1963 under a two-year contract.

Other individual grievances were also mentioned as well as requested clarification of severance pay clauses, institution of health insurance and a 10 cents per hour increase for linemen when higher line voltage is affected. The requests as made would result in total additional city expense for wages of approximately $30,000, the union official said.

Martin Carlson, custodian at the city auditorium, was given a two-week suspension after a hearing before the council concerning his drinking of alcoholic beverages while on the job. Complaints had been received by councilmen that he had conducted himself in an unfitting manner at several public events where he was on duty, particularly one teenage dance when he was asked to leave by a police officer.

The council ordered Henry Thorson, building supervisor, to report to the governing body if Carlson again appears on the job while drinking. Such a report, borne out at subsequent hearing, would result in Carlson being relieved of his duties and losing severance pay and other fringe benefits.

Becki Ferber Talks Turkey to Rotarians at Luncheon Monday

Becki Ferber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Ferber of Thief River Falls and American Field Service exchange student to Turkey last summer, presented her views of Turkish life and customs at the noon meeting of the Rotary club Monday in the Elks club rooms.

Introduced to the club by Richard Edlund, senior high school principal, Miss Ferber used colored slides to illustrate her talk. Dressed in a Turkish costume made for her by her "grandmother" in Istanbul, she displayed a Turkish water pipe and the Moslem prayer rug which had been given to her by her host family when she left for the United States.

Chuckles were drawn from club members as Becki showed a picture of her "family" and called attention to her "father." In turkey, the bigger you are the prouder you are," she said. "As you can see, my father was very proud."

She contrasted the living conditions of the country against that of the United States. Bread sold in Istanbul for about seven cents a loaf and wages paid to working people were correspondingly low. Most families live in apartments, with the higher social standing people living in the upper stories of the apartment houses.

Sanitation is a problem with glass and screens scarce so that most foodstuffs are left in the open. Families in apartment houses share facilities with one family having a stove, another family owning a refrigerator and another family other items which are considered necessities in most homes in this country.

Miss Ferber said that she learned two basic lessons on her trip abroad. One was to appreciate the advantages that life in the United States affords after being without the comforts of home. The other lesson was that people are basically good throughout the world and that wonderful people can be found wherever a person goes.

outage. Some long distance connections were out due to fuses blown in other offices but no inconvenience was noted locally. Power is supplied by wet cell storage batteries which are recharged electrically at the local office. An auxiliary generator was started when the outage occurred, according to Al Bacon, wire chief, but its use was not needed when normal power was again available.

Oakland Park Nursing Home residents, caught in the middle of their supper hour when the lights went out, were given the unexpected opportunity to continue their meal by candlelight. The home is one of several places which was supplied current within 15 minutes after the original outage occurred.

One fire call was noted during the darkness, that being for a chimney fire at 313 Duluth av. S. No damage was done and firemen were not compelled to use water from city mains, a situation which could have been serious if power was not available at the water filtration plant.

The downtown area had an eerie atmosphere with elongated black shadows cast by lights of cars traveling the darkened streets. Store owners and clerks were forced to halt their dealings with customers for the lack of light to display their merchandise. Many were the mothers who were cut short in preparation of the evening meal.
